Election Demands Heard In London

LONDON (CP) — Fresh demands for an immediate election and signs of a split in the opposition Labor party kept British Commons debate on the boil Friday.

Frank Cousins, a leading trade unionist, said an immediate election is necessary to enable the British people to decide the country's hottest political issue.

Cousins added his voice to a chorus that picks up volume daily. At the same time Prime Minister Macmillan, who has no intention of resigning until the Commons question is settled, gained unpopularity in the Labor party.

This came with an announcement by the Labor Commons Market committee, representing some 30 socialist MPs, in effect to drop the idea of an early election. The committee chairman, Roy Jenkins, told reporters his group wants to continue negotiations with Europe on the basis of "getting in and not staying out" of the Common Market.

'Liberals Emphasize Future, Union National Past In Que.

By JOHN YORSTON

QUEBEC (CP) — The Liberals will be emphasizing the future and the Union Nationale the immediate past in the Nov. 27 provincial general election campaign, members of the two parties have indicated.

The election was called, with scant warning, Wednesday by Premier Lesage who said the government had decided to seek a "decisive mandate" to take over "all private power companies."

Daniel Johnson, Union Nationale leader, said the government should not forget all who have suffered in the past two years. He said the broken promises, the increased taxes, the disordered finances, unemployment, the paralyzed school commissions, neglected rural roads, social assistance cheques refused at the banks, salaries late by many weeks, patronage which is dropping up everywhere, and so on.

The Liberals, it was indicated, plan to counter this with proposals for the future. "We will emphasize what remains to be done," one Liberal said, "in addition to expatriation."

Both parties spent the day mapping strategy and getting the machinery going after the election announcement.

Mr. Lesage's election schedule will not be ready for at least two weeks, the premier net party officials to being laying plans.

The premier will keep an engagement to speak at $50-a-night in Montreal, but it will not be considered as the official start of his campaign.

Officially, he is expected to open his campaign in either the Gaspé Peninsula or the Abitibi region, the two areas with the greatest electricity problems in Quebec.

The Union Nationale says its party machinery is almost ready because Mr. Johnson has told his supporters he will stand for an election Nov. 26. The opposition leader will open a campaign in the Gaspé with a rally at Anjou Sunday, preceded by a two-day caucus of opposition members at Matane, Sept. 29 and 30. He will visit the Magdalen Islands. All these engagements were made several weeks ago.

Standing in the 95-seat assembly at dissolution was Liberal 54, Union Nationale, 40, Independent, one.

WINS DEGREE

Mr. Beaton is a graduate of Summerside High School and the Nova Scotia Agricultural College. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S.S. Beaton, 27 Granville Street, Summerside.

The announcement came in a short list after both countries gave their versions of a border clash Thursday night on the border's eastern sector. The Communists said one of their officers had been killed and one soldier wounded. India said three Indian soldiers were wounded.

Although the Indian government accepted the place and date for the clash, it was suggested by the Chinese, it appeared to raise objections to the Communists' insistence that it talks "take place" without any preconditions.

Argentina

Guido's leaders were reported by their spokesman to be clinging to their views that any early elections—even those promised by Guido a year from now—would bring back followers of former dictator Juan D. Peron and a sharp swing to the left for Argentina.

Rebels demanded that Guido be freed of heavy military influence on his decisions and a return to full constitutional government with early elections.

Troops Converge

The rebel radio issued Oniz's proclamation as loyalist columns were converging between Villa Rosas and Plaza outside the city.

Friends said Guido, 52, was held after seven months trying to reconcile differences among the military commanders who ousted his friend, Juan Frondizi, from the presidency.

Guido holds the powers of a strongman with the dissolution of congress but has the spirit of a compromiser.
