

BUNGALOW OFFERS CONVENIENCE

THE MODEST EXTERIOR of this one-story house by E. R. Dunlop, Toronto architect, encloses well-planned arrangement of three-bedroom space offering convenient family living.

The carport provides cover for both the main entrance and handy kitchen-base entrance. The main entrance is into a vestibule or hall of a size rarely found in today's compactly-planned houses.

The kitchen-dining-living area of the house is across the rear where the dining and living rooms overlook the garden and have direct access to it. The vestibule arrangement gives complete privacy to the bedroom area. All in all, the house embodies a variety of planning features that ensure the best in living satisfaction and convenience.

The floor area is 1,240 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 24 feet, three inches by 41 feet, five and one half inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 299, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Montreal 4.

Careful Preparation Needed In Painting House Exterior

Many people, in their haste, make the mistake of rushing the builder at this stage in order to get into the house early. But painting requires as much care as any other phase of construction.

Preparing the surface to be painted is just as important as the painting itself. All rough spots must be smoothed down and porous surfaces with a filler to keep the paint from being absorbed unevenly by the material. If all base paints are used the surface to be coated must be dry, painting over a wet or damp surface will cause the paint to blister and peel. Wood which contains too much moisture is responsible for more paint failures than probably any other single factor.

Exterior painting usually requires the painting of concrete, brick and stucco. Wood must be thoroughly sanded before painting, and painting should be deferred after a rain or if the air is too damp. Though dry to the touch, wood may still contain too much moisture for painting. The best and surest way of knowing how much moisture or water vapor there is in the wood is to use a moisture meter.

Wood siding should be primed, that is, given its first coat of paint, as soon as possible after being nailed on. Once it has this protective coating there is not the same urgency about applying the additional coats. Some woods, such as cedar, are not as hard as others, but in any case the time period is before the weathering begins.

All nail holes should be filled with putty before painting. Knots in residual woods should be sealed with shellac or some other effective sealer to prevent resin exudate and resins from leaching out. These ingredients working their way through the paint leave ugly brown stains over knots that have not been properly sealed. This can be done either before or after priming. Aluminum paint which is otherwise a good choice is not recommended where it will also act as an exterior vapour barrier, trapping moisture under the painted surface.

WATER-TIGHT JOINTS are important, joints around doors and windows have to be caulked with mastic or other suitable caulking compound. This helps to make the joint water-tight and also reduces the heat loss to some extent. There are various grades of caulking mastic. Some caulking will remain elastic even after it hardens. Caulking should be applied carefully, avoiding mortars which will deface the finish.

Widely weather is best for outside painting. If a freshly painted surface is exposed too long to the direct rays of the sun in mid-summer the paint may be damaged. On the other hand painting should be stopped when the temperature drops below the freezing point.

A good rule to follow is to "paint with the sun" and by the time one side of the house is painted the sun will have moved over to the next side. If painting should be stopped when rain threatens or if there is danger of sand or dirt blowing against the freshly painted surface.

VARNISHING In most cases two coats of oil or top of the paint are sufficient. But if paint is applied too thickly or if it has a low pigment content additional coats may be required.

If the surface is to be varnished or treated with a primer or filler it still requires to be sanded down. A diluted varnish is used as outdoor work because it is more resistant to moisture.

Before varnishing, wood surfaces are stained to give a more uniform shade. Some var-

Impaired Cases Result in Fines

SUMMERSIDE — Appearing before Magistrate W. Chester S. O'Brien in the County Court yesterday, Kenneth Harold MacNeill, 21, and Ivan Glenn MacNeil, 19, were each fined $25 and costs, having pleaded guilty to driving while impaired by alcohol.

Blair Wendell Borden, charged with driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol, was fined $25 and costs.

Joseph George Centini, 30, charged with unlawfully taking a truck, the property of Edwin Grossman, Cape Traverse had his case adjourned to Thursday morning after three witnesses were heard in court.

Mr. Crossman testified that on April 13, 1960, he parked his truck in his mother's gateway, across the road from his home. This was about 7:30 p.m. He stated that ten minutes later he saw the truck leaving down the road, and the keys of the vehicle were in his pocket at the time.

After evidence by Cpl. W.B.C. MacDonald, in charge of the Borden detachment, and of Cpl. James Dunn of Souris, the case was set over.

Tug Shelters At St. Side

Toronto Coach Will Organize Irish Sea Swim

LONDON (CP) — Toronto swimming coach Steve Mellors has been hired by the Northern Ireland tourist board to organize a mass marathon swim along the Irish Sea coast.

Mellors, disappointed when his star swimmer Helge Jensen of Toronto attempted to try to swim without due care and during an attempt to swim from Donaghadee, Northern Ireland to Portlaoine, Scotland, was cheerful when he spoke to a reporter here Tuesday.

"This is a hell of a another chance," he said. "There's a $2,000 prize for completing the sea now, and I think I've got a swim figured so Heige can do it the second time around."

Mellors said the big purse, a free accommodation and other attractions should attract a large field, particularly from Canada and the United States.

Other types of finishes which call for stalling only, in which cases the post-swim offers combined with the stalling mix.

15 Entries Go In St. Leager

CONCASTER, England (AP) — Fifteen thoroughbreds from four countries were named Tuesday for today's St. Leager, oldest of Britain's horse race classics.

Italian horse Antelmi impressed observers in his final training at 11 p.m. and bet poured in on him.

Bookies made it a 11 to 1 favorite at 7:30 p.m. with Larkspur, Irish-trained winner of the Epsom Derby, second favorite at 7:1. Monterico, and English-trained horse was 8:1. Mirajail 10:1 and Heffalump 10:1.

The St. Leager, decided on a mile and six furlongs on turf, first was run in 1776.

Two hundred colts and fillies from England, Ireland, France and Italy are chasing the $88,290 first prize.

Scientists Plan Balloon Telescope At 80,000 Feet

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Scientists will float a giant telescope 80,000 feet above the earth early next year, and by means of television, view the universe as it has never been seen before.

Two balloons will hoist the telescope into the heavens next February or March, when Mars is comparatively close to the earth.

From that position, the scope's 36-inch quartz mirror will have sharper vision than the giant 200-inch telescope atop Mt. Palomar, Calif.

At a distance of 1,000 miles, it will be able to view an object about six inches wide. At the same distance, it will be able to distinguish two spots of light only 30 inches apart.

Dr. Martin Schwarzschild of Princeton University, director of the project, hopes his heavenly apparatus will enable him to get a close look at the "white dots" on Venus and the Canals of Mars.

Borden Man Has Bail Set

SUMMERSIDE — George McGuirk of Borden charged with care and control of a motor vehicle while his ability was impaired by alcohol or a drug had his case adjourned without plea until this morning in Summerside police court. Bail was set at $125.

Two men pleaded guilty to intoxication charges and each was fined $20 and costs or 15 days.

Magistrate R. S. Hinton presided.

Public supply of electricity was first provided in England at Godalming, Surrey, in 1881.

COLORED BALLS FOOLED CHEATS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Herbert P. Sauer, Windsor's chief plumbing inspector, has retired and left behind a collection of billiard balls that has helped him outsmart contractors for the last 12 years.

Mr. Posner used the colored balls for testing sewer connections. At one time a standard white ball was inserted into the opening of a connection. If it rolled out the other end it meant the connection was clear and had adequate slope.

But some crafty contractors tried to outsmart Mr. Posner. They would wait at the receiving end of the pipe and pour a white ball of their own if Mr. Posner's got stuck.

Mr. Posner overcame this ploy by obtaining old snooker balls in various colors. Now the contractor at the waiting end of the pipe doesn't know what color ball might come rolling down.
