CHINA AND JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.

Japan dates of Nov. 25th state that the silk difficulty between Japanese and foreign silk merchants was adjusted by a compromise.

There are rumors of changes in the Japanese Government. A well informed native journal says that it is likely Saigo will be Minister of War; Ogana of Foreign Affairs, and Yoshinae, at present Minister at Washington, the head of the Finance Department.

An outrage has been committed by natives of the Alentian Islands on the crew of the sea otter hunting schooner Diana. The crew on landing were fired upon. Several of the Japanese crew were killed. One of the foreign officers received eight balls, and another was badly wounded.

Heat Without Fire.

A paragraph has been going the rounds describing a newly invented machines for degenerating heat without fire. The paragraph goes on to say, "It is an iron cylinder about one foot long and a foot in diameter. The bottom of the cylinder is a hardened plate, upon which another of the same diameter turns, the pressure being regulated by a screw, according to the power to be applied and the amount of heat desired. All the space not taken up by the wheel and shaft is filled with water. As soon as the wheel is set in motion the friction of the two plates brings the water up to a higher temperature, and the cylinder becomes a stove, radiates heat from the whole of its exterior surface. Of course this machine can only be used where there is steam power to run the friction wheel."

The comment of the Mechanical Engineer on the above is, that coal is burned in the boiler that runs the engine which drives the machine, and that the latter is expected to return not only the amount of coal burned to run it, but more in addition, a fallacy that carries its own refutation; all of which is true in its general application if the premises in the first statement are correct. But we do not believe that steam is the only power intended for operating the machine. About a year ago we were shown a simular device.
