MARCH 10, 1894.

A REFORM IN AGRICULTURE.

Every farmer, and every person interested in farming, is ready, we believe, to give the present Government of Canada credit for what they have done to promote agriculture. By the establishment of Experimental Farm Stations and the appointment of men of the eminent ability of Professor Saunders and Professor Robertson, they are effecting quietly and easily the reform in methods of farming which was absolutely necessary in view of the opening up of the grain producing areas of the great West and Northwest and the increasing competition of foreign countries. If this reform had been left to be worked out solely by the individual efforts of our farmers, there is reason to believe that its accomplishment would have been exceedingly slow, and that it would be accompanied by many cases of financial disaster. The tentative measures taken by the Government—the experimenting—if taken at all, would then have to be taken by the farmers themselves. There would inevitably be losses and suffering as a result. Perhaps the abandoned farms of Eastern Canada would now be almost as numerous as those of the Atlantic States. But the forethought of the Government party in Parliament and in Council, and the admirable management of the Experimental Farm Station officials is, instead, resulting in a reform of agriculture the present results of which are highly satisfactory and the future results of which are inestimable. Last year there were distributed among the farmers of Eastern Canada, for cheese alone, upwards of fourteen millions of dollars. That amount brought in, distributed over the face of the country, and circulated among the people, has gone a great way in the promotion of our national prosperity and in the avoidance ance of the financial disaster which has overtaken the United States. This Province received about fifty thousand dollars as a result of the opening operation of eleven factories. We note upon the list of Cheese Factory patrons some individuals who obtained last year between two and three hundred dollars for milk supplied at their doors; many who obtained a hundred dollars and upwards, and a large number who received fifty dollars and upwards. Professor Robertson says that as much as $75,000 will this year be obtained for Island cheese and we have no doubt that individual farmers will increase their receipts for milk in like proportion. The opening of several batter factories at the close of the next cheese season, as announced by Professor Robertson, will afford an opportunity to add to the amounts to be placed to the credit of our cows. Of course a farmer and a farming community need to be well advanced before they can hope to enter successfully into the dairying industry. They must have good pasturage, good buildings, good milch cows, and plenty of good fodder for winter feeding. But it is assuring to know that P. E. Island cheese, carefully made, ranks rather higher in the British market than that of any other province. A quarter of a cent a pound on cheese makes a considerable difference when the output is large. Success in the cheese making industry, will, however, imply care, labor and attention to every detail. Nor must the sustaining hand of the Government be forever depended upon. It will be well if our farmers learn for themselves to select only good men as managers of their factories and to control efficiently the business of their respective companies, as well as to breed the right kinds of cattle, and provide the best kinds of fodder. As a rule, we can obtain no good thing without labor and care; and the rule applies to the dairy enterprise. The suggestion of Professor Robertson that several agricultural picnics shall be held here in the course of the coming summer, is a good one. We have no doubt that it will be adopted and that the picnics will be attended by thousands of farmers anxious to obtain, in the pleasantest way, the latest practical information concerning the work they have in hand.

GRIT MANŒUVRING.

The success attendant on the "side tracking" of Messrs. A. B. McKenzie, Peter McNutt and John G. Scrimgeour, coupled with the complacent and docile manner in which these gentlemen accepted their political doom, has induced Mr. Donald Farquharson to try his hand at higher game and endeavor to "side track" Mr. William Welsh, one of the members for Queen's Country in the House of Commons. Under the new distribution of seats, Queen's County will no longer return two members, but instead East Queen's with a portion of King's County will send one member to Ottawa, while West Queen's will return another. The western riding of Queen's is considered to be extremely "gritty." The knowing ones think the chances to return a grit member good—no matter who he may be,—and Mr. Farquharson, with ever an eye to a "sure thing," has, we learn, decided to take the place himself. To accomplish this he must "side track" Mr. Davies to East Queen's and run Mr. Welsh out of the county. The grits of New London, who are decidedly averse to Mr. Farquharson, hearing of his tactics, took time by the forelock and nominated Hon. David Laird, who, according to grit ethics is eminently qualified, having been a defeated candidate on several occasions. But Mr. Welsh, who is not as docile a Mr. McKenzie & Co. does not appreciate being thus handled by Mr. Farquharson, and intends to "learn them something" when the proper time arrives. In the meantime he still represents Belfast, which, of course, includes Lot 49, where he (Mr. Welsh) was born and where he hopes to die and be buried, both physically and politically. This he cannot accomplish if Mr. Farquharson succeeds in burying him (politically) in West Queen's. But in addition to the opposition of Mr. Laird and his New London friends, and Mr. Welsh and his Charlottetown supporters, Mr. Farquharson has to contend with Mr. Premier Peters and his supporters in East Queen's. Mr. Peters, rumor says, has his eye on that constituency, and as both cannot run, they do not require Mr. Davies' services at all, but intend to insist on his standing for East Queen's. So between the Laird, Welsh, Davies and Peters factions Mr. Farquharson has a heavy road to clear up before he finds himself started for Ottawa.

It is said to be a sign of a sinking ship when the rats begin to leave. Is the local ship of state about to be wrecked when the captain and first mate are looking for other quarters?

ARCTIC EXPLORATION.

A description of the general plan of operations, proposed by Robert Stein, in the exploration of the Arctic regions, is given in the Review of Reviews for March. Mr. Stein holds that henceforth all spasmodic and occasional attempts at Arctic exploration ought to give way to permanent and continuous scientific work conducted from the standpoint of a permanent base of supplies. He proposes to begin by building a house and depositing two years' provisions at the southeast end of Ellesmere Land, where Jones' Sound opens westward from the upper end of Baffin Bay. Waiving the question of obstruction by ice floes, this permanent depot will be within easy reach of the established track of the whaling steamers, which find their hunting grounds in Lancaster Sound. Those not familiar with the perils encountered by ships engaged in the whaling trade will not have considered how frequent are the wrecks upon those bleak coasts and how important for this great branch of commerce would be the existence in that region of a house of refuge and a centre of relief and rescue. Its maintenance would not be expensive, and the whalers themselves could easily afford to pay the bills. But apart from its value to the whaling trade, this permanent depot, according to Mr. Stein's ideas, could be made the main base of supplies for a series of stations thrown out along different radials into the regions which remain to be thoroughly explored. These stations could be so connected with one another and with the man depot as to minimize the risks and maximize the results of explorations and scientific inquiry. Moreover, the plan laid down by Mr. Stein, far from being impracticable, on account of expense, would prove a much cheaper method of acquiring a knowledge of the Arctic regions than that of any occasional independent expeditions, each beginning de novo with an original equipment. In short, Mr. Stein has laid down a most admirable plan, and it is to be hoped that nothing may interfere with its realization.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—The Westminster Gazette says Lord Rosebery's dominant ideal is Colonial expansion and Imperial unity, coupled with a sincere belief in democracy.

—Says the Toronto Empire: "Mr. Parkin, the well-known advocate of Imperial Federation, is the author of the articles on Canada in the London Times. They do him credit."

—The Montreal Gazette remarks that "a newspaper that aspires to lead to-day can only hope to succeed by showing superior intelligence in its management and superior skill in presenting its case."

A BRITISH SOLDIER.

He Causes a Sensation in New York—His Breast Covered With Medals—Wars of Years Ago Recalled.

Walking up Park Place, New York, a few days ago, was a man who attracted considerable attention, owing to his dress and his medal-covered breast. He was Sergt. Moore, late of Her Majesty's Eighth Hussars, and now one of the corps of commissionaries of London. He is in New York on duty as an orderly to Col. G. E. Gourand, who arrived on Thursday on the steamer Teutonic. The sergeant's dress is a perked forage cap, with the badge of his corps, a dark patrol jacket with brass buttons, and a leather belt passing diagonally across the chest, resting on the left shoulder.

On the left breast of the jacket are three medals that recall wars of years ago. There was the pale medal of the Crimea, and above the medal were four bars—Alma, Inkerman, Balaklava and Sebastopol—proving that the man had been in each of those fights. Next to it hung the red and white striped ribbon that showed that the sergeant had fought in the Indian mutiny. The medal was there, as well as a bar for Central India. Alongside of these was the blue ribbon with pink edge that told the initiated that the man had been with Lord Napier of Magdala in the Abyssinian war.

On his right breast was a medal that showed the man's personal pluck. It was the bronze medal of the Humane Society of Great Britain, awarded for the saving of life at sea.

The sergeant enlisted when he was sixteen years of age, and was at once drafted out of the Crimea, and is a living lie to all those who say that Great Britain neglects her soldiers. He does not look a day over forty, and is to-day fit to do the work of an army mule if necessary.

THE QUEEN AND THE STUARTS.

The Queen was asked recently to purchase the necklace, ear-rings and brooch in the Eglington collection of jewels, which had belonged to Mary Queen of Scots. But Her Majesty declined, says Edmund Yates, as Queen Mary is not one of her favorites.

Some time ago, a fine portrait of Charles II came into the market and the Queen was urgently requested to buy it for the Royal collection at Windsor Castle. Her Majesty refused and then an elaborate memorandum was sent to the Palace, in which the reasons for buying the picture were enumerated. Ultimately the Queen decided to purchase the work, and thus indorsed the memorandum:

I consent, but with great reluctance, for I do not like Charles II.

Lord Rosebery was a great football player in his college days. He has a legitimate title to Englishmen's respect.

Mr. F. Drummond Henderson, of the Bank of British North America, leaves this evening to return to Halifax via the Capes.

"I have used the Columbia Bicycle in my daily practice for four years. I have constantly compared it with other makes, and am thoroughly satisfied that a man gets more for his money in buying a Columbia than in buying any other make of which I have yet seen, and I have seen about all of them."—H. L. Wenner, M. D., Tiffin, Ohio.

The Modern Way.

Commends itself to the well-formed, to do pleasantly and effectually what was formerly done in the crudest manner and disagrevably as well. The cleanse the system and break up colds, headaches and fevers without unpleasant after effects, use the delightful liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs.

No other medicine has equalled Hood's Sarsaparilla in the relief it gives in severe cases of dyspepsia, sick headache, etc.

THE FESTIVE MIDWAY.

Of course everybody has heard of the Midway Plaisance, and its connection with the World's Fair. This connection, in some respects, was of rather unsavory character, for a number of fakes, shams and frauds availed themselves of the opportunity to make a display of themselves before that portion of the world which went to see the Fair. The visit of the Board of Lady Managers to some of these fake institutions has become celebrated.

But after all, the genuine and real Midway Plaisance was all it claimed to be, namely, a Congress of Nations, representing the people of nearly every race and country on the face of the earth, with their home customs and peculiarities. Therefore no study could be more interesting or useful than the special study of Midway Types, with portraits of the curious people gathered there and their domestic surroundings.

Persons desiring to obtain these in full, in connection with historical sketches and descriptive matter of the greatest interest and value, should at once supply themselves with the portfolios of "THE MAGIC CITY." The photographs, portraits, etc., are extra large and fine, printed in royal purple colors, and exceedingly attractive. If you have not been getting these portfolios do so at once. Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, are now ready, and we will supply all back numbers at ten cents each with coupons.

You can form no idea of the real beauty and splendor of these photographic illustrations until you see them in royal purple colors as they appear exclusively in "THE MAGIC CITY."

NEWS NOTES.

Traders have found the bones of 33 men at the spot where Capt. Wilson's party made their stand against the followers of King Lobengula.

Madrid, March 8.—The cabinet has resigned and the Queen Regent has charged Premier Sagasta with the work of reconstructing a new ministry.

The difficulties in the way of discharging vessels at Rio Janeiro continues. There are several St. John vessels there which have been waiting several weeks for a chance to begin discharging their cargoes.

Congressman Bailey, of Texas, came to Washington a few months ago an ardent upholder of the spoils system. He has now introduced a bill to make it unlawful for a senator or member of the House of Representatives to recommend to the President or the head of a government department the appointment of any person to public office. Mr. Bailey seems soon to have become tired of trying to satisfy fifty applicants with one Government Club.

Mr. John Morley's refusal to give up the Irish secretaryship is an instance of self-abnegation and devotion to duty not often outshone in political life. Mr. Morley's service to his party and to the country, as well as his personal ability, entitle him to the more distinguished position which he has declined. In the Irish secretaryship there is much worry and little glory to be won, and Mr. Morley's own achievements at Dublin castle have been very disappointing. Perhaps this striking proof of his devotion to the Irish cause will make Irishmen better inclined towards his administration.

The London Daily News says: The Rosebery Government will meet Parliament as strong, except in the absence of Mr. Gladstone, as before. In one respect it will be even stronger. The attack on the unlimited and impracticable veto of the House of Lords will gain force by the guidance of a peer. Lord Roseberry, the paper continues, several years ago introduced a bill abolishing the House of Lords and substituting therefor an elective Senate. A more practical solution of the present crisis, however, is the plan formerly proposed by John Morley and understood to have been suggested by Lord Rosebery himself, by which a peer might relinquish his seat in the House of Lords and become a candidate for a seat in the House of Commons. Lord Rosebery is expected to confront Parliament with a strong advanced policy. If he fulfils that expectation he need not fear the result.

GENERAL TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Boston, March 8.—Two new cases of smallpox were to-day discovered in South Boston, on Broadway, and a third case on Ninth Street.

New York, March 8.—A special to the World from St. John's, Nfld., says: "The steamer Walrus, one of the seal fishing fleet, together with a dozen or more steamers, is lying at Pool's Island Green's Pond, half a day's run north of here, waiting for Saturday next, when the sealing season opens. The intense cold froze up the anchorage and the crews yesterday attempted to blast their way through the ice with dynamite. The boatswain, Edward Breet, George Toms and James Hurley, seamen, were in the Walrus' galley warming the dynamite to make it ready for use, when it exploded, killing Breet, injuring Toms so that he died to-day, and wounding Hurley so that his recovery is doubtful.

London, March.—Baron Tweedmouth, more generally known as the Right. Hon. Edward Majoribanks, recently Patronage Secretary of the Treasury and Liberal whip, will, in future, have a seat in the Cabinet and the office of Lord Privy Seal, one of the offices recently held by the Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone.

Boston, March 8.—The citizens' relief committee have decided to put fifty men to work to-morrow levelling Dorchester height, and in all probability the number will be doubled next week. The number of men who have registered from the beginning for work of all kinds is 6,984, and the number of work cards up to date is 10,909.

Boston, March 8.—The contract for floating the wrecked U. S. S. Kearsage has been awarded to the Boston Tow Boat Company of this city. By the agreement, the company will receive $45,000 if successful in bringing the ship to the Norfolk navy yard, and if unsuccessful, $10,000 will be paid for having made the attempt.

Ottawa, March 8.—There is no truth in a story telegraphed to the French-Canadian press that Sir John Thompson had resigned the leadership and that Hon. Mackenzie Bowell was to replace him, and no confirmation could be had of another story widely telegraphed that Lord Aberdeen was going to England to take the Irish secretaryship in succession to Hon. John Morley.

The Seed Business.

To those not acquainted with us, the following facts may prove interesting:—We have carried on a Seed Business in this city for fourteen years. We have always tried to merit success, have kept the best Seeds procurable, sold at moderate prices, and treated our customers as well as possible. Our business has increased year by year, and the largest increase of all was in 1893. For many years we have had the largest Seed Business in P. E. Island. We have now the largest business of the kind in the Maritime Provinces. Nothing but genuine merit in the Seeds we sell could have brought about these results.

FOLLOW THE CROWD!

This is a wise rule when buying seeds. People don't rush to buy poor seeds, but they do crowd to Carter's Seed Store every season, because they know the value of the seeds. This is not "blow" but simple fact. Poor seeds tell their own story when they grow, so do good ones. Buy those that have told a good story for years past. They are CARTER'S.
