MAV ACCEPT JEWELRY

Even personal jewelry may be sold in aid of a campaign in British Columbia to help India fight its border war with Communist China. Kartar Singh, spokesman for the India Aid Fund, said Tuesday that several East Indian women have asked if they can make their contribution in the form of jewelry. It wasn't accepted but may be later.

MR. AND MRS. CORNELIUS O'DONAGHUE

Bristol Girl Weds Ireland Native At Morell Nuptials

The Little Flower Church, Morell, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when Francis Ella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sinnott, Bristol, was united in marriage with Cornelius Cornelius, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius O'Donaghue, Limerick, Ireland.

Rev. William Simpson performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Sister Mary Peter played the wedding music, while selections were sung by George MacDonell.

The church was beautifully decorated with sprays of mixed gladioli, and the guest seats were marked with white bows and lily of the valley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a floor-length gown of white nylon over tulle, with a fitted bodice, featuring a round neckline, fastened with delicate sequins. Her hair was styled in a tip veil fell from a coronet of lace and pearls, which carried a cascade of sweetheart roses and veil.

Attending the bride was her sister, Mrs. Richard Sinnott who wore a street length gown of natural green peau de soie, full skirted with a rounded neckline, and matching headpiece. She carried a nosegay of white and gold carnations. Her only ornament was a pearl pendant.

The groom was attended by Clement Sinnott, brother of the bride, and James MacLear, Sinnott, and James MacLear, Mrs. Sinnott chose for her

Stella Maris Church Scene Of Buote - Doucette Wedding

Stella Maris Church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Marie Germaine, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Doucette, became the bride of John Douglas Buote, son of Mr. Leonard Buote and the late Mr. Buote of North Rustico.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. William Doucette, godfather of the bride, who also celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Mixed flowers adorned the altar. Miss Bernadette Gaudin was the organist, and the singing choir of Stella Maris rendered appropriate hymns during the Nuptial Mass, and the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a floor length dress of nylon and nylon lace. A square cut neckline topped the bodice, which was lavished with sequins and simulated pearls. Her bouffant veil of tulle illusion fell from a head piece encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a nosegay of red carnations.

Her attendants were Miss Joella Gallant as bridesmaid, and Miss Linda Lee, of Sydney, N.S., niece of the bride as junior bridesmaid. The brides were attired in street length gowns of blue and pink nylon respectively, and wore matching headpieces. They carried pink and blue nosegays.

The winsome flower girl, Cindy Gauthier, niece of the bride, wore a dress of pink nylon with matching headpiece and carried a blue nosegay.

The groom was attended by Arless Peters, and the ushers were Joseph Buote and Joseph Doucette.

He nodded, "It's as well to have it done," he smiled. "In case he should, all at once, take a fancy to me, I'll be in this house when he's passing."

Until tomorrow - Diary - Good-night.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Sun Shows And Makes Steps Lighter, Faces Smile

Now the sun showed, to make steps lighter and to wear faces in smiles. Having breakfast late this morning, I started early for the morning's "Light-on". Granddaddy's gift went off to the classes. We could appreciate that. I remember in my open weather in being kind to her, and she number of rural youngsters, who must daily commute distances to their schools.

Mack came by then "to big us the time of day" and pick up any errands. This afternoon, which would go on busily out to be "good" for the making today? Any stamps wanted? "Yes, perhaps? Tea, then?" "No, thank you, nothing. Are you sure?" And presently he too followed down to me. I went to join the neighboring children who attend the old school of the District, which sits snugly beside the River Road.

Son Alex came with his "books" for his lessons. These are more or less what he is pleased to scribble over on a cord, without he is learning to recognize words—it may be from some book or papers or from some package about.

He interrupts his studies to relate some incident from the book his Mother currently reads to him. Or to recount some of the new news he has had... And there is this coyote looking straight at me. And another. And he just wouldn't move away. It was as though his feet were fastened to the ground with young fern. "I knew they weren't! How big 'thoughts' you ought to explore new avenues! I wonder is a coyote? Couldn't we find out exactly... somewhere in a book? And so we learn together, we two.

Presently the farmers went down the lane, and away to a far field of "the other far side Rob's", the harvesting of turps there. It was left to Scamper to mark their various home-comings, which brought in as it happened by dark, the last loads, to the barn.

"Done!" he smiled. "And isn't it good?"

"Only our patch, Ellen." James reminded us. "I expect we'll be helping Rob's tomorrow with theirs."

"Would you want to buy some Christmas cards?" "Oh, perhaps," he added with some apology. "Little too early yet for them!"

"Early!" we chuckled. "Why,
