

Varied Views Expressed On Wilson's Big Victory

By REUTERS
World capitals see the Labor party's decisive victory in the British general election as heralding a strong government able to take firm measures on the economy and other problems.

Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, whose government proclaimed the colony independent of Britain nearly five months ago, remarked: "As long as the British people are happy with the result then I am happy."

But while many white Rhodesians took a "let's wait and see" attitude some feared the British government, with big majority and a fresh mandate, might use force against Rhodesia.

Washington officials were pleased the Labor had won a stable majority, believing a strong government would be able to take firm measures to safeguard the economy and strengthen Britain's role in international affairs.

Observers in Paris believed Labor's win had reduced the chances of Britain entering the European Common Market in the next few years.

In Bonn the opposition Social Democrats said strengthened efforts could be expected to bring the Common Market and the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) closer together.

At market headquarters in Brussels, officials of the executive commission hoped the government of Prime Minister Wilson would soon seek to reopen negotiations on entry into the community.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Labor's success would strengthen the party's left wing in the House of Commons and free their hands to put more effective influence on the government.

Observers believed the Kremlin, which has softened its original harsh attitude to the Labor government, now hopes Wilson's effective majority will tempt him to conduct a foreign policy more independent of the United States.

In Ottawa, there was acknowledgment of Wilson's victory during an exchange in the Commons.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party, prefaced a question with congratulations to the Wilson government.

He then asked Prime Minister Pearson whether he planned "strong representations" to assure maintenance of Canadian trade before Britain begins negotiations to enter the Common Market.

Pearson said he had no reason to believe there would be any change in trade relations between the countries being contemplated but if such should be the case, he would make the Canadian position clear to Prime Minister Wilson's middle-of-the-road government.

From an African viewpoint, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda said Labor's increased majority would enable the British government to take whatever action necessary to destroy the Smith regime in Rhodesia.

MESSAGE SENT

ria's military government, Maj. Gen. Johnson Aguiyi-Ironsi, said in a congratulatory message that Labor's enhanced majority showed the British people's desire for a just solution in Rhodesia.

Australian Prime Minister Harold Holt said the removal of uncertainty in an evenly-balanced parliament would strengthen Britain and benefit the Commonwealth generally.

In London, a strengthening of the pound and a rise in many stock prices were the first reactions in financial circles.

The only notable market decline was the steel industry which faces the almost certain prospect of re-nationalization.

Treasury chief James Callaghan told Parliament in November that a Labor government would implement re-nationalization when it had the majority to enable it to do so.

The Guardian, Charlottetown, Mon., April 4, 1966, 11 Libel Action Is Stated

MONTREAL (CP)—A libel action claiming $1,300,000 damages was filed here against the Toronto Telegram by lawyers for Willie Obront, Montreal businessman, and Obie's Meat Inc.

The action against the daily newspaper filed in Montreal Superior Court cites a report published March 22 based on the memoirs of Gerda Munsinger as they were obtained by the German magazine Neue Illustrierte.

The claim is for $1,000,000 punitive damages, $200,000 damage for Mr. Obront and $100,000 for Obie's Meat Inc.

Imported Cars Must Pay Duty

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister Benson said here cars imported into Canada by Canadians are subject to customs duty regardless of the charter service program because of a shortage of parts, says J. C. Gilmer, company president.

Mr. Gilmer said here the source of manufacture.

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who asked whether a car produced in Canada and shipped to the U.S. under the auto agreement could be purchased in the U.S. by a Canadian and imported into Canada duty-free.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) asked whether Canada is the only country in the world imposing duty on goods made in its own country.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order.

Opening lead—jack of hearts. Dummy play is generally considered more interesting than defensive play, but there are many hands where the defense also gets a chance to shine. Here is one played many years ago (1948). In Holland, with Martin Cats—West and Herman Filarski—East. Declarer won the heart lead with the queen and finessed the ten of spades, losing to the queen. Filarski returned a heart to the ace, and when declarer played another spade to the jack, East permitted it to win.

South now led a diamond from dummy, Filarski making the proper play of the queen, taken by declarer with the ace. Hoping that West had another spade, South led the seven, but Cats showed out and Filarski cashed the A-9.

East returned the deuce of diamonds, Cats wisely permitting declarer to win it with the jack. When South then cashed the king of hearts, this became the position:

North
♠ A K J 5
♥ 10
♦ K

West
♠ 10 9 8 7
♦ Q 2
♣ 8 4 2

South
♠ 7 6 5
♥ A J 10 9 5
♦ A K Q 3

At this point South had six tricks and needed three more. He led the seven of clubs.

If Cats had covered the seven with the eight, declarer would have made the contract by taking the ace and returning a low club. But Cats played the four instead.

Sensing the actual situation declarer went up with the ace, hoping to endplay East by continuing with the three. But Filarski countered this plan by dropping the ten on the ace and there was then nothing declarer could do to make the contract.

If he cashed the king of clubs, East would take the last two tricks, while if he played the three instead, West would win it with the eight to put South down two.
