The Groom's Brother
Officiates At Marriage

Saint Dunstan's Basilica was the scene of a pretty fall wedding Saturday November 28th at 9.45 a.m. when Joan Mary Vail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Vail, Charlottetown, P.E.I., became the bride of Louis Edwin Hammill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reverse Hammill, Freetown, P.E.I.

Rev. Preston Hammill, brother of the groom celebrated the nuptial Mass and performed the marriage ceremony.

Mrs. Joseph Dougan played the wedding music and Mr. Frank MacIntyre was soloist.

The altar was adorned with blue and gold vigil lights, pink and white carnations and multi-colored fall flowers. The guest pews were attractively marked with pastel shades of yellow and green bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father looked both beautiful and charming in a full length gown of white brocaded satin with sweetheart neckline and sleeves tapering to points over the wrists. Her finger-tip veil was held by a tiny pearl-studded crown. Her bouquet was of red and white carnations.

The bridesmaid was Miss Frances Doucette, who wore a turquoise brocaded satin gown. Her gloves and headress were yellow and she carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a navy blue crepe dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Dames Arsenault, Coleman, P.E.I. wore navy with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Queen Hotel. The table was centered with a three tier wedding cake with miniature bride and groom.

How Long Before The Robins Come Home Again?

"The Winter's wearing away" a visitor of the afternoon offered. "Oh I know" he smiled "we're not actually into the winter yet, but it's more like winter these times than the fall."

And we recalled a query of one of the children this morning: "How long will it be before the robins come home?"

And James' reply: "It won't be too long. We'll be so busy we'll hardly notice the time between slip away."

This was a pretty day. The sky was blue-a deep blue, deeper than that of the wing of the jays that flitted among the gray of the orchard trees. And below our world of valley lay in a black and white etching...dark of spruce and fir, white of the snow-covered fields.

"When you see the spruces keep dark like that" an old-timer of farmer to the yard remarked "we may be sure the 'cather something like the hog prices a late!" he smiled "mostly unsettled!"

James came from a piggy bank, closing the door gently behind him.

"And what are the farmers at today?" the visiting one asked "At the moment?" James smiled "they're welcoming a little piglets to the world. The la of them, as it happens. There's no more until on in the new year."

"Good luck?"

"O, average," James replied. "They're something you can't count much on until they get a day or two over their heads." He surveyed hastily the sky and surroundings. "There have the weather on their side," he offered.

"I think I prefer a piece of home-made bread and molasses. I've been reading, there's many a mineral and good vitamin in that combination. In fact this authority said the mothers of the long ago who gave their child a piece of bread, or bannock and molasses, instead of cake or cookies was doing him no end of a favor. It was extremely wholesome fare. I like it, Ellen, and I find the flavor improves" he grinned boyishly "if there is a spread of butter on top!"

And our piglets nursed, and napped, and grew, as the mild
