IN MEMORIAM

DUNCAN J. CAMPBELL

The sudden passing of Duncan J. Campbell in his 83rd year, of DeSable, on June 6th, 1951, cast a sadness over many communities in P. E. Island. He was born in DeSable, son of John Campbell and his wife, Mary MacDougall, and was the last surviving member of that family. In his youth he spent some time in Boston, Mass. While living there he married Eunice MacNeill, later returning to the Island to carry on his father's business of blacksmithing which he worked at for over fifty years. Although aged in years, Mr. Campbell was a young man in appearance and action.

Those who were privileged to know him appreciated his loyal friendship, his willingness to assist at every call. He was always a strong supporter of the Conservative party, taking an active part in politics, and always a keen interest in current affairs. He was a member of the Loyal Orange Association for sixty-four years, was an honorary member of the Grand Lodge of P. E. Island. His funeral was held June 10th, and was conducted by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Bishop, Minister of the Churc hof Scotland, assisted by Rev. Mr. Woolfry, Minister of Hampton United Church. Orange service at the grave was conducted by Mr. Chester Shaw, D.G.M., assisted by Mr. John A. MacKinnon as Chaplain. It was one of the largest funerals ever held in the district; one hundred and ten cars followed the remains to Argyle Shore cemetery where it was laid to rest beside his two sons who predeceased him some fifteen years ago. There is left to mourn his passing, his wife and following children: James of Hampton;; Calvin of Charlottetown; Russell and Abner of Ontario; Gladys, Halifax, N. S.; Stanley, Marilas and Mary of Mass., U. S. A.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. Duncan Campbell and family sincerely thank their neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness shown them during their recent sad bereavement; also to those who sent floral tributes, letters and cards of sympathy.

BEQUESTS

Someone has said that it is not a good WILL which does not remember Christ's work with a Gift. There is no better way of remembering His work, than by making a bequest to the Bible Society. The Bible Society seeks to give every man of every language God's Word in his own tongue without note or comment. Your gift will speak to the hearts of men through the Word of God and by your influence will go on for generations. In making a bequest, kindly do so through the P. E. I. Auxiliary or Branch. The Bible House is at 100 Fitzroy Street, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DUFFY, formerly of Kinkora, P. E. I., announce the engagement of their daughter Wanda to Mr. Herbert Hunter, of Toronto. The marriage will take place on July 21st at St. Paul's R. C. Church. Recently a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Miss Duffy at the residence of Mrs. Hazard, Toronto, an aunt of Mr. Herbert Hunter. The living-room was festively decorated with cut flowers and baloons which when burst showered confetti on the bride to be and guests. Many beautiful gifts were received including all modern household electrical equipment, beautiful china and silver. After delicious refreshments a sing song was led by Miss Lena McLure. A most happy feature of the evening was the presence at the gathering of the groom's grandmother Mrs. A. Stott. Mrs Stott who is 84 is a most lovable and interesting character. She was one of the pioneer music teachers of Toronto. She started her early musical education seventy-nine years ago in Yorkshire, England. From the time she came to Canada as a young woman she had a very large class in Toronto. At the close of the evening this gracious lady gave a little speech welcoming Wanda to their family and thanking all friends for coming to the party. Miss Elizabeth McKenna from Emerald was a guest. Miss Helen Hogan, cousin of the bride, and niece of Mr. Emmett Hogan, Spring Park Road, recently gave another lovely shower for Miss Duffy.

Literature And Life

By BOOKMAN

THE PHLEGMATIC TEMPERAMENT

The term phlegmatic means "sluggish," "slow" or "indifferent", and describes a certain kind of temperament. The Hebrew Book of Proverbs deals with the sluggard—in fact sends him to school to the little creature, the ant—"Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise." We have a picture too of the man who sleeps too late in the morning, and grass and weeds are growing right up to the door. Want will come on him like an armed man.

In addition the prophets are concerned about the lethargy of the people. These seers of Israel see the invader on the horizon and wish to waken the people to a sense of their danger. There is also the note of urgency in the message of Paul. It is high time to awake out of sleep.

Dante pictures Charon, the ferryman over the river on the margin of hell, as striking with his oar the laggards who are slow in getting into his boat, and in Purgatory we see on the fourth terrace sloth is purged from the soul. It is looked upon as defective love. Here the slothful rush by at full speed in the moonlight—so full of longing to lose no time through too little love.

Sloth is a heaviness and sadness which weighs down the soul, sadness at spiritual good, to be fought by thinking on spiritual things.

We would expect a man like Bunyan, who was a psychologist though he never heard of the term, have somewhere among his many characters, Sloth, and we so find. On the hills Difficulty Christian falls asleep and loses his roll. This was a case of sloth and he had to go back and find it. He mistook the arbor of rest for a sleeping place; so people misuse the church, going asleep under sermons.

But later in the allegory the great Dreamer shows us Simple, Sloth and Presumption asleep with irons on their feet. It is hard to waken them; and they give foolish answers to their questioner. No progress is made thus. We are told that Alexander the Great used to leave his camp at night and go round to see how the sentinels were watching and would spear any whom he found asleep at his post.

Perhaps there was some little excuse for the three disciples who slept when their master was in agony in the garden, for they were tired—very tired.

Many a lad has never attained to the position for which nature intended him, simply because he fell asleep like Bunyan's characters. The sun dipping westward was enough to constrain Jesus to work the harder. "The night cometh when no man can work." Dante is our teacher here. He and Virgil ascend the mountain of Purgatory and there is a certain technique followed in getting rid of the "seven deadly sins."

Pride, Envy and Anger are regarded as distorted love; Sloth as defective love; Avarice, Gluttony and Luxury as excessive love. Virgil gives a discourse on love and at the end thereof the slothful rush by in the moonight, determined to lose no time and they see examples of alacrity in Mary and Caesar. Dante's drowsiness is overcome by the rushing of the shades coursing along. One of the cures of our lethargy is to imitate the energy of those who have shaken off sleep. It is the philosophy of Longfellow's "Psalm of Life"

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime.

The reading of Rabbi Ben Ezra will serve a corrective to this slackness—

"Then welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough,
Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand, but go!"

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

The man who dreamed of building a modern town on Prince Edward Island actually went so far as to select the site, set up and a few rude shacks, and then fool his relatives in the old country out of a lot of money. The site chosen for the phoney town was between Homes Corner and Rodds on the Calwill Road. All went well until the promotor learned that one of the investors was coming to the Island to see how the new town was growing up. But when he reached the place all he saw was ashes. The phoney man and the phoney town had vanished.

When Stefannson was warned by experts and the Eskimos that his party would starve to death if they ventured out on the desolate ice of the Arctic without food, the great explorer went right ahead. And here is the astonishing part of the tale: Stefannson and his little party of adventurers traveled hundreds of miles over the shifting ice, and instead of dying from starvation, as the know-it-all ones said they would,, every man gained from 7 to 10 pounds and didn't go without a single meal in nine months.

The explorer's experiences in the Arctic waters proved three things. First, that plenty of meat exists around the Arctic Ocean. Second, that an all meat diet can be eaten over long periods without any bad effects and third, that not a man of his party suffered from colds or tooth decay. During their travels, they came upon Eskimo villages where the people ate nothing but meat and strange fruit trees, he found the inhabitants absolutely free from tooth decay. There's an idea.

When Zane Grey first started writing he frequently went to bed cold and hungry, for editors turned down his productions as "drivel rot." Today, his stories sell millions of copies although their author has been in his grave for some years. More than 15,000,000 copies of his famous books have been sold in the United States and Canada alone.

Several events made 1950 a remarkable year for Canadians. British Columbia was blanketed by the heaviest snowfalls in years, and mountain slides were among the worst in that Province's history. Tidal waves did extensive damage in Winnipeg and vast areas of valuable farm lands were flooded and spoiled for cropping. Alberta and Saskatchewan saw great damage to their wheat fields as the result of early frosts. New Brunswick and Quebec fell short of their usual timber cut on account of the light snowfall, and Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick were forced to market their bumper spud crop at a price that left nothing for the grower.

Another important event of 1950 was the two-hundredth birthday of the city of Halifax; the 100th birthday of the London, Ontario Free Press; the 104th birthday of Mrs. James MacIntyre, East Royalty, P. E. I.; Newfoundland became the tenth Province of Canada; the Younker twins of Winsloe and Brackley, P. E. I., celebrated their 90th birthday. Jet planes were introduced as part of the country's national defence. Canada passed a law ending appeals from the Canadian Supreme Court to the Privy Council in London; the oil fields of Alberta poured out new millions in wealth; Toronto was getting ready for Canada's first subway and uranium was found in a number of places.

The value of Canada's wildlife is worth $30,000,000 a year, but you can't hunt game in any of the country's National Parks. Only the park's game warden's have the right to kill off animals when they become too numerous.

During the 2nd World War 10,000 buffalo were slaughtered in Wainwright Park, Alberta, so that the grounds could be used for military purposes. There was no waste, however, since the meat and hides from the slaughtered animals were sold to Belgium. Incidentally, Wainwright Park had the largest buffalo herd then in captivity.

A few years ago a commercial traveler of Charlottetown was busy at the desk in the Queen Hotel copying his orders. A group of men in the lobby were arguing about the existance of Purgatory. Unable to decide the matter, they asked the salesman, a Roman Catholic, what he thought about Purgatory?

Instantly he shot at them: "Did you ever ride the C. N. R. to Montague or Georgetown?"

A spider's web is a trap, a dinner table and a telegraph line!

The dragon fly frequently goes on journeys of several hundred miles. His strong double wings makes long flights possible.

The most famous of all mass flights made by insects is the travels of the locust. From Biblical times to the present the hordes of these hoppers have been a symbol of famine. If the locust laid as many eggs as some insects do, the young would consume everything the earth produces in a single year.

In 1869, a single swarm of grasshoppers passed over the Red Sea Flying low, the great army pressed inland, and soon settled down in such numbers as to completely cover every green object 2000 square miles in extent.

Mexico is a land of strange contrasts. For example, some regions have no rainfall, while other parts of the country are deluged with more than one hundred inches a year.

The Canadian radio recently announced the death of a woman in Toronto who specialized in furnishing the Government with weather reports during World War II. She had 79 years of work to her credit having learned the "how of it" from her father.

Many of us would consider weather forecasting a strange occupation, but it's not so strange as collecting hairs from the tails of famous race horses and that's what Mary Bligh of Florida does.

Nor is it stranger than the story of the MacPherson brothers of Cardigan who lived in the same house for years yet never spoke to each other. Why? They quareled over politics, divided their bachelor quarters and lived apart the rest of their lives.
