

MR. AND MRS. C. M. CROCKETT
Bride's Uncle Officiates
At The Wedding Ceremony

The Church of the Most Holy Redeemer was decorated with arrangements of white summer flowers on July 22nd when Isabel Maridith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard MacDonald, and Charles Merritt, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Crockett conferred on each other the sacrament of holy matrimony.

Rev. George A. MacDonald, uncle of the bride officiated at the ceremony celebrating the nuptial mass and imparting the blessing. The gold wedding bands used in the double-ring ceremony were hand-fashioned for the couple by the mother of the groom.

The organist was Mr. Alex MacLean and Misses Margaret and Patricia Grant sang hymns during the mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her floor length gown of white de-lustered satin with Sabrina neckline to points over the fingers. She wore a mantilla of French lace and carried a cascade bouquet of Madonna lilies.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Farmer wore a ballerina length gown of white satin with blue cummerbund and matching hat. Her bouquet was of white carnations. Dr. Kenneth Grant, cousin of the groom was best man. The guests were ushered by Mr. Garth Crockett and Mr. Eugene MacDonald.

The mother of the bride chose a rose lace over taffeta dress with matching feather hat and corsage of white carnations centered with pink roses. The groom's mother wore a dress of beige lace with matching picture hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception for over one hundred guests was held on the beautiful grounds of the bride's home. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. George A. MacDonald.

Pouring were Mrs. A.R. Grant, Mrs. R.R. Bell, Miss Mabel Gorman, Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Gordon MacMillan and Mrs. Ern-

HAIRDO HIGHLIGHT
As the coiffure looms large in fashion interest we find the leading milliners designing for it special hats and headdresses. Hat-tie Carnegie designs a "hille" in the form of a whimsical evening cap to top the carefully tousled hairdo. This summer evening delight is a black velvet cap, bow-shaped and heightened with a spire of blue blossoms.

WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS

Seems That Our Young Folks Are Doing Fine

Ruhamah S. Frank

Before 'Old Home Week' arrives with its emphasis naturally on the not so young, let us take a look at our young people. It's time we quit harping on their shortcomings and realized their fine qualities. (Incidentally, can they be held responsible for what's going on in the world? Juvenile Delinquency? Of course, but even in New York (and probably London and Paris and other great cities where crime flourishes the percentage of law breakers is very small.)

Some day I shall really try to go into this subject but now let us consider the hundreds of teenagers on the Island who prefer to work rather than loaf these lovely summer days. Except during week-ends it is difficult to find a young person—a teenager—taking his ease at the beach. (Older folks and harassed young mothers keeping an eye on their children delicious with sunshine and salt air and mischief, crowd the shores. The young folks at than a paying job. It should be in line with their interests and ambitions and abilities. A vacation job in a hospital can open their eyes to what is expected of a nurse, a doctor, a technician. Office work can show them whether they are fitted for it permanently. Work with children can give them a glimpse of their attitudes in that direction. And summer hotel jobs can be invaluable as a preview to what is needed in the big field of getting along with and pleasing people. Good luck and a worth-while vacation to our young people—and many happy hours too, to bask in the sun. Good health is still the firmest foundation on which to build a happy future.

KEEP AT IT

It is true the jobs are there to take—and plenty for girls as well as boys. But the jobs aren't thrown over when the going gets rough—as it is bound to become during our tourist season. Our young people haven't grown soft—they aren't willing to hang onto their parents. I see them in offices in shops as well as at summer resorts—and often they look tired—but they keep at it.

They are a fine lot—our young folks—but they need guidance. Parents, teachers, friends, can help them find work that is more

Parker-O'Brien Marriage Solemnized At Halifax

A pretty wedding took place recently when Rev. R.W. Braine united in marriage Marjorie Christine O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. O'Brien and Donald James Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Parker, at St. John's United Church, Halifax.

The organist was Ross Nelson MacLean, who accompanied Arthur Holly, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pearly-lined peau de soie in antique white. It was made on princess lines, with a yoke and long sleeves of chantilly lace. The chapel length veil was held in place with a Celopatra headress of seed pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

The maid of honor was Olivia Dunbar, while Mrs. Graham O'Brien and Margaret Parker were bridesmaids. The attendants were dressed alike in waltz-length gowns of peach pure silk organza with matching hats, white shoes and gloves, and bouquets of white and cream shasta daisies.

Dr. Ross Parker, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Graham O'Brien, Keith Allen, Walter Bergman and Ronald Parker.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. O'Brien chose a gown of blue crepe with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Parker wore a gown of beige with brown accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

The reception was held at the home of the bride, where Mr. Braine proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling, the bride wore a blue tulle, two-piece dress with white accessories and a corsage of white rose buds.

The bride and groom left on a wedding trip through the province, following which they will return to Halifax where Mr. Parker is on the executive staff of Zeiler's Ltd.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Farm Life In Any Age Produces Great People

The farming—how steeped and dyed in its charms our farmers are! Are the days long and seemingly unending to some? Here the farmers' hours are winged measures of time, the only regret expressed over their passing being that they have been so fleeting.

Are their days tiresome? Busy always, and sometimes obviously wearying to the flesh, but never to the heart, when about the affairs of the farm. Losses and crosses there are, hopes deferred, hopes dashed aside, but always there rises that "hope eternal" which declares, "Tomorrow...next week...next year things will be better. You'll see!"

Is the work of the farm pure drudgery? Now, with machines to aid at every turn, it is not nearly so demanding on the strength as once. Nor is the work more menial than is that in other occupations and callings. Lowly perhaps—"of the earth, earthy" but in hand, with God?"

"One has to like it—there's the rub!" a salesman at the door commented the other day with a smile, looking off to the fields where folks were at the haying.

"One has to like any vocation to be happy at it" we offered. "Oh, I wouldn't say that" he twinkled. "I find that depends more and less on the pay, and the hours! Too uncertain the returns, too long the hours for me, the farming. You can have it!" he chuckled.

So we "had it" today—had the August loveliness at open door and window as we went to our Saturday chores; as in a golden bowl that was not plate but plastic and to us equally, perhaps even more satisfying, we mixed our "Sunday cake" and went on to set the loaf that would be fresh and toothsome for James' return home to his meals.

And the haying crew had it at Rob's—had another of August's perfect days, which in such fine succession have done everything to promote their work of the field. "A few more days like this one said this evening, "and we'll have it straightened away for the year. It's been a goodly harvest. We have had years of more but none that gave us better weather for its work."

And in tangible gain! Many comfortably full, in intangible those satisfactions and pleasures of heart and soul, peculiarly the farmer's own to find and share. He "listens in on life", and "he dwells there in his own home apart". From paltry imitations, well-strife. And with his heart attached to Nature's heart. Is quiet content to listen to a life.

He listens to the dancing feet of Spring. And hears the voice of thrushes speak the earth. He hears the message that wood thrush brings. And while he sits beside a friendly hearth. His ears are gladdened by news of birth. Of song birds, tender leaders, countless bees. Of tiny wild things, and the mirth. Of laughing owls brooding from the trees.

He views with pride his fields of grain. His sturdy sons, his daughter, his dear mate; And counts the red that in their cheeks his gain. From rising early and from "ing late". Until Monday— — — — — Day Good-night.
