ADVERTISING RATES

For small advertisements which are ordered for only one or two weeks the charge is 50 cents per inch for the first insertion, and 20 cents for each continuation. Rate cards are furnished on application at the office. Special contract prices at a reduced rate are quoted for advertisements four inches in size or larger, which are to run for three months or longer.

No special notices inserted unless paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line, and under no circumstances will such paid notices appear in the local column.

Special discounts made on all advertisements connected with Church Fairs, Bazaars, Picnics, etc. No notices will be inserted with the same unless the regular rate of 10 cents per line is paid.

That THE EXAMINER is considered by our Merchants and Manufacturers to be the leading newspaper in P. E. Island, and consequently the most valuable advertising medium through which to make their announcements public, is abundantly proved by the fact that in order to accommodate our advertisers we have been compelled to enlarge the paper to its present size.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is for sale by the following agents:—

GOOD ANIMAL STORIES.

HOW RAZOR BACK'S MAY BE UTILIZED TO A GOOD PURPOSE.

An Excellent Story on This Subject from Florida—Treed by a Moose—Two Stubborn Turtles—A Peculiar Friendship—The Weeping of Horses.

"Talk about snakes," said Edward T. Atherton of Boston, "there are more of them to the square acre in Florida than in any other part of the country. But, as numerous as they are now, they are not half as abundant as they were a few years ago, before any organized effort was made to annihilate the whole serpentine breed.

"It seems that a bright idea, involving the wholesale extinction of snakes, entered the mind of one William Jones, who, up to that time, had been a poor farmer struggling to support a big family. Now he is one of the solid men of the country, and he made all his money by the successful execution of that idea. He knew that the ordinary razor back hog of Florida was a great natural enemy of snakes, and he set to work to systematically train a whole drove of hogs to hunt down and destroy the reptiles. In a little while he had his swine as thoroughly trained in their part as setter dogs are drilled to point quail. He first cleared his own farm of a vast quantity of big ones, and then he began to hire out his hogs to the neighbors who were snake afflicted. The fame of those razor-backs spread all over the land, and people whose places were infested with rattlesnakes and men who were clearing up new land sent for Jones' hogs.

"This is no romance, for I talked with Jones himself, and he told me all about it and exhibited his book of engagements, which also contained a record of all the snakes slain for the past twelve months. I have every reason to believe that he was stating the facts, for he gave me a warm invitation to visit his place, and promises to give an exhibition that would demonstrate the skill of his snake-killers."—New York Advertiser.

Treed by a Moose.

One cold January day Mr. Hamilton, who was in the Maine woods as a foreman for a lumbering company, went out prospecting for spruce. He prudently left his rifle at the camp, fearing he might be tempted to break the game laws.

While picking his way through a fir thicket he was suddenly startled by a resounding below, and found himself close upon a bull moose. The man lost no time in dodging behind a great birch.

For a moment the moose stood still, as if surprised, then vented his wrath upon a pile of spruce tops and boughs that lay near, tossing them about as if they had been a stack of jackstraws. Meanwhile Mr. Hamilton climbed into the birch.

And there in the bitter cold he was forced to stay for six long hours, while the moose kept watch below, quite regardless of the cramped muscles and aching bones of his victim. At last he moved off, and the foreman ventured down.

Unless the Game Commissioners send him a bodyguard, Mr. Hamilton declares that hereafter he shall carry his gun into the woods.—Youth's Companion.

Neither Turtle Will Give Up.

Two months ago a crowd of coal miners near Newport took two snapping turtles into a cockpit and forcing open their jaws poured some whisky down their throats. Then they were turned loose on each other, $800 being wagered on the outcome, but with the understanding that no decision would be made until one of the snappers gave up or was killed. The turtles fought fiercely, each tearing his antagonist's head and neck with his horny beak until one obtained a grip upon the other's flipper. After a brief but ineffectual struggle to break his antagonist's hold, the turtle whose flipper was thus caught seized the other by the neck. Aside from a steady "weaving" motion there was no further demonstration for several hours. The crowd of miners watched them from early evening until long after midnight, when the two turtles, each retaining his vice like grip on the other, were carried from the pit and placed in the cellar of the deserted house. This was two months ago, and since then neither of the snappers has shown any symptoms of weakening his hold upon the other, and the bets have not yet been declared off.—Newcastle (Pa.) Special.

A Peculiar Friendship.

"The most peculiar friendship I ever saw formed was one between a hawk and a rooster," said D. R. Franklin, at the Gibson. "One day, when living on a farm in Western Pennsylvania, I shot and wounded a hawk. When I picked up the bird I found that its wings were broken, but otherwise it was uninjured. My sister begged that the creature's life be spared, and the request was granted. Within a few days the hawk had become quite tame and would come to us for its food when we called it. The chickens were greatly frightened at its presence and kept up considerable fuss. This soon wore off and in a short time its presence was taken as a matter of course. The bird was tied to a stake in the back yard and the fowls would go several times a day to look at him. One rooster, more courageous than the rest, concluded to get acquainted with the enemy. In some way they succeeded in communicating together and establishing a bond of friendship. They were constantly together, and after the hawk's wounds had healed and he was liberated he would spend a portion of each day with his friend, the rooster, paying no attention to the other chickens. In some way he must have told the other hawks that our flock was under his special care, for we were never troubled with them afterward, although before that we had lost a great many chickens."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Weeping of Horses.

Did you ever see a horse cry? Many people believe that horses do not weep, but those who have had much to do with these faithful creatures know that on several occasions they will shed tears, as well as express sorrow, in the most heartbreaking manner. In the West, where the hardiness of the ponies causes the riders to almost overlook the necessity of providing for their needs, it is quite common when the weather is extremely cold to leave an unblanketed pony tied for two or three hours when the temperature is nearly zero, and while its owner is transacting business.

In this case the suffering is evidenced by the cries, which are almost like sobs, and unmistakable tears freeze on to the cheeks like icicles. When a horse falls in the street and gets injured the shock generally numbs his senses so much that it does not either cry or groan, but under some conditions an injured horse will solicit sympathy in the most distinct manner. I remember a favorite horse of my own which trod on a nail long enough to pierce its foot. The poor thing hobbled up to me on three legs and cried as nearly like a child in trouble as anything I can describe. The sight was a very touching one, as was also the crippled animal's gratitude when the nail was pulled out and the wound dressed.—Practical Farmer.

A TRAGEDY.

A Woman Who Kept Her Children in Ignorance of the World.

There are tragedies in nearly all people's lives, though some may never know them by that name. We find them, too, in most unexpected places. Which reminds me that one day I stopped for dinner at a house in the Cumberland mountains, so deep in the fastnesses, that I had to employ a guide to show me the way to the first road that would take me out to the county road. The family consisted of a man and a wife, with six daughters, and a more ignorant lot of people, I think I never saw. After the dinner of bacon, beans and corn bread, the man and girls went back to the field, and I talked awhile to the woman before resuming my journey. She was a typical mountaineeress, tall, angular and sallow, but there was a gleam of intelligence in her face, quite unlike the lack-lustreness of the usual woman of the mountains.

"Don't you get very lonely, away off here to yourself?" I asked her as she busied about the table.

"I reckon I mought, ef I had time," she replied; "but I don't give myself no time to think about things like that."

"And what about your girls? Don't they want to get out among people?"

"Not ez I ever heerd 'em say."

"Do they go to school in winter?"

"No."

"Have they never been?"

"Not yit," this half apologetically.

"Do they have anything to read?"

"They can't read."

"Can't read?" I repeated in surprise, for even though the older mountaineers cannot read or write, as a rule the younger ones, under a more modern civilization, can.

"No, they can't," she said, as if irritated by my tone.

"Are you so far from a schoolhouse that you can't send them?" was my next venture.

"It's two miles, and they could go, but I won't let 'em."

This was a new phase, and the matter became more interesting.

"Why not?" I asked, with a persistence that was risky.

She stopped her work and turned to face me.

"Them gals," she said, "don't know nothin' but these here mountains, and that thar river down thar; they don't know what is goin' on in the world outside; they never seen no steam oars, ner boats, ner telegrafts, ner telephones, ner fine houses, ner beautiful clo's, ner gentlemen, ner ladies; they don't hardly know thar's such, but I do, fer I've saw people ez hez seen 'em, and they've told me; many's the night I've gone to bed and cried myself to sleep in the loft that wuz my bedroom, thinkin' about what thar wuz in the world that I couldn't even hope to git a look at; I got so I could read, and then I read about 'em all, and that made it wuss; thar wuz nothin' but mountains and loneliness and silence fer me, and I couldn't help myself nohow. Then I married Jim, and we come here; Jim can't read ner write, and the pore feller is satisfied, fer he don't know no more than the gals does and they're company fer each other. The gals might git like I wuz ef they larnt readin' and writin', and how could they ever git away frum this place and go among sich different things? They couldn't, jist the same ez I couldn't, an' of I kin keep 'em frum knowin' whut's away off whar the mountains ain't, ner the lonesomeness, ner the silence, I'm a goin' ter do it, and let 'em live and die right here whar they air a heap better satisfied than ther mother has ever been, though they never heerd her say nothin' about it, one way ner t'other, ner they never will."

The hard lines of determination had come into her face when she began speaking, and I could see they were pressing back the tears of disappointment, as she talked to me; and when she turned to her work again, she brushed her eyes hastily, while I sat there, thinking of the silent heroism and uncomplaining sacrifice of this woman, longing in the solitude of the mountains for the breadth and the beauty of the world beyond them, yet never voicing her wish; walking straight through the darkness of ignorance, knowing of the light above it; standing fast with her family about her, as the millions rushed on toward the higher attainments of life; crushing her soul down into its narrow confines and keeping it there because she realized that for her and for hers, this was the earth and the fullness thereof.—Detroit Free Press.

Heard None of His Own Operas.

The great French composer Auber, the writer of "Fra Diavolo," "Crown Diamonds," and about fifty other first-class operas, was a peculiar genius in more than one respect. He never heard a performance of one of his own operas, which, of itself, is a thing without parallel in musical history. He would never allow anyone in his presence to mention death, or allude in any way to matters that might recall what, to him, was the most awful of all subjects. He was wealthy and lived in the utmost luxury in Paris, and when at last he died, while the city was in the throes of the war with the commune, preparations were made to give him an elegant funeral. But a mob came along during the ceremony, scattered the mourners, took the body out of the hearse, threw it into the ditch, and led off the horses to draw cannon. It was a singular end to a life of luxury and aesthetic ease.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Lawyer's Bakery.

Sir Walter Scott called one day at the office of Joseph Gillon, an Edinburgh lawyer, "Why, Joseph," said Sir Walter, "this place is as hot as an oven!" "Weel, and isn't it here that I make my bread?" retorted Gillon.

Broken in Health

That Tired Feeling, Constipation and Pain in the Back

Appetite and Health Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mr. Chas. Steele
St. Catherine's, Ont.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"For a number of years I have been troubled with a general tired feeling, shortness of breath, pain in the back, and constipation. I could get only little rest at night on account of the pain and had no appetite whatever. I was that tired in my limbs that I gave out before half the day was gone. I tried a great number of medicines but did not get any permanent relief from any source until, upon recommendation of a friend, I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which made me feel better at once. I have continued its use, having taken three bottles, and I Feel Like a New Man.

I have a good appetite, feel as strong as ever I did, and enjoy perfect rest at night. I have much pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla." CHARLES STEELE, with Erie Preserving Co., St. Catherine's, Ontario.

R. Bryce-Gemmel, M. D., F. C. S., Consulting and Analytical Chemist, 288 Boylston St., Boston, Mass., says:

J. F. Raymore, 17 Holborn St., Roxbury Mass.

After a careful examination of

Skoda's German Soap,

I find it composed of ingredients of a chemically pure and healing nature. It cannot be too highly recommended, both for medicinal and toilet use. I also find perfectly pure and possessing high medicinal qualities. It can be used with perfect safety on the most delicate skin, and is an excellent ointment for general every-day use.

Mr. Raymore, whose picture appears above, and who for many years, was engaged in the manufacture of toilet soap, writes, under date of Feb. 4, 95: "I am surprised at its soft and purifying qualities. It is pure, unadulterated, and free from alkali, which most soaps contain."

Miss Alice L. Welton, a graduate of the Victoria General Hospital Training School for Nurses, Halifax, N. S., says: "Truly Skoda's Soap is soft as velvet and pure as gold. It makes the skin soft, white and beautiful."
