Beer Bros. for Dress Goods

POLICE COURT.—Henry McAleer was this forenoon fined $4 or 20 days for drunkenness. He took the days.

BE SEATED.—Mark Wright & Co. are making seats for three churches, one in Cape Breton, and two on the Island.

EXCURSION.—Those desiring to take the special train to Summerside on Tuesday next, Dec. 1st., will get full particulars by calling at W. N. Tanton's jewelry store, Great George Street.

THURSDAY evening the Coquelitza Mission Band of the First Methodist Church will hold their concert on Thursday evening next, and not on Tuesday as advertised yesterday.

FORWARDED TO HALIFAX.—Edward Yaye, the Italian tramp who has been in jail during the past week or so, will be sent to Halifax by the authorities. He goes in the Fastnet this evening.

GOSPEL MEETING.—Remember the Gospel meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by the railway men. Strangers always welcome. Lesson—Romans, 10-9, "Confess and believe."

SEE IT.—For the last ten days James Paton & Co have been showing that beautiful subdued light in their front show windows that was so highly spoken of in yesterday's EXAMINER. The Royal Electric Light Co. furnishes this light. See it this evening.

THE SHARK that was caught at Cape Traverse last summer will be exhibited in Dodd & Rogers window this evening, and will be sent by the Directors of the Driving Park to Guelph College next week. The stuffing was done by Mr. Hedley Bryenton, Brackley Point.

THE ARMENIANS.—A public meeting in aid of the suffering Armenians will be held in the Opera House on Wednesday evening next at eight o'clock. The meeting has been called by the Mayor at the request of a number of citizens. A large attendance is expected and deserved.

A MOURNFUL FACT.—Messrs. Cartwright, Fielding, Paterson and Mowat held a trade inquisition at Toronto last Tuesday to learn the views of merchants respecting reconstruction of the tariff. Of eight deputations heard only one asked for a reduction of the present duties, and that was the casket makers, who, peculiarly, were all Liberals. Evidently there are some funerals expected in the Liberal camp.

NONE TO DO IT REVERENCE.—The St. John Record says: Not one newspaper in Canada, Protestant or Catholic, has a word of praise for Laurier's Manitoba scheme. It is a deal of the vilest and boldest description, one that does credit to the rashness and low cunning of Tarte, the weakness of Sifton, and the duplicity of Greenway. Even the Montreal Witness, which tries to find some particles of good in it, has to apologize.

SCOTT ACT.—At Tignish, on Wednesday, before Stipendiary Magistrate Wright, Patrick Lynch, John Lynch and George Lynch were each convicted of first infractions of the Scott Act and fined in the sum of $50 and costs. A summons against Theodore Barnard was dismissed. The three Lynchs are brothers, and John Lynch is only ten years of age. Their mother and father are in jail at Summerside working out Scott Act fines.

Yesterday evening Scott Act summonses were served on Patrick McAleer and John Hughes, jr., returnable on Thursday, December 3rd. Hughes' summons charges a first infraction and McAleer's a second.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.—F. B. McRae, representing Jones & McRae, proprietors of the P. E. Island Cannery, Charlottetown, was in town yesterday. Mr. McRae informed the Post that they had manufactured 4,000 packages of tin goods and 25 tons of jam in pails and glass jars. During the last season this firm exported 2,000 cases of blueberries to Boston. Mr. McRae says that, notwithstanding the fact that this is their first year, they feel very much encouraged. They put up a first-class article, and all it needs is a little pushing. Mr. McRae succeeded in placing several orders with Sackville grocers.—Chignecto Post.

STEAMERS MOVEMENTS.—The Princess made the round trip between Charlottetown and Pictou last evening notwithstanding the fog which prevailed. She left Charlottetown for Pictou about nine o'clock this morning and is expected back this evening.

The Northumberland left Summerside at the usual time yesterday morning, but on account of the thick weather she did not make her way into Point DuChene until half-past eight this morning. She was expected to leave there at the usual time this afternoon.

The Fastnet, which was last evening obliged to anchor outside the harbor on account of the foggy weather, came up to her wharf this morning about half-past ten and is now discharging. She will leave to night on return to Halifax.

A QUIET WEDDING.

A very pretty and quiet wedding took place at St. Malachi's Church, Kinkora, when Miss May Gallant, daughter of Joseph Gallant, Esq., and niece of His Grace Archbishop O'Brien, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Adrian Peters, of Charlottetown. The bride was assisted by Miss Carrie Mooney, and the groom by Dr. St. Clair Gallant, brother of the bride. The marriage was performed by the Rev. John J. McDonald, P. P. After Mass, which immediately followed the marriage, the bridal party drove to the beautiful new residence of Dr. Gallant, where a well prepared dinner was partaken of. The health of the newly married couple was proposed by the Rev. J. J. McDonald, who, in a few well chosen words, wished them all the happiness possible on this earth. At five o'clock the bridal party drove to Emerald Junction, to take the express for Charlottetown. Rice and good wishes were showered on the bride and groom as the train moved out. At Charlottetown the bridal party were met by many of their friends to wish them joy.

TWO SWINDLERS GONE.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Bevan Leave New Glasgow, N. S. Suddenly.

About two days ago George M. Bevan, who ran a restaurant on Provost Street, left town rather suddenly and under suspicious circumstances. Last year the same gentleman made an assignment, and it is supposed he made a large sum of money on the transaction. Since the assignment the business has deen run in the name of Mrs. Bevan. Before leaving town Mr. and Mrs. Bevan made quite a haul. They purchased clothing, jewelry, watches, and borrowed money from all the business men they could get goods or money from in town. In most cases Mrs. Bevan asked to have the goods on approval. Bevan tried hard to get an $80 diamond ring at Eastwood's jewelry store, but failed in doing so. Both left New Glasgow well provided with clothing of the most expensive kind, and the jewelry Mrs. Bevan has secured will enable her to cut quite a dash in her new place of abode, wherever that may be. They also carried off two bicycles. When they left here, the morning of their disappearance, Bevan went first to Westville on a bicycle, and his wife followed him from New Glasgow. They left two young boys in their restaurant when they went away, and no suspicion was aroused until the evening, and they had probably gone as far as St. John. The stock left in the shop, including a piano, was seized and sold at auction for rent.—Eastern Chronicle.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE BISHOP'S PROPOSAL

SIR,—The Guardian seems to be somewhat exercised over a proposal which, it alleges, is being made by the Bishop of Charlottetown to the City School Board, by which it is intended to place St. Joseph's Convent School under the Public Schools system. Whatever may be the facts of this case, I think all parties concerned are entitled to at least fair treatment at the hands of a public newspaper. To refer to the teachers of St. Joseph's School as persons having "a particular interest or inclination to violate the law," all engagements to the contrary, notwithstanding, appears to me to manifest a spirit far from being in keeping with anything like fairplay towards the sisters of St. Joseph's Convent School. I think the public will agree that the records of these sisters as observers of the law of the land will bear a most favorable comparison with that of even our best citizens, and I must say that such base prejudices are completely out of place.

The Guardian complains that the trustees are asked to rent the St. Joseph's School building. This complaint, Sir, is most ungracious. Consider the facts of the case since the inception of the Public Schools Act about twenty years ago. By virtue of that Act the Charlottetown Board of Trustees were and are obliged to provide school accommodation for all the children in the city, with the consequent obligation of the city to pay taxes for this purpose when called upon. Now, instead of this having been done, there have been, annually, over four hundred of the city children whose education has been maintained in the convent schools. The government was not asked to pay salaries to these teachers, though many of them held liceases under our own School Act, and others under the Educational Boards of the other provinces. The School Trustees were not called upon to provide school accomodation for these children during all these twenty years, nor were the citizens asked for one cent of taxes for the maintenance of these schools. The City treasury was thereby saved thousands of dollars which otherwise it would have been obliged to expend in the way of providing school buildings for the children and supplementing the teacher's salaries as was done with the other city schools; and I may add that even the provincial government was saved no inconsiderable sum in the way of teachers' salaries. We can form some estimate of what was saved to the city treasury and borne by the Catholics, by noting the amount of indebtedness contracted by the purchase of the Upper Prince Street and the construction of the West Kent Street Schools, as also by the rental of the Queen Square School. Nor will it do to say that the city did not oblige these children to attend the convent schools, for the fact remains that the city treasury was thereby saved several thousands of dollars; and now to complain because the trustees are asked to rent a school building for the accomodation of some of these children, is emphatically unjust and ungrateful. However, I should think better of the citizens of Charlottetown than to suppose that they would be a party to such ingratitude.

Then, again, what the Guardian says about devoting the school rooms to other purposes after school hours is rather uncalled for. Surely it does not mean to say any use will be made of them that will in reason be objected to by the trustees, and especially if they engage not to do so. Speaking about other uses being made of school rooms after teaching hours, the Guardian should be aware of the fact that in many of our public school buildings non-Catholic assemblies are held frequently for denominational purposes, such as prayer meetings, revivals, sacred lectures, etc., and I have never known a case in which the Catholic trustees or Catholic ratepayers ever objected to such uses being made of the schoolrooms after teaching hours. In any case, the fact remains that these uses are being made of the public school houses, and yet no person considers that on this account is the School Act being violated. The talk about the convent chapel and its appurtenances is just a little childish. Surely it does not mean to say the trustees were requested to rent also the convent chapel; and if not, what has the chapel to do with the school rooms during teaching hours, or for that matter at any other time, even though it were a synagogue? If its proximity be objected to, one might as well object to buying Pink Pills from a druggist because he keeps a supply of strychnine pills in the same drug store.

Your contemporary next complains that the Nuns should act as public school teachers, and goes on to say that "these ladies are trained especially for the duty of propagating their faith." If the editor would visit the school in question he would find that, even now, when it is not under the Act, the text-books in almost every particular are the same as those used in the public schools, and if he examines the children, he will find out that their school hours are not monopolized by "the duty of propagating their faith." This is a fair test, and should be accepted. But let us take another view of this point. In our province to-day there are many clergymen, both Protestant and Catholic, who hold licenses under the Public Schools Act. These men, to use the words of your contemporary, 'are trained especially for the duty of propagating their faith". Now, should these clergymen desire to teach in our public schools, there is nothing in the Act to prevent them from doing so, and they would be perfectly within their rights in engaging as public school teachers. Why then object to the Nuns' becoming teachers in a public school, providing they hold the necessary license?

Regarding the insinuation that these ladies would endeavour to impress their religious views on non-Catholic children, I venture to assure your contemporary that, even now, these schools are frequented by non-Catholic children, whose parents are intelligent men and women who know what they are doing, and we have yet to learn of a case in which the religious belief of these pupils was ever tampered with by their teachers. In fact these teachers, wether under the public schools system or independent of it, are strictly forbidden to tamper with the religious belief of non-Catholic pupils, and if this prohibition has been complied with in the past, what reason is there for supposing it should be violated in the future?

Another point the Guardian endeavours to make on this matter I will, with your kind permission, answer in a future issue. It is to be regretted that your contemporary does not show a disposition to be fair in this matter. One should be able to deal with such matters without being unnecessarily offensive. The people of Charlottetown are more than sufficiently intelligent to understand the force of an argument without its being tarnished by offensive language or irrelevant inuendo.

FAIRPLAY.

SCOTT ACT PROSECUTIONS.

SIR,—It is gratifying to know that the columns of at least one of our dailies is open to correspondents having something to say concerning the Scott Act and its enforcement, and the letters of "True Temperance" and "Spectator" are timely and to the point. Having had occasion to be in attendance at the police court during the hearing of some of the Scott Act cases, and having considerable knowledge of the methods of securing convictions as well as seeing the class of persons so convicted, I deem it not out of place to respectfully request the liberty of asking some pertinent questions.

Why is it that a brewery is permitted to operate in this town, turning out hundreds of gallons of beer weekly, with office and storerooms on one of our principal streets, for the retailing of which beer a number of the Scott Act offenders now in prison were convicted, as proved in evidence given before the magistrate? Again, there is the local agent of the Toronto Brewing Company, who supplied and was paid for beer for the sale of which numerous other unfortunate retailers are now deprived of their liberty, the magistrate also knowing this from evidence given in the cases. This beer agent, I might also add, imports annually from Great Britain thousands of cases, casks and other packages of liquors, which he must dispose of in some way. I have not the least doubt that a large percentage of it finds its way into the cellars of some of the most ardent Scott Act admirers. I have personal knowledge of at least a great portion of its being so disposed of. The Stipendiary Magistrate, prosecutor, police force and W. C. T. U. seem powerless to bring certain liquor dealers to justice. Countrymen and boys can be seen any hour of the day coming reeling from their doors and not an apparent effort made to close them, whilst for the sale of beer, the intoxicating qualities of which is a matter of dispute, many citizens, taxpayers, and men who pay their debts are thrown into prison away from their homes and families and obliged to sustain life as best they may on hard tack and oatmeal. You will readily see that there is something radically wrong with the system of prosecuting which only reaches a certain class, whilst the manufacturer and wholesale supplier is held harmless and permitted to luxuriate on the profits of his business.

There are other matters which I will bring to your notice in another letter.
