RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions adopted were read by Mr. Leslie Hunter of Bridgetown, chairman of the resolutions committee.

The Association expressed its "loyalty and devotion" to Queen Elizabeth II and confidence in the leadership of Hon. George Drew in the federal field and Mr. R.R. Bell in the provincial.

The meeting went on record as being "strongly opposed to the principle of recent legislation which granted pensions to members of the House of Commons and to the practice of holding two sessions of the House of Commons in one year, thereby providing to members two indemnities in one year at the expense of the taxpayers of this country."

The convention also "viewed with alarm the loss to this country of our markets, especially the British market for our farm produce and would urge the government to assist in the lowering of the cost of production by increasing the subsidy on feed grains and thus enable our farmers to compete profitably on world markets."

Mr. R.R. Bell, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party in this Province spoke briefly in introducing the guest speaker, Hon. Babbitt Parlee of Moncton, president of the Executive Council in the Hugh John Fleming Conservative Government of New Brunswick. Mr. Bell said the convention was "the best ever held in King's County." He also supported efforts for a clean election.

Hon. Mr. Parlee, who was a former Mayor of Moncton, declared that the hope of Canada lay in the Progressive Conservative Party. However, it must be remembered the party and its program depended on the interest shown by citizens.

He recalled when the Bennett Government was in power and said the great depression of the 30's had been like a millstone around its neck. However, the seeds of the depression had been sown in 1927 when the Liberals were in power; and the country was making good progress out of the business doldrums when the Liberals were elected in 1935.

It was not true to say that social legislation was a product of the Liberal Party, he maintained. It is a product and dividend of the work of the citizens of the country and is a right of the people. The Progressive Conservative Party stands for an extension of social legislation. The motto of the party is "Security for the citizens" and the creed is "Faith, courage and hope in our country, people and party."

Other speakers included Messrs. Charles R. McQuaid, secretary of the Provincial Progressive Conservative Party, Charlottetown; Gerald Foster, past president of the Young Progressive Conservative Association, Charlottetown; and Mrs. W.H. V. Dunbar, president of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association of the 5th District of Queen's.

Maj. MacDonald

Mr. Fred Bennett, canner, Morell, James Cain, farmer, New Perth, Alister H. Stewart, pensioner of Georgetown who is also the president of the 5th King's Progressive Conservative Association.

After he had expressed his thanks to the convention, Major MacDonald dealt with the political situation of the day. He said the country was feeling the effects of inflation caused partially by the government's high taxation policies.

He recalled that three years ago the federal authorities did not support the potato industry at a time when prices were low, but at the same time poured out millions to western grain farmers, Ottawa, the speaker said, was not in sympathy with the potato industry.

The government was responsible for the loss of markets and declining prices for agricultural products. The country was in need of a shakeup. The present government had been in power too long.

The Progressive Conservative party was going into the next election fully organized, the speaker said. He promised his support to the Young Progressive Conservative Association, whose members will be a great asset to the party. They was room, too, for women's organizations in the party. They had done good work in other provinces.

A clean election campaign would have his ardent support, and he decried abuses of the election act in this Province at previous elections.

to break in the situation with regard to the Wood Islands ferry." Many members present took part in the discussions dealing with practically all the subjects that have engaged the active interest of the Board for several years.

President MacDonald, Major MacNutt, Col. Storey, Benj. E. Rogers, Gordon Dew, Keith MacKinnon, Earl Taylor, Alister MacLeod, and others touched on such matters as children's playgrounds, City squares, building code and fire regulations. President MacDonald expressed his appreciation for the manner in which several subjects were thoroughly aired, adding "we must have the long view on these matters and it is only by a constant attention to such matters over considerable time, that we can hope at last to achieve the aim we have in view."

A resolution of regret was passed in connection with the illness of Mr. G. E. Corbett, local manager for Woolworths Ltd., who is presently on sick leave, and is scheduled to take on lighter work in Toronto. Mr. Corbett was an active and valued member of the Board during the time he was engaged in business here.

Guests present were T. E. Rowley, Windsor, N.S., and Stewart Smith, City.

Souris and the Magdalen Islands and the services provided by the S.S. Ulna, plying between Montserrat, Georgetown and ports in Cape Breton Island, the resumption of these services being definitely to the advantage of the producers of King's County.

Deplored the fact that the extravagance and waste in our present government is such that excessive taxes are being imposed and are adding to the present unreasonably high cost of living.

Strongly urged the Federal Government to improve on and make greater use of the great natural facilities of the port of Georgetown, especially for winter traffic.

Deplored the political activities of certain public servants in both federal and provincial elections.

In another resolution the convention declared:

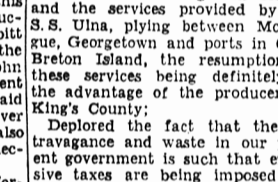

"Whereas the St. Lawrence seaway project is being financed at least in part by the taxpayers of these Maritime Provinces, and whereas the benefits to be received from this project will go almost entirely to the central provinces

"Be it therefore resolved that this Association go on record as favoring some measure of compensation from the Federal Government to the Maritimes in lieu of their share of the money being spent on the seaway project, and this compensation might very well take the form of a grant-in-aid to assist a project of rural electrification."

The convention also "viewed with alarm the loss to this country of our markets, especially the British market for our farm produce and would urge the government to assist in the lowering of the cost of production by increasing the subsidy on feed grains and thus enable our farmers to compete profitably on world markets."

Consider Tropical Tree For Newsprint

ROME, Dec. 10—(AP)—South American countries today asked a commission of Food and Agriculture Organization experts to study the use of the Amazon's fast-growing cecotia tree to ease the world's growing shortage of newsprint.

Wood experts told the commission the cecotia (or cecrotia) tree is abundant in the Amazon valley and many parts of South America, grows big enough for use in five or six years, and is one of the tropical hardwoods best adapted for making woodpulp.

Let's Talk It Over

The Summerside vandals whose favorite indoor sport was the tearing apart of the old Crystal Rink have been deprived of their pastime by the complete destruction of the old home of winter sports. There is evidence, however, that the demolition squad may have moved their base of operations to the new sports emporium on Notre Dame Street directly across from the site of the Crystal Rink. The Curling Club has been broken into twice recently, and it looks as if the vandals might be planning to concentrate their attention there. The new curling rink will be much harder to take apart. Dynamite might be necessary to get things started, and there is always the danger that dynamite blasts might be heard up at the local police station.

Most people are dreaming of a white Christmas. We'll string along, but the dream needn't come true until, say, Christmas Eve. The clean travelling that prevails at the present time is close to ideal, and one hesitates to trade it even for jingle bells. If snow could be rationed, it would soar rapidly in popularity, but after last winter's ordeal there must be people who are becoming allergic to the stuff.

All political parties in Canada seem now to favor health insurance for the Canadian people, and they differ only as to the ways and means of effecting it. When you think of it, is it not a little strange that "free health services" did not precede "free schools" in the parade of expanding freedom? Education is
