

CHARLOTTETOWN'S FLOAT IN THE GREY CUP PARADE

Diefenbaker Heaps Praise On City's Float In Parade

The City of Charlottetown float which was seen by more than a million viewers on television Sunday in the Grey Cup parade in Toronto, was also brought to national attention by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

The Prime Minister, speaking over the nationwide television network said that of all the floats entered in the parade "the City of Charlottetown float was the one that impressed me the most."

"I am proud that Charlottetown was the cradle of confederation and that this great nation had its beginnings in a historic meeting in the Provincial Building in that city nearly 100 years ago."

"I also think the float was a symbol of the unity of the country," the Prime Minister stated.

The float as it passed by the cameras in the parade was well described by the commissioner.

both on television and radio, who also pointed out that the float was the largest in the parade and had attracted much attention on its way to Toronto from Prince Edward Island.

It may be recalled last year the float was just coming into view when the program was interrupted by a TV commercial.

Charlottetown gained another honor Saturday when Prime Minister John Diefenbaker singled out the Charlottetown entry as his favorite float in the parade.

"I am doubly thrilled by the Prime Minister's reference to the float," Mayor A. Wainson Grude said.

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"The advertising and publicity value of this project cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

N.B. Byelection Scheduled Today

HAMPTON, N. B. (CP) — Kings County voters will elect their legislators members today in a two-party provincial by-election contest for two seats.

Liberal candidates Myles V. Jenkins and John W. Turnbull are opposing Progressive Conservative John B.M. Baxter and George E. Horton. Voting hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the county court bench and registration of R.C.L. Fairweather to contest Royal constituency in the federal election. He won the seat. Both were PC members of the Legislature. The other Kings seat is held by PC leader C.B. Sherwood.

The Legislature standing: Liberals 31, PC 19, vacant two.

Outlook Brighter For Gas Victims

CORNWALL, (CP) — A threat of pneumonia among persons who inhaled chlorine gas subsided Sunday as normal conditions returned to a Cornwall district hit by a gas leakage Friday.

Hospital officials said none was believed to have developed pneumonia, though most of the 17 persons still in hospital were under observation as a precaution.

The deadly, yellow-green chlorine gas began seeping from a railway tank car late Friday and caused police and firemen to evacuate 200 persons and seal a 30-block section in the northwest of this seaway city 4,000.

Masked rescue workers took 100 persons to hospital. Twenty-seven were admitted, including nine children.

Among those released from hospital was Emile Fortin, a Cornwall fireman who gave his mask to a woman and then collapsed at the wheel of an ambulance after driving out of the gas zone.

An investigation has been opened to discover what caused the leak in the tank car. The car is still on the siding where the incident occurred, awaiting clearance from the board of transport commissioners, a d Canadian Pacific Railway before it can be moved.

The plan, an Eastern Airline plane en route from Charlottetown, missed a runway by yards and crashed into a field in a patchy fog. At the last instant, the pilot nudged the motors, apparently in a desperate attempt to regain altitude, but it was too late.

The tall hit the ground, then the whole fuselage. Some passengers were hurled outside, still strapped to their seats.

Fishermen Friday set traps for the sixteenth season along the 200-mile stretch of coastline, but were not permitted to haul them until Saturday.

Price varied between 45 and 50 cents a pound in some communities. This is about 10 cents higher than the opening price last year. Catches of up to 800 pounds were reported.

Island-born Doctor Honored

DR. LANDRIGAN
Dr. Paul Landrigan, Toronto, a native of Cambridge, P.E.I., has been accepted as a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians.

News to this effect was received Saturday by his brother, Rev. Lawrence W. Landrigan of St. Dunstan's University.

Dr. Landrigan leaves Canada in late December on a McLaughlin Fellowship to spend a year observing techniques and methods of medicine practice in British and continental treatment centres. His wife, the former Mary MacNeil of Sydney, N.S., and his family will accompany him.

Steward Describes Crash-Scene Rescue

NEW YORK (AP) — Authorities still puzzled Sunday over the cause of a sinister crash that killed 25 persons at Idlewild airport Friday night while making a fog-shrouded landing described as the type "done every day."

Twenty-six persons, including two Canadians, escaped with their lives in the flaming crash which occurred as the plane was attempting a landing without the assistance of two ground systems that officials said were inoperative at the time.

The plane, an Eastern Airline plane en route from Charlottetown, missed a runway by yards and crashed into a field in a patchy fog. At the last instant, the pilot nudged the motors, apparently in a desperate attempt to regain altitude, but it was too late.

The tall hit the ground, then the whole fuselage. Some passengers were hurled outside, still strapped to their seats.

Fishermen Friday set traps for the sixteenth season along the 200-mile stretch of coastline, but were not permitted to haul them until Saturday.

Price varied between 45 and 50 cents a pound in some communities. This is about 10 cents higher than the opening price last year. Catches of up to 800 pounds were reported.

The plan, an Eastern Airline plane en route from Charlottetown, missed a runway by yards and crashed into a field in a patchy fog. At the last instant, the pilot nudged the motors, apparently in a desperate attempt to regain altitude, but it was too late.

The tall hit the ground, then the whole fuselage. Some passengers were hurled outside, still strapped to their seats.

Fishermen Friday set traps for the sixteenth season along the 200-mile stretch of coastline, but were not permitted to haul them until Saturday.

Price varied between 45 and 50 cents a pound in some communities. This is about 10 cents higher than the opening price last year. Catches of up to 800 pounds were reported.

The plan, an Eastern Airline plane en route from Charlottetown, missed a runway by yards and crashed into a field in a patchy fog. At the last instant, the pilot nudged the motors, apparently in a desperate attempt to regain altitude, but it was too late.

The tall hit the ground, then the whole fuselage. Some passengers were hurled outside, still strapped to their seats.

Steward Describes Crash-Scene Rescue

Others jumped out, their clothing aflame. PRAISE STEWARD
Many passengers praised Canadian stewardess Helen Fournier, 21, for her courage in leading many to safety as flames engulfed the wreckage. Miss Fournier is a native of Dalhousie, N.S., who now lives in Forest Hills, N.Y.

The other Canadian survivor is passenger John Deir, 38, of Edmonton. He was taken to hospital suffering from facial burns, a broken bone in his head, a broken knee and a broken shoulder. He was reported in fair condition.

Miss Fournier, badly shaken up and taken to hospital to recuperate, told Saturday to the harrowing moments after the plane hit the ground.

"We kept pushing passengers out," she said. "First one out and then another one."

"Blue-white flames had swept into the compartment."

"When everyone was out that could see, I jumped to the ground. I ran and ran and then I stopped and said, 'No, I can't do this. I must help them.'"

"I was man on fire," she said. "His whole body was burning. I put him out."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

"It was the sixth major aviation disaster in the world in 1962, bringing the total death toll to 206."

Premier Scoffs At Claims In Mess' of Finance

Editor's note — This story was written for The Guardian by a Canadian Press Staff Writer, who is proving a political cover for the political scene here for Dec. 10 provincial election.

By DAL WARRINGTON
Conservative Premier Walter Shaw scoffs at Liberal allegations that the next Island government finances are in a "mess."

In a weekend interview he described as "simply ridiculous" the contention of Liberal leader Alex Matheson that the Island's treasury has been wrecked in the last three years by mismanagement and patronage.

"The Liberals are pulling that stuff out of some politician's hat," the Premier said. "The finances of Prince Edward Island are in a good state."

He said this was apparent when the public accounts are presented at the next Legislative session early in 1963.

Prince Edward Islanders vote in a provincial election one week from today. Mr. Matheson has accused Mr. Shaw of wanting to get the election over and away before the accounts are revealed.

"I charges the government with spending beyond its means for schools, roads, public buildings and industrial plants."

Officers and directors of the Kings County Federation of Agriculture are seen here following their annual meeting held at Cardigan on Friday night. The meeting, which had more than fifty of their members in attendance was said to be one of the more interesting annual meetings for some years. There were representatives from all areas of Kings present. Left to right: Russell M'Ellin,

Howe Ray (director); S. Sutherland, St. Peter's, (second vice-president); J.E. Melish, Union Road, (vice-president); Hugh MacKinnon, Robb (President); Marcel

Myrart, Upper Montserrat (director); and Reg. Lewis, St. Peter's (director). Missing from the picture are directors as well as the secretary, Mrs. Annie MacQuarrie, Rosemeath.

Officers and directors of the Kings County Federation of Agriculture are seen here following their annual meeting held at Cardigan on Friday night. The meeting, which had more than fifty of their members in attendance was said to be one of the more interesting annual meetings for some years. There were representatives from all areas of Kings present. Left to right: Russell M'Ellin,

Howe Ray (director); S. Sutherland, St. Peter's, (second vice-president); J.E. Melish, Union Road, (vice-president); Hugh MacKinnon, Robb (President); Marcel

Myrart, Upper Montserrat (director); and Reg. Lewis, St. Peter's (director). Missing from the picture are directors as well as the secretary, Mrs. Annie MacQuarrie, Rosemeath.

Officers and directors of the Kings County Federation of Agriculture are seen here following their annual meeting held at Cardigan on Friday night. The meeting, which had more than fifty of their members in attendance was said to be one of the more interesting annual meetings for some years. There were representatives from all areas of Kings present. Left to right: Russell M'Ellin,

Howe Ray (director); S. Sutherland, St. Peter's, (second vice-president); J.E. Melish, Union Road, (vice-president); Hugh MacKinnon, Robb (President); Marcel

Myrart, Upper Montserrat (director); and Reg. Lewis, St. Peter's (director). Missing from the picture are directors as well as the secretary, Mrs. Annie MacQuarrie, Rosemeath.

Chinese Troops Pulled Back

TEZPUR, India (AP) — Red China's troops appeared Sunday to be pulling back at promised in at least some areas of the Himalayan borderland. Indian patrols cautiously scooped the foothills.

An authoritative source in this town near the disputed Sino-Indian border said the Chinese seem to have withdrawn 20 miles at some points on their way back from the frontline positions they gained in their massive thrusts into northeast India two weeks ago.

With the truce for those with draws at hand, Prime Minister Nehru sharply rejected key points Saturday and asked Premier Chou En-lai's government for further clarification. Nehru said China's provisions would leave it in possession of the fruits of aggression 2,000 square miles in the Ladakh area of Kashmir in the north.

The Chinese intended to stand pat in Ladakh, the high and barren site of a highway they have built to link their Sinkiang province with Chinese-occupied Tibet. But they proposed to give up the bulk of their gains in the northeast.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

The U.S. and Britain demand a treaty-backed inspection system.

Third Food Plant Coming To Prov.

Premier Walter R. Shaw said Saturday night that the province's third large food processing plant will be established in the immediate future.

Speaking in a free media political telecast which dealt with the relationship between property and the aggressiveness of the government, he said "in the immediate future you will see a third large food processing plant go up in the western part of the province."

Ten days ago, the premier announced that the government will build a $10-million dollar food processing plant in Montserrat for the British Columbia firm, Fraser Valley Poultry Products Company Limited, on a lease-purchase basis.

In 1960, the government built a similar plant at New Annapolis for S.E.M.A.B. (Canada Limited), also on a lease-purchase agreement.

Premier Shaw said that Prince Edward Island's "well known" has become one of the major food baskets of Canada. In other parts of the country, agriculture is being crowded out by industry. With each passing year, Canada will look more and more to this province as its best source of food."

He said the government will continue to experiment with new crops and new markets.

"You hear I said by many, 'It is better that the day of the small farm is past, but I think it is just coming into its own.'"

He said the government will continue to experiment with new crops and new markets.

"You hear I said by many, 'It is better that the day of the small farm is past, but I think it is just coming into its own.'"

He said the government will continue to experiment with new crops and new markets.

"You hear I said by many, 'It is better that the day of the small farm is past, but I think it is just coming into its own.'"

He said the government will continue to experiment with new crops and new markets.

"You hear I said by many, 'It is better that the day of the small farm is past, but I think it is just coming into its own.'"

He said the government will continue to experiment with new crops and new markets.

"You hear I said by many, 'It is better that the day of the small farm is past, but I think it is just coming into its own.'"

He said the government will continue to experiment with new crops and new markets.

ADDRESS DELIVERED TO HAGGIS

Rev. Donald Campbell, minister of Zion Presbyterian Church in Charlottetown delivered the traditional address to the Haggis at a St. Andrew's Day dinner at Scotland's patron Saint was honored at the Charlottetown Hotel. The guest speaker Heath MacQuarrie, MP for Queens and parliamentary secretary to the secretary of state for external affairs spoke on liberty and the Scottish tradition. The Caledonian Club president, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.

ident, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.

ident, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.

ident, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.

ident, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.

ident, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.

ident, Howard MacKinnon, presided. Here Mr. Campbell makes appropriate remarks to the Haggis while Mrs. Walter R. Shaw, left, and Mrs. George Dewar, listen.