Creeping up the Stairs.

In the softly falling twilight Of a weary, weary day, With a quiet step I entered Where the children were at play; I was brooding o'er some trouble Which had met me unawares, When a little voice came ringing, "Me is creeping up the stairs."

Ah, it touched the tenderest heart-string, With a breadth and force divine, And such melodies awakened As no wording can define! And I turned to see our darling, All forgetful of my cares, When I saw the little creature Slowly creeping up the stairs.

Step by step she slowly clambered, On her little hands and knees, Keeping up a constant chattering Like a magpie in the trees; Till at last she reached the topmost, When, o'er all her world's affairs, She delighted stood a victor, After creeping up the stairs.

Fainting heart, behold an image Of man's brief and struggling life, Whose best prizes must be captured With a noble, earnest strife. Onward, upward, reaching ever, Bending to the weight of cares; Hoping, fearing, still expecting, We go creeping up the stairs.

On the steps may be no carpet, By their sides may be no rail; Hands and knees may often pain us, And the heart may almost fail. Still above there is the glory, Which no sinfulness impairs, With its rest and joy forever, After creeping up the stairs.

A Talk to Parents.

Family secrets should not be talked over before little children. Being without policy they are apt to cause trouble by speaking out at the wrong time. It is neither winning nor childlike to hear little children discussing grave and important domestic topics, like parrots, prattling what they have heard their mothers say. Why contaminate their pure minds with envy, malice, jealousy, and revenge; which surges in the social world like waves upon the sea; or, why put thoughts into their little heads to cause a sickly growth of a sentiments and qualities only belonging to men and women? Let children be children as long as possible. Keep their minds in the happy atmosphere of beauty, purity, music, poetry, and proper thought. Thus will their minds more perfectly develop their utmost possibilities for good. If cares oppress, and sorrows weigh upon your heart, for heaven's sake, good mother, do not try to throw your burdens off upon your little children. They are not old nor strong enough to carry them without being dwarfed or deformed by the load. If their time is coming, No one escapes trouble. Give them a chance to prepare for any fate that the future may bring forth, that they may bear their burdens nobly, bravely, having cheerfulness to endure and still be happy. A person who has no happy, careless childhood to recall is not apt to be cheerful. Shadows of sadness falling thick in youth are never wholly lifted, however brightly the sun of prosperity shines in the noonday of life. Children are the music, poetry, and flowers of humanity. Why stain the tender strings to make discord of their active harmony? Why spoil the sweet rhymes of their happy, careless hearts crowding them with prose? Why force a delicate hot-house growth on flowers that flourish best in the pure, fresh air and sunlight? Let children be happy and careless as long as they can. Teach them the while lessons which shall develop their minds to common sense practical views, which will save them from building upon the quicksands when they are men and women.

Interesting to Note-Makers.

DECISION AS TO THE LIABILITY OF AN INTOXICATED INDORESE.

In the Montreal Court of Appeals a few days ago, a somewhat peculiar judgment was rendered, of interest to note-makers. Some time ago a promissory note was signed by one Henson, and endorsed by one Muldoon, who transferred it to one Burroughs, who in turn handed it to the People's Bank. Muldoon's defence alleged that he received no consideration for the endorsement, and that when he wrote his name on the note he was so much under the influence of liquor that he did not know what he was doing, and was incapable of contracting. Mr. Justice Scott, in the Superior Court, held the defence of Muldoon not proved, and condemned him to pay the amount of the note. But this decision was reversed by the Court of Review, and the action was dismissed on the ground alleged in the plea. It was from this decision that the bank appealed. It was submitted for the appellant that the first judgment was well founded and that the evidence of drunkenness was insufficient. The handwriting of Muldoon was clear and distinct, and was not the handwriting of an intoxicated person. He might have been to some extent under the influence of drink, but not to a degree which prevented him from knowing what he was doing. The Court of Appeal to-day reversed the judgment of the Court of Review and confirmed that of the Superior Court.

Dynamic Rossa Routed.

Dynamic Rossa has been relegated to the seclusion that private life grants, so far as the Fenian Brotherhood is concerned. The organization after a secret session of four days, has adjourned. Rossa has resigned his office as executive, and Dr. Hamilton Williams, of Green Point, who, according to published reports, is credited with having carried from Germany the knives with which Cavendish and Burke were cut to pieces in Phoenix Park, was appointed in his place. It was alleged against Rossa that he was too ready to embroil himself in political contests in this country and was generally on the side on which was ranged the friends of Ireland. Rossa, it is said, told a friend that he wanted to get out of the organization for the present. Friends of Rossa say that the Fenian Brotherhood has not had much use for him lately and wanted him to get out to make room for a more energetic and lively man.

Canadian Sailors.

AND THEIR VALUE AS RECRUITS TO THE BRITISH ARMY.

Lord Brassey's book on the English navy, regarding which expectation has been running high, has just been issued. Referring to the naval preparations of the colonies, he speaks of the elasticity of the resources which make Canada of great service to the British Empire. The mercantile tonnage of the Dominion, he says, ranks third of all the nations of the world, and 37,000 sailors hail from her ports. Newfoundland is also a great nursery for seamen, and the North American colonies are an admirable ground for recruiting a sea militia. Hitherto the enrolment of a colonial navy has been neglected. Since Lord Brassey's return from the North American colonies in 1872, he has brought this question before the public, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that the work has been taken up seriously, though not by the admiralty. It is, however, in more competent hands, and will, he trusts, be carried forward by the Dominion Government, supported to the fullest extent by the imperial exchequer. Lord Brassey advocates, as a reform, the question of great stringency in enforcing the construction of water tight compartments and of bulwarks for defending the machinery of naval vessels.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boosche's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when these diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles.

How Cannons are Made.

At the time when Sir W. Armstrong's heavy guns were swamping such inferior in military circles, two Irishmen were in conversation on the subject. "Pat," says one, "however do they make them cannons without a jine?" "Arrah!" exclaimed Pat, "sure it's aisy to understand ye wor rared in a bog? Doesn't everyone know that they get a big round hold an' pour a lot ov iron round it?"

The following comparative statement of Canada's export of fish to the United States by months for the nine months, January to September, 1885 and 1886, shows that notwithstanding the fish duties—the shortage is only $560,643 in 1886:—

The Pulpit is learning that it cannot drive people into the pews nor frighten them into a sectarian heaven; that a rational religion based on the proofs of science and saturated with love is to be the religion of the future. Love of power, religion of pride, hereditary bias, about-sectarian policy, narrow bigotry, one and all conspire to make the pulpit reluctant to let go the old grip—but the grip slowly weakens, nevertheless. The minister who most readily adjusts his theology to the daily advancing thought of the world is the most successful, the most popular, and does the most good. "When I was young," said a white-haired Methodist minister not long ago, "the most successful and influential pulpit worker was he who built the sectarian wall thickest and highest; now, he who gets it thinnest and lowest is the best and most popular preacher." God speed the day when the man on either side of the wall is thought by the other to be good enough for heaven.—Religio-Phil. Journal.
