Notes at the Churches.

[As it is impossible for THE EXAMINER to have reporters in all the churches, we shall be glad if the respective pastors or others interested will furnish us on Monday mornings with notes likely to be specially interesting to the reading public.]

The Rev. K. J. Grant, of the Presbyterian Mission to the Hindoos of Trinidad, in presenting its claims in Zion Church on Sabbath morning, emphasized the advantages of prosecuting this Hindoo mission on American soil. Separated from the masses, the people more readily give ear and pause to consider. Family influence is but little felt. Their caste, which imposes such formidable restraints in India has lost much of its power. The Brahmin and the Chamar and intermediate castes, too, are huddled together in the same ship. They eat food cooked by unholy hands. On their arrival, they work side by side in the same cane fields, and whilst the high caste man may exact and outwardly receive some marks of respect, yet he is conscious that life in the Western world is not favourable to his pretensions. Further, little opposition is shown by parents to have their children educated in the Christian faith. Mr. Grant mentioned an instance in which a boy of twelve years came to him to be baptized. The missionary went to seek the concurrence of the father, who was very friendly and yet a heathen. The father beckoned the missionary aside and said, confidentially, "If my boy now becomes a Christian, my friends will all reproach me, and I can't answer them and he is too young to give them answer that will put them to shame; but let him be patient, go to school and learn more of the religion of this country, and when he can answer my friends in words that will make them hang their heads, then you can do for him what you please. I belong to the gods of India, but my child belongs to this country; and if it prefers, can worship the gods of this country. The boy is still at school unbaptized.

Mr. Grant told of the happy union of educational and evangelistic efforts, each had its own sphere, and one was the complement of the other. Nearly 1,000 children are under instruction. Ten years ago about a score. In educational work planters show wonderful liberality—endorsement from this source, is not only gratifying to the missionaries but also of the value of the work. The Government recognizes their work, and for two years have made liberal grants. The contents give a very substantial proof of their interest by contributions to the mission funds. Already out of their poverty those in Mr. Grant's district who, ten years ago were entirely ignorant of the gospel, now pay one third of his salary. Gratifying testimony was also borne to the work of Mr. Falconer, formerly Minister in Zion Church. His work is among the Scotch residents in Port of Spain, but he ceases not to use his great influence in favor of the Coolie Mission.

At St. James' Church (Powell street) on Sunday evening, the service was also of a missionary character, the minister conducting the devotional exercises, and the Rev. Mr. Grant, missionary to Trinidad delivered the address. The audience was large and attentive, there being members of some of the other congregations of the city present. The collection taken up for the special object was $30, which has, we understand, been added to, somewhat to day.

Mr. Grant, on being introduced by the Minister of the Church, gave a brief description of that Island and its products, and stated the population to be about 140,000. Of these about 40,000 are Asiatics, principally natives of India. They arrive annually indentured for 5 years. 3,000 arrived at the beginning of this year. During their term of indenture they are paid 25 cents per task. A task is generally overtaken in five hours by an able-bodied man. Each estate provides a hospital, and if the laborer is unfit for work he goes to the hospital, where he is visited by the medical officer of the District, and receives such medicine, food, &c., as the physician may prescribe, free of all charges. Loss of time in hospital does not count against him. At the end of five years he is at free to choose his place and work as any man in the colony. At the end of ten years from arrival they are entitled to a free passage to India. A ship leaves annually. Crown lands can be obtained in lieu of a return passage. Thousands have accepted lands from Government. Of those who go home a considerable per centage re-indenture and return. The industrious immigrant speedily improves his circumstances. Some accumulate large sums of money. One was mentioned as returning this year by the Royal Mail Steamer with $15,000.

Four Presbyterian missionaries from the Maritime Provinces now labour amongst these Hindoos. The adults are taught and have the gospel preached to them in the Hindostan language, the children are taught in the Mission schools both Hindostan and English. There are 24 schools, with about 1000 children. The schools have a humanizing influence upon the parents, and secure, in many cases, a welcome to the missionary and his message. The teachers are chiefly natives. The three principal schools are taught by a young man and a young woman from Nova Scotia, and a young Chinaman. Out of the English school in San Fernando has grown up a congregation which prefers the Gospel in English.

Ten years ago the first convert was baptized; there are now 300. These poor people show their appreciation not only in attending the services and conforming to Christian usages, but also in giving of their substance. In 1880, converts contributed about $1,200. Proprietors of estates aided schools to the extent of $3,500. The Colonial Government, for schools, $1,700. The work must be of a genuine character when it has enlisted the sympathy and support of the Government and planters, and secured such marks of self reliance as shown in the offerings of the converts.

The above is a brief sketch. The address, which was an admirable one, touched many points which have been omitted—as less likely to secure popular interest.

Rev. Mr. Grant spoke in Prince Street Presbyterian Church at 3 o'clock. He placed in front of the pulpit a map of the Island of Trinidad, showing the various mission stations, gave a sketch of the history of the Island as it affects mission work, showed that a large heathen population from India and China lives on the Island, that the mission is favorably viewed by the planters and Europeans generally, that many of the heathens have been brought to embrace christianity, that the young are gathered in schools, of which there are several under efficient christian teachers, that many of those trained in the schools are now in positions of trust and emolument under the Government, rendering valuable assistance to the missions. The address was listened to with very great interest. Mr. Grant is evidently the right man for the work. The call for more laborers and more means was felt very pressing.

Foot Racing.

AN ISLANDER ON THE COURSE.

BOSTON, May 21, 1881.

MR. EDITOR,—I am happy to inform you that one of your Island friends is Fred. Bevan and showing himself in good shape. He ran in a 100 yards spurt on the 18th of this month against one Charles Ward, of this city. Fred took the lead for the first forty-five yards, Ward following closely; then they came together; but neither to gain the lead. They crossed the line together in excellent time, 104 seconds. Bevan was not in good condition. The race took place at Beacon Park. Ward is considered one of our smartest short distance runners.

Please record this in your paper and oblige the trainer,
