Elderly Residents Of Cornwall Pass Away
 Two of Cornwall's oldest and most highly respected citizens passed away recently and will be greatly missed by their families and host of friends.
 The first was Mr. Frederick Hyde, aged eighty. Although in failing health for several months, Mr. Hyde's death came as a distinct shock to his family and friends.
 A successful farmer and life-long resident of the district, the deceased was descended from West River's earliest pioneer families.
 Mourning his passing are his widow, three sisters, one brother and four children. The sisters are: Mrs. Golding Howard, New York; Mrs. David White and Mrs. Dr. Kings, City. The brother, Mr. Harry Hyde, is also a resident of Cornwall. Stanley and Elmer of Cornwall, Mrs. Watson Livingston, Clyde River, and Mrs. Wilbur Jones, Pownal, make up the surviving children. The service at the home and grave was conducted by his pastor, the Rev. K. M. Charman, who paid a fine tribute to the memory of the deceased and also spoke words of consolation to the bereaved family.
 Interment was made in the family plot overlooking the majestic West River and the fertile valley around where the deceased had passed a long and useful life in the service of God and humanity.
 Mr. Peter Inman departed this life on the morning of June 2nd after an illness of almost nine months in which he bore his sufferings uncomplainingly, trusting always in the goodness and mercy of God.
 The late Mr. Inman was born of pioneer parents in a log cabin near Argyle Shore where he had lived most of his life, except for a few years when he resided in London, Ont., and at Brockton, Mass. For the past 12 years he had been a resident of Cornwall. He received his schooling at Argyle Shore and as a lad in his teens was employed with his father as a fisherman. When he entered man's estate, he combined fishing and farming, making a success of the venture. His retirement took place at the time he came to this village. The deceased is survived by his wife who was formerly Emily Matheson of Rustico; one son, Dr. Mark Inman of London, Ont.; and one brother, Jack of Bonshaw.
 His largely attended funeral was held from Clyde River Baptist Church on Sunday June 4th, with interment taking place in the church cemetery. — F. H. M.

Maritime Optometrical Ass'n Meets

HALIFAX, June 5 — (CP) — Maritime optometrists were told today that they shouldn't have seen the things they did during their school days.
 Dr. Edwin Leonard of Newton, Mass., told the annual convention of the Maritime Optometrical Association that the majority of schools—including those in the Maritimes, from what he had seen—were far out-dated.
 "Take the teacher, for instance. She should be in the centre of the classroom, with the pupils seated around her. And black was no color for a blackboard; too hard on the eyes."
 Speaking on "The Co-ordinated Classroom," Dr. Leonard said school environment had a great effect on a child's development. Steps to improve this environment were being taken in the United States.
 At the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Optometrists Association held today, Ron Wallace, Halifax, president; Robert Wile, Liverpool, vice-president; and John Mulrooney, Halifax, secretary, were re-elected.
 Eli Boyanner of Saint John, N. B., a past president of the Canadian Association of Optometrists, also spoke today on the work of the national group.
 The convention continues tomorrow.

Speaking of the work of the Church in rescuing civilization from the disastrous results of the barbarian invasion, he stated: "In that dark twilight between the expiring gasp of ancient Rome and the strong birth-cry of the Catholic Middle Ages, the Church kept alive the flickering flame of Christian civilization; and that saving flame, fanned into incandescence by the Church and to civilization a lustre such as never before nor since have been known."
 Pointing out that the darkness of paganism has again been enveloping the world during the past six centuries, and that we are still groping frantically for a way out of the sickening gloom left in the dark aftermath of World War II, he said: "Truly, we are living at present in the twilight of civilization. But it is comforting to remind ourselves that in human history it often happens that the first rays of a bright, new dawn are mingled with the shadows of a twilight. Therefore there is still hope that the twilight that is our age will become a sunlit dawn, a dawn which in turn will become a beautiful and cloudless day of peace and enlightenment, the day of the great dawn and the great return, of peace to souls, peace to families, peace to our country, peace among nations."
 After having explained God's Providence for the governance of the world, he declared: "It was by looking high above the clouds of the sickening gloom and the Light of the world for guidance, by a practical recognition of Divine Providence, and by the submission of their wills to the God of Heaven and earth that men were rescued from the horrors of the dark ages and it is by a similar program of Christian living, by a return to Christ and His eternal principles of justice and charity that our Christian civilization can be saved from the hideous darkness that is again upon the face of our changing world. History repeats itself and it shall repeat itself in the crises of our present-day world."
