

MAGNIFICENT!
Every blessed thing about it is magnificent!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with Charles BUTTERWORTH, BETTY FURNESS, Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan

ADDED . . . LOWELL THOMAS NEWS

TODAY - TUESDAY - WEDNESDAY
DAILY 3.15 - 7 - 8.45 P. M.

PRINCE EDWARD MAT. . . 16c - 26c
EVE. . . 26c - 32c - 37c

LOVE-THRILLS!
—as the bride-hunters capture their mates!

LET OF THE PACIFISTS

with MALA AND LOTUS
Cast of 5,000!

South Sea Beauties!
Mighty South Seas drama—actually filmed in its authentic setting—a maelstrom of primitive passion from the fascinating last frontier of civilization!

ADDED . . . COMEDY AND "THE STORY OF INTERNATIONAL NICKEL"

TODAY - Tues - Wed.
DAILY 3.15 - 7.00 - 8.45

CAPITOL Mat. 11c, 26c.
Eve. 26c, 32c, 37c.

Trinity United Church
MONDAY, APRIL 27
3.30 p.m.—Intermediate C. G. I. T.—Social Hall.
7.30 p.m.—Scouts.
7.30 p.m.—King's Daughters—Ladies Parlor.

The Central Guardian
CONFEDERATION LIFE INSURANCE
L-6798-7-12-312

SERIOUSLY INJURED—Word was received in Charlottetown Saturday that Mr. Holmes of Freetown, father of Mr. Gordon Holmes, barrister of this city had fallen from a load of hay at his home and had been seriously injured.

ARRIVED BY PLANE—Miss Betty Burman arrived in Charlottetown yesterday morning from Halifax. She was flown here in a Gypsy Moth, piloted by Mr. McDonald who returned to Halifax after remaining here about half an hour.

WILL APPEAR IN COURT—A motorist who was picked up last night will appear in Court on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, City Police announced.

WEDDING BELLS—Mrs. P. J. Oliver, of this city, received a message Friday from New York bringing the news of the marriage of her daughter, Margaret Alexandra (Allie) MacLeod, to Duncan Murray Cameron, an official of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company. Miss MacLeod, who was prior to going to New York with the Potato Growers' Association, has numerous friends in Charlottetown and they will extend heartfelt felicitations to Mr. and Mrs. Cameron.

WILL PREACH AT CONSECRATION—His Excellency Bishop J. A. O'Sullivan of Charlottetown will preach the sermon at the consecration of Bishop-elect P. A. Bray, which will take place at St. John's, New Brunswick in May. Very Rev. P. A. Bray, C.J.M., Ph.D., was Rector of Holy Heart Seminary, Halifax, for a number of years. He succeeded the late Bishop LeBlanc, whose death occurred some time ago. In 1933 he visited Charlottetown and addressed the graduating class of St. Dunstan's University.

POLICE COURT—At the Police Court Saturday a vagrant was sent to jail for sixty days; a drunk and disorderly was also given a sixty day term in jail without the option of a fine. The adjourned case of a young woman charged with deserting a child, was further adjourned until next Tuesday; a man for depositing refuse within the city limits was fined $2.00 and costs or five days in jail under the Sanitary By-Law.

Rev. Frank McDonald, Freetown, who had been a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital for the past three weeks is convalescing.

ROAD BUILDING RELIEF PROGRAM
(By The Canadian Press)
REGINA, April 26—Saskatchewan's share of the federal works program is not known as yet, but it is expected it will be largely devoted to road construction.
A plan of highway construction to be submitted to Ottawa for approval. Hon. C. M. Dunn, minister of highways, and transportation, announced following a conference with department officials.
Hon. J. C. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, said here the federal plan would provide for a percentage of the cost of an approved program and would include provision for advancing the province's share in the form of a loan.

ORWELL COVE W.I.
The regular monthly meeting of the Orwell Cove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. J. A. MacLeod on Tuesday, April 14th, with an attendance of eight members and six visitors. The meeting opened by reading the Creed, followed by roll call which was answered with "poes." The minutes of last meeting were then read, approved and filed by the President. Hall business and play were discussed but nothing was decided. One letter was read by Secretary. Program consisted of a contest put on by Mrs. J. A. MacLeod, also one by Catherine Macdonald, prize won by K. Macdonald. The meeting then closed and lunch was served by the hostess. Next meeting will be held in hall.

ARBOR DAY HOLIDAY
(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
WINNIPEG, April 26—Monday May 11, has been made a public holiday in Manitoba by order-in-council of the provincial government. It will be Arbor Day, said agricultural minister McKenzie in making the announcement, a day set apart for the planting of trees.

DO YOU NEED MONEY?
General Finance Eastern Ltd.
Head Office Norfolk Bldg., New Glasgow, N. S. and Branch Office located at 75 Queen Street, Charlottetown, P. E. I.
Make cash loans of $50.00 to $300.00 to persons of good character and assured income, repayable in monthly instalments. The money can be borrowed to pay off old debts—taxes—Furnish the home—hospital bills—repair the home or for any useful purpose.
Consult CHARLES W. McKINNON, Agent, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

ODDFELLOWS
(Continued from Page 1)

themselves that, in dealing with the social side of life, that he accentuated the principle of the brotherhood of all mankind." Dr. Legate said, "This feature of His gospel met with slow acceptance and has continued to be practiced with more or less restraint and reserve by his followers. Christ demanded, however, that if we are to claim the privilege of the Fatherhood of God we must, because of that, regard ourselves as brothers and sisters in the family of our common Father."

Life is an exceedingly difficult thing for most people and must be lived to the accompaniment of a constant struggle by most people, the speaker pointed out. All the difficulties that must be faced would crush most people hopelessly if it were not for the helping hands that are stretched to help and give courage.

"The honor and lustre of your great order consists in the fact that it is just organized brotherhood," Rev. Dr. Legate told the Oddfellows and Rebekahs. "It was conceived and intended to cope with the demands which life continually makes on people's peace of mind and habits of body."

"Your order stands for friendship because you believe in its necessity in a world like this. Friendship levels the rough road of life on which we all have to travel, and make each man's load lighter, because it is shared by someone else. Friendship promotes mutual understanding, and makes for social harmony, and world peace. Friendship is the oil that makes the wheels of life run more smoothly and sweetly. Friendship is the gift you can give to fellow men, whose value cannot be measured by all the money that was ever coined."

"May your great order rank as a worthy adjunct of the gospel of Him who went about doing good, and who came into the world not to be served but to serve others and to give his life as a ransom for others." Rev. Dr. Legate said in conclusion.

Following the sermon the Oddfellows and Rebekahs sang the hymn "Blessed Assurance" and then the speaker, Mr. Arthur Bruce, took the solo part.
After the service the parade formed and marched back to the Hall by way of Pownal, Euston, Queen and Richmond Streets. Officials in charge of the parade were, Marshal, Mr. John Hearn; Standard bearer, Mr. Lea Dawson; Guards, Messrs. G. R. Beer, H. P. VanDerstree, R. L. Huestis, K. J. Horne, P. J. Senter, L. H. D. Howard. The Canadian Legion Band was in attendance.
At a meeting at the Hall short addresses were delivered and votes of thanks were extended to the minister, session, choir and congregation of St. James Church; to the marshal, Mr. Hearn and to Mr. Arthur Bruce.

FUNERAL
(Continued from Page 1)

and such bravery" when he spoke about the miners who attempted to rescue Magill.
The Toronto Scottish band played the last post, reveille and the lament, "Flowers of the Forest."
MONTREAL, April 26—A small group gathered at the end of the platform in Bonaventure station here last night to pay tribute to Herman R. Magill, Toronto lawyer who died from sickness and exposure in the mine cave-in at Moose River, N. S.

A brown wooden casket containing his body was brought here from Halifax and transferred to the Toronto train.
Magill's widow, who accompanied the body on its journey, sought quiet and seclusion during the two hours she was in Montreal. Dressed in black, Mrs. Magill went to a hotel where she remained until it was time to board the Toronto train.

She was met by Mrs. Charles Ivy, sister of Dr. D. E. Robertson, one of the survivors of the accident.
A number of people had gathered in the station. They stood bareheaded and silent as the casket was transferred to the Toronto train.

A FAMILY AFFAIR
(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
CALGARY, April 26—A charity raffle here turned out to be a family affair. Six-year-old Phyllis Stephen pulled the winning ticket out of 1,800. It was her mother's. And her father, A. Stephen, had donated the blanket.

CONCERT PERFORMER—You have me down for four songs. Don't you think my turn would be improved if one were omitted?
Organizer—Yes. Twenty-five per cent better.

Between Smokes
WRIGLEY'S
DOUBLEMINT CHEWING GUM
makes the next Smoke TASTE BETTER

FAMOUS SQUADS RELEGATED TO 2ND DIVISION

(C. P. Cable By Guardian's Special Wire)
LONDON, April 26—Back in 1888 when the English Football League was formed, Aston Villa and Blackburn Rovers were among the 12 clubs who joined. Until yesterday they alone of the "originals" held their standing in the premier league but their proud record has been shattered and next season will find them in the second division.
Blackburn Rovers, already booked for relegation, dragged the famous Villa down with them. The clubs met in what was the latter's final match of the year, Blackburn inflicting a 4-2 defeat at Pilla Park. During the season the Rovers, with one game to play, have obtained only 33 points and the Birmingham squad two more.
Sunderland established itself at the top of the league some weeks ago but the position of runner-up is still undecided as Derby County, with 48 points has only a two-point advantage over Huddersfield Town. The season closes next Saturday.

While the teams to be relegated from the first division are known the battle for promotion from the second league continues. Charlton Athletic, Manchester United and West Ham United are fighting for the honor, all three winning Saturday's games. Charlton leads with 54 points and Manchester is only one point behind with a game in hand. West Ham has 52 points.

May Use Nova Scotia Coal

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
MONTREAL, Ont., April 25—An additional market for approximately 100,000 tons a year will be supplied the Nova Scotia coal industry if experiments in the use of the Maritime product on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway prove successful.
Premier Hepburn yesterday said tests with the Nova Scotia coal would be made on the Ontario government railway. If the tests are successful, he said, and the coal could be obtained at a price comparable to the one now being paid, the eastern product would be purchased.
Col. Mac Lang, chairman of the T. and N. O. today said coal consumption of the road in an average year ran to approximately 100,000 tons. Cost of coal to the road during the latest period for which figures were available was $6.06 a ton, he said.
The custom of the railway commission was to obtain tenders on the railway's coal requirements from several of the leading companies. Contracts were then awarded on the basis of these tenders, said the chairman.
He explained some time ago experiments with Northern Ontario lignite were planned but not carried out. If they had been carried through and the coal was adaptable, a new industry would have appeared in the north and an annual saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars accomplished by the railway and large coal users throughout the T. and N. O. region of Northern Ontario.

In his statement yesterday the Premier said he had been given to understand should Ontario find it convenient to use the Nova Scotia coal subsidies would be given by the Dominion administration to compete in price with other coal here.

C.N.R. Employee Instantly Killed

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
MONTREAL, N. S., April 26—Richard Phillips, 48, a Canadian National Railway employee, was instantly killed here Saturday while at work in the turntable pit of the roundhouse, and David Galloway, foreman, was slightly injured. The turntable passed over both men. James MacKinnon, operator of the table, told a coroner's jury he shouted to the men that the turntable was to be set in motion. He then started the motor slowly to give them time to leave the pit. He was not aware Phillips had been struck until he heard Galloway cry out.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

ST. JAMES CHURCH
At the morning service the Oddfellows and Rebekahs worshipped with the congregation, the church being crowded. The address of the minister was appropriate to the occasion and is reported elsewhere in this issue. The music included the Odd Fellows "Ode", rendered as a solo by Mr. Arthur Bruce, the brethren and congregation joining in the chorus; also the anthem "Holy Art Thou", (H Handel). Mrs. J. A. Lawson taking the solo part. At the evening service there was a good attendance, the Rev. Dr. Legate preaching on the text "Take Thy Yoke upon you and learn of Me, and ye shall find rest for your soul."
The music included the anthem, "Abide With Me," Thompson.

HOLY REDEEMER CHURCH
All three Masses yesterday morning were largely attended. The speaker was Rev. W. J. Enright, C.S.S.R. In an eloquent discourse he reviewed the events previous to the resurrection of Christ, stressing the glory and immortality of Christ's resurrection from the dead. Rev. Charles O'Hara, C.S.S.R., celebrated High Mass at 10:30.
At the evening service a forceful and lucid sermon was preached by Rev. R. H. L. Baines, C.S.S.R. The speaker, in his dissertation dealt with important matters pertaining to faith. "Faith," said Rev. Father Baines, "is a supernatural gift of God which enables us to believe without doubting whatever God has revealed; we believe it because God is the very truth, and cannot deceive or be deceived." Recitation of the Rosary and Vespers conducted by Rev. H. I. Fleming, C.S.S.R., also took place. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, given by Rev. Father Fleming concluded the service.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH
The beautiful flowers on either side of the pulpit were in loving memory of a former devoted member of the church.
Members and friends should consult our daily ads appearing in this paper as important and interesting events will take place during the mid-week.
Rev. Hugh Miller conducted the morning service. His theme was "The Upward Look," as suggested by Romans 12-11, "Fervent in spirit," or as the Moffat translation has it "Maintain the spiritual glow." It requires more than ordinary grace to maintain spiritual efficiency. Is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "Thy word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." Finally Mr. Miller referred to "Devotional Literature," which is not the answer largely found in our devotional life—the practice of waiting upon God. The Psalmist said, "Be still." There is a quietness necessary if we would hear God. The world is so much with us that God is relegated into a corner. We have to practice the necessary duty of listening to God. If we are to maintain the spiritual glow we must be steeped in the messages of the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." "