He said that the atomic or hydrogen bomb were the most dangerous thing with which we have to contend, but rather man himself without whom a bomb is harmless unless triggered.

In an eloquent sermon, the preacher emphasized the importance of inward peace in the individual, pointing out that this could be possible without a Christ-centered life.

We watched beside your bedside As the long hours passed, And how our hearts were aching When we saw you breathe your last.

We often sit and think of you, So loving and so wise, But you and you could not say goodbye Before you closed your eyes.

So we will be brave, Mother, And pray to God each day, And when he calls us home to you, Your smile will lead the way.

Sadly missed by husband and family.

In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Edgar Farrar, who passed away July 18, 1948.

God saw you getting weary And did what He thought best, He put His arms around you, And whispered "Come and rest." Ever remembered by his wife and family.

tries. The principals in this long-dreamed-of "meeting at the summit" are all here—their plans drawn up, their strategy carefully rehearsed.

The bargaining begins in the Palace of Nations overlooking the Lake of Geneva. There, leaders of Britain, the United States, Russia and France will try to reconcile conflicting views on what steps should be taken to end the cold war.

In preliminary discussions Sunday, the Western leaders allotted Sir Anthony Eden the task of stating their ideas for assuring peace in Europe. But the opening speech will be made by President Eisenhower.

PEACE IN EUROPE
In a sun-bathed city gay with sightseers and vacationers, Eden met President Eisenhower and French Premier Edgar Faure at the president's lakeside villa. They talked for three hours.

During their discussions the Russian delegation, headed by Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, the prime minister, spun through the city in an open car on a sightseeing tour.

Later Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov visited the Western foreign ministers individually.

Authoritative sources said the Western leaders in their final planning session agreed that the crucial issue of their first top-level meeting with Russia since 1945 was the question of peace in Europe.

As the only head of state present, President Eisenhower will preside and make the opening speech at the first session—10 years plus a day since Britain, the U.S. and Russia met at Potsdam to settle the fate of defeated Germany.

Eisenhower is expected to initiate a general discussion about the causes of international tension. This may include a frank charge that Russia has failed to honor her wartime agreements, has sponsored Communist "fifth columns" throughout the world and ruthlessly seized power in eastern Europe.

Faure is expected to suggest ways of easing world tension by freer trade and movement between east and west. He may also refer to his plan—unenthusiastically received by Britain and the United States—for an agreement among the world powers to make straight cuts in their arms spending in favor of developing backward areas.

Preparations for the conference have been intensive since the three Western countries invited Russia on May 10 to try to "resolve the great problems confronting the world."

The Western foreign ministers met Sunday after their chiefs had conferred with President Eisenhower to put into final shape the bulky Western "brief" which will be used during the six-day conference.

The major part of this document is devoted to possible approaches to the negotiation of a security system in Europe pivoted on a united Germany which would be free to choose its alliances.

Conference sources said this could incorporate an East-West agreement to limit their forces in central Europe or create a neutral, virtually demilitarized zone between the two opposing blocs.

GERMANY TO SECOND PLACE
The plan for reuniting Germany, which is almost identical with that put forward by Eden as foreign secretary in Berlin last year, provides for free all-German elections to a constituent assembly which would draft a constitution.

After approving the constitution the assembly would appoint a government which would negotiate a peace treaty with its former enemies.

Russia's plan is expected to urge the establishment of a European

The handicraft will include the making of sailor's belts, sandals, dolls, plaques, etc.

The school is being conducted under the joint leadership of Rev. H. L. Milton and R. J. Rupert with a staff of trained and experienced leaders and a large attendance is expected when the enrollment begins this morning.

Next Sunday morning the children who have attended the sessions will attend the church service in a body with their leaders and following the service, parents and friends will have an opportunity of viewing a display of the visible work accomplished.

Citizens Inspect Visiting Warships

Thousands of citizens yesterday afternoon took the opportunity of visiting Canada's three warships now in port. For the most of the afternoon a long queue waited to go aboard the H.M.C.S. Huron and H.M.C.S. Iroquois which are berthed at the Railway Wharf.

Still another group of citizens waited in line for their chance to see the larger ship, H.M.C.S. Quebec, anchored in the stream. Several naval and private launches kept up a continual shuttle service to the "Quebec" but many had to be disappointed for lack of accommodation within the time limit set for visiting.

Those who had the pleasure of visiting any or all three of the ships were impressed with their cleanliness but particularly by the courtesy with which the naval personnel conducted them through the ships. Included among the ship's visitors was a group of Air Force personnel from the Summerside Air Station who made their way to Charlottetown in one of their large buses.
