—MaCLEAN — MacDOUGALL NUPTIALS—The marriage of Miss Isabel McLean, daughter of Mr. William McLean, Kensington, to Mr. James Lorne MacDougall, son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Jas. MacDougall, took place quietly at the home of Mrs. MacDougall on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. B. C. Salter officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white net and lace over tulle with light bodice, and her fingertip veil was held in place by a coronet of lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white flowers. After the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. MacDougall left for a motor trip through the Maritimes. Upon their return they will reside in Kensington, where Mr. MacDougall is accountant of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

—GRACIOUS ACT OF QUEEN ELIZABETH—There have been many instances shown of the graciousness of Their Majesties towards their subjects, regardless of their rank in life, during their tour across Canada, and two which the Guardian learned of during their visit to Charlottetown is worth recording. A gentleman from Summerside, who was standing by one of the windows of Government House happened to catch the eye of the Queen as she was looking out. The Queen with her own hands drew back the draperies so that she could have a better view and smiled at the gentleman outside, who returned the smile and bowed. He wished his daughter to have a glimpse of the Queen and beckoned to her where she was standing a little way off. The young lady ran up but by this time Her Majesty had turned to look out at another group further away. The young lady in her excitement and disappointment, slipped at the window; the Queen heard her and tapped back and gave one of her charming smiles. The King too, did what he could to make the people of Prince Edward Island at their ease. One gentleman from Summerside determined to have a good picture of the King, got as near as he could on the route and as the car bearing Their Majesties drove by he snapped them. The King saw him and turned his face toward the camera, raising his hand in salute. The pity of it was the car was travelling too fast for the picture to be a good one. S

He reported that the Judge of the Juvenile Court had committed a juvenile delinquent to a home in Richmond but had not been sent there yet as they were waiting for the authority from the Government that his board would be paid. —COLONISTS' (Continued from page 1)

their way to and from the ship, the King and Queen were given a royal reception from subjects who, residents of a Dominion until six years ago, became colonials in 1833 after the King and Queen showed their appreciation of it, and in a broadcast speech here, just on his arrival, King George demonstrated his sympathy toward the problems of the colony.

"I well know that in recent years, like other parts of the world, Newfoundland has suffered from a period of severe economic stress, but just inside the entrance to the capital. But the qualities of courage and endurance which have never failed the people of this country in the past will, I am confident, enable them to more than surmount their difficulties.

The King spoke of his personal interest in the people of Newfoundland, his "deep sympathy with them in the trials which they have had to face and my appreciation of their loyalty."

Tangible Remembrances

He and the Queen left behind them two tangible remembrances of their visit. In the park around Newfoundland's monument to its war dead, each planted an oak that had been brought from England three years ago. "I am glad to plant a tree from England," the Queen observed as she oversaw the embedding of its roots in the soil.

Ten miles from here, cars were parked in a line fully a mile long as Newfoundlanders crowded in for a farewell burst out over the water as Their Majesties left the land, aboard the little coastal steamer, because the water had roughened up too much to use the naval barge.

The King wore the undress uniform of an admiral of the fleet. The Queen wore the same costume she had on all through the brief Newfoundland visit—a dress of Parisian make with wool coat and off-

Why Have SORE FEET?

Both showed a disregard of the weather, as they had done at times on their Canadian tour. Scattered showers of rain struck their route as they drove into St. John's from Holyrood, but the top of their automobile stayed down so Newfoundlanders could get a better look at the Royal pair in St. John's itself. The rain held off, but skies stayed overcast during the day.

It was blowing a lively gale by the time the Empress had got underway and had steamed around Cape Francis with her escort to St. John's a last glimpse of the Royal flotilla. The night was pitch black, and nothing much was to be seen except the lights of the Empress and a brilliant searchlight display by the warships, as they ran as the bottle-necked harbor three miles off land.

Newfoundland returned the gesture with a blazing bonfire display on their Signal Hill near here. The red light of the flames could be seen for miles at sea, following the Empress and her escort as they sailed off toward the horizon.

Girl Guide Entertainment At Summerside

The three Summerside Girl Guide Companies put on a splendid entertainment in the High School auditorium on Friday evening for the purpose of raising funds for the Prince County Game Camp.

There was a large attendance and some very fine compliments were heard on the splendid performance. The play, "The Clock Shop Courtship" was very strikingly presented by six Girl Guides with eight extras and chorists.

The girls were in costume and were in a very colorful array. Adele Bowness and Irene Allen as Dutch Clocks had the leading parts as Gretchen and Hans and acted their parts with ease and grace. Diane Downing as an alarm clock, Gweneth Davies made a charming cuckoo clock. Marjorie Letukey was the old grandfather clock. Eleanor Kelly was in the role of Clock Maker, and Kathleen Allen represented Father Time. The stage represented a clock shop with the clocks making merry among themselves.

Eight Girl Guides helped in the songs of the clocks, and were Zita Silliphant, Catherine Lecky, Frances Gallant, Sheila Callaghan, Anna Pope, Ruth Kelly, Shirley Callbeck and Constance Crew. Mrs. Callaghan played for the songs.

The program opened with a delightful song by the old Brownies, "The Roly Poly Polar Bear." Then followed the play, in which members of all troops took part.

During intermission Mrs. Joseph Callaghan and Mrs. Roy Silliphant played a duet. Folk dancing from Holland in costume with Adele Bowness and Irene Allen and the chorus taking part.

Song by the 3rd Company, "Now Is the Month of May" accompanied by Miss MacDonald on the piano. "The Hike Song" and "Cradle Song" by the 2nd Company, accompanied by Mrs. Roy Silliphant on the piano.

"God Save the King."

North Bedeque W.M.S. Observes Golden Jubilee

Friday was a red letter day in the lives of members of the Women's Missionary Society of North Bedeque in the celebration of the founding of the Society 50 years ago.

The meeting took place in the historic church of North Bedeque, which is one of the finest and largest country churches on Prince Edward Island. The present church was built about forty five years ago and it was in its predecessor that the Missionary Society was organized by Rev. Wm. Tufts on January 10th, 1839.

There were thirty six members at that time, and it was at that time that the body of the formation of that body in Canada.

The observance of the 50th anniversary was postponed from January for various reasons.

Mrs. A. G. MacCaul, president, presided and Mrs. Charles MacQuarrie, secretary, gave a sketch of the history of the Society in its early days. Mrs. A. J. Matheson, president of the Women's Missionary Society on P.E.I., was the guest speaker. Rev. D.K. Ross, Cornwall, Rev. L. E. G. Davies, Summerside, and Rev. G.A. Christie, Lot 16, were present and took part in the service.

The Sketch of Early Society

From the first minutes of the Society Mrs. MacQuarrie gleaned the following facts: That on January 10th, 1839, Rev. William Tufts, pastor of North Bedeque Presbyterian Church gathered a small group of women together and organized an auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

The first president was Mrs. Harriet Clark; vice president, Mrs. James Stavert; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Montgomerie; secretary, Mrs. William Callbeck who died recently, would have been present had the anniversary been held in January.

And scripture was the minutes note of the fact that Miss Bell Ross was the first delegate to represent the Society at the annual conference of the Presbytery.

Mention was also made of the small attendance. Another item of interest was that Mrs. Daniel Stewart of Summerside, president of the Presbytery of that time visited the North Bedeque Society and in the course of her address succeeded that each auxiliary bring a special subscription to the general fund. This said Mrs. MacQuarrie must have been the origin of the question box. Another entry noted that members were given life memberships for various reasons. One of interest to the present members, said Mrs. MacQuarrie, was that of Mrs. Laidly widow of the late Hon. Alexander Laidly, now residing in Vancouver, who was made a life member in commemoration of the safe return of her sons from overseas.

In the minutes of 1904, mention was made of the formation of a missionary society by the students at McGill University.

In 1908 the first Mission Band at North Bedeque was organized by Mrs. Macintosh, wife of the pastor of the church at that time.

In 1914 the first Red Cross Society was formed. In 1918 the North Bedeque Society entertained the Presbytery. There were eight secretaries in the 50 years.

Mrs. MacQuarrie concluded her sketch with a plea to the present Society to go forward and carry on the work so well begun by the charter members of the Society.

Honoured Charter Members

A very beautiful tribute was made to the living and deceased charter members with two lovely bouquets of flowers, red for the living members and white for those who had passed on.

Little Patricia Clarke, great granddaughter of the first president, Mrs. Harriet Clarke, and granddaughter of Mrs. Artemas Clark, plucked the white blooms one by one as the names of the deceased members were called out by Mrs. MacQuarrie and laid them in a basket held by little Margaret MacMurdo, granddaughter of Mrs. Thomas MacMurdo, the oldest surviving charter member.

The hymn "We Cannot Think of Them as Dead" was sung with bowed heads by the congregation as a dedicatory prayer.

Messages and contributions were acknowledged from relatives of charter members.
