It's the ingredients you cannot see—the patient care in making that are the secrets of Moir's goodness.

Cocoa beans, selected, graded, blended, roasted and ground with infinite care in our own factory.

The wrong temperature will ruin candy. In the Moir factory expensive machinery keeps the air cool and dry every day in the year, no matter what it is like outside.

IN MEMORIAM

G. M. MacLEOD. On Monday, June 5th, a great shadow settled over the community of New Glasgow, when at an early hour in the morning the soul of George Melvin MacLeod took flight to the Great Beyond.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

"Fruit-a-lives" Completely Relieved Me

8928 Union St., Vancouver, B.C. "I suffered with all the symptoms of Female trouble, with chronic Constipation and constant Headaches. I had pains low down in the back and sides of the body. A doctor advised me to have an operation.

I started taking "Fruit-a-lives" and this medicine has completely relieved me of all my misery and suffering.

I am free of pain and headaches and the terrible Constipation, and what saved me is the fruit medicine, "Fruit-a-lives."

Madam M. J. GORSE. 60c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

He bore it all with such cheerful fortitude that even up to the last hopes were held out for his recovery; but he in whose keeping are the destinies of men ruled otherwise. He had despite all that tender nursing and the best medical aid could do Melvin answered the summons a short while before the rest of us.

Melvin was a general favorite with young and old alike. The children loved to be with him, because he entered into their amusements; among the older people he had a wide circle of friends and no enemy. The many who visited him during his illness were received with a pleasant smile and a hearty welcome.

The services were conducted by the Rev. J. S. Bennell, who gave most impressive address from a passage quoted by the departed. The Rev. John Stirling, a former pastor, and a close friend of the family, offered touching and inspiring prayers. The hymns chosen were among those that Melvin so often sang vigorously and with fervor.

Melvin made no pretence, and he did not need to. Men took him as he was, and they found a real man through and through. His word was the equivalent of his bond, honesty his watchword, and anything mean or small was foreign in his nature.

"And though in this lean age forlorn, Too many a voice may cry, That man shall have no After-morn, Not yet of these am I.

The man survives, and whatsoever He wrought of good or brave, Will mould him through the cycle year.

That dawn behind the grave." He leaves to sorrow for a kind husband, and affectionate son and brother, his wife Cora, daughter of George and Mrs. White, York Pt., his parents, John T. and Mrs. MacLeod, still living at New Glasgow, turned recently from the West to be with him during his illness, and two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Haslam of Springfield, and Mrs. Ernest MacNeill, of Cavendish.

old-timer has passed over to the great majority. Mrs. Burns came to Edmonton from Brookfield, P. E. I., and as a young woman about thirty-four years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Burns lived on a farm just north of the city until about nine years ago, when they retired and have made their home in the city since, to mourn two daughters, Mrs. McMillan, of Clyde, and Helen, who was a devoted attendant until the end came; also two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Gillis of Bradalbane, P. The Woman picked her way cautiously along the sidewalk where here and there small cakes of ice still adhered to the pavement, despite the strenuous efforts which had been made to remove them.

Coming towards her she beheld a young colored waiter, bearing on his right hand, in true Pullman fashion, a heavy tray loaded with dishes which he was returning to the restaurant, where the Woman was also bound. He was travelling quickly and the Woman hoped that he might not make a misstep, but her good wishes for his safe conduct proved futile. He slipped on a treacherous strip of glassy ice formed from water which dripped from the roof of the building, slid rapidly the full length of the strip and brought up at the restaurant door in a sitting position, still manfully balancing the tray. The head waiter, who had witnessed his unglorious arrival, ran out and relieved him of his burden.

As the fallen one rose to his feet he displayed his even white teeth in a broad grin and said: "Ah say, boss, it suttinly am a good thing that dinner was et. Yuh done tol me to git des heah dishes in a hurry. Oh didn't even take time to walk. Ah come back like a 'spress train. Ah did."—Chicago
