A Serious Charge.

A VERY serious charge has been brought against the Hon. Oliver Mowat, widely known as Leader of the Grit Government of Ontario and "the Christian Politician."

"Memorandum of the position which Mr. James Hart proposes to take in his capacity of M. P. for the county of Prince Edward."

"1. Mr. Hart agrees to support the Mowat government in their nomination of a candidate to fill the speaker's chair."

"2. Mr. Hart consents to support the Mowat government on every question which may arise in the house which shall be declared by the government as a vote of want of confidence."

"(Signed), JAMES HART. Signed by James Hart, the day and year aforesaid, in the presence of"

"The Montreal Gazette remarks:—A clearer case of corruption could not be made out. Mr. Mowat is proved to have committed the very crime which he has endeavored to fasten on his political opponents, that of bribery of a member of the legislature to betray his constituents for considerations of personal gain."

Our Position and Prospects.

In the course of his reply to the address presented to him by the City Council of St. John, the Governor General said:—

"Reassuring circumstances encounter our attention on every side. Look in the first place at the credit of the Dominion. Her credit has been steadily rising, and never stood higher, her securities rank not only before those of any British colony, but before those of the continental powers of Europe. It is, I think, a remarkable fact, and one upon which we may dwell with some satisfaction, that the reputation of the Dominion is such that she can go into the market and borrow at rates more advantageous than those open to such nations as France and Germany. Look again at the state of things disclosed by the accounts of your public Savings Banks. I turn to those for the two Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and I see that while in the year 1873 the total of the deposits was $3,500,000, the total for last year stood at over $12,000,000. That does not look like national impoverishment. The development of your mineral resources, the completion of your railway system, which, in a few months will unite the Atlantic and Pacific seaports of Dominion, all these points to a future which cannot fail to add to the wealth and reputation and prosperity of the Dominion. These are important considerations which forbid us to despair, and when, in addition to these, we call to mind the soundness of your political institutions, the equitable distribution of property among your people, the absence of anything like like widespread poverty, the absence of class jealousies, the spread of education, the improvement of your agriculture, the freedom which you enjoy from foreign complications and international anxieties—you can, I think, afford to look forward with confidence and equanimity, and to believe that the foundations on which your national stability depends are too solid to be shaken by temporary commotions such as those through which you are passing at present."

Tribute to Sir W. Young.

On the retirement of Sir William Young from the position of chairman of the board of governors, the following resolution was adopted and placed upon the minutes:—"This board accept with extreme regret the resignation of their respected chairman, the Hon. Sir William Young, whose name has been identified with Dalhousie College during nearly the whole course of its history. An accomplished scholar, an ardent educationist, and wielding extensive public influence, Sir Wm. Young was in a position to render invaluable service to this institution. His practical sagacity, his brilliant talents, his cautious statesmanship, his unflinching prudence were laid under tribute to advance the interests of this college. He stood by it loyally in its days of weakness, and to his wise counsels is due much of its strength to-day. Generations to come will, we trust, point to the progress of Dalhousie College as one of the best results of Sir Wm. Young's long and useful life. The board rejoice that they do not need to part with their honored chairman as one of the governors of the college, and they have to express their earnest wish that he may be spared in health and comfort to see the increasing prosperity of the college. They would also most respectfully and earnestly solicit his continued interest in an institution on whose behalf he has labored so long, so faithfully and so successfully, with which his name is so honorably identified, and which, while promising to be increasingly useful in the future, has already conferred inestimable benefits on the community."

The discovery of a coin of 1655 in the vicinity of Sackville is an interesting event, but the coins are not very rare. This was when Louis XIV. was king of France. In the provincial museum there is a silver coin, date 1657, of the same reign. This was found in Nova Scotia. The remarks that have been made about old coins suggest a remark made by a colored woman to whom Mrs. Honeyman was showing Dr. Honeyman's collection of old and foreign coins. The visitor ran her hands through the pile and pityingly said, "You and your husband has taken in an awful lot of bad money."—Halifax Herald.

A Sensible Girl Married.

(Special Correspondence Halifax Herald.)

Boston, Oct. 15.—The account of the Prince Edward Island girl who found herself in an unenviable situation in the Centre house in Boston, reminds me of another girl from the "Garden Isle," whose matrimonial venture has resulted differently. I refer to Mary E. McLeod, who has lived in Cambridgeport for some time, preferring to live in a family where she would have a good home and good wages, rather than be a starved slave in the workshops of Boston, as too many of our provincial girls are. She had the good fortune to find a home in the family of Frank Speare, where her amiable qualities were fully appreciated. It happened that Charles P. Fish, a friend of the family, was on a visit from Fort Yale, British Columbia, where he is doing a large business and is wealthy, and seeing Miss McLeod, and being impressed with her jadylike and unassuming manner and her excellent housekeeping qualities, soon offered himself in a marriage, and as he was known to be an honorable fellow, like a sensible girl she accepted. The wedding took place on the fourth inst., at Mr. Speare's country residence in Barnstable, where the friends of the happy couple assembled in large numbers. Nellie M. Speare, daughter of the host, was the bridesmaid. Many beautiful and costly presents were bestowed testamentary of the high esteem in which they were held. At the close of the ceremony they departed for their far off home on the Pacific coast.

A Story of Two Captains.

(Halifax Herald.)

There is considerable of romance connected with an unassuming marriage notice published in the Herald to-day. Three years ago, a gallant Nova Scotia captain of mature age, proudly sailed out of a Nova Scotia port, leaving behind him a young maiden to whom he had plighted his troth. No happier man ploughed the ocean than he. No happier maid walked on terra firma than she. They corresponded. But time brings about marked changes. Thousands of miles separated them. Months and years passed. "He cometh not," said the girl's friends. His letters came at intervals, but not himself. The machinations and intrigues of the lady's relatives and friends resulted in her engagement to her cousin, another gallant and handsome captain—at present with his ship on the Nova Scotia coast. The wedding day was set. The marriage to captain No. 2 was to have taken place this week. But meanwhile, the friends of the absent and faithful No. 1 were not indifferent and idle. He had arrived in London from a long voyage and was promptly informed of the position of affairs. There was no time to be lost. He left his ship in charge of the mate, and arrived in Halifax on the Hanoverian on Saturday morning. That evening I found him at a pretty village on the line of the W. and A. Railway. Like Caesar

He came, he saw, he conquered. Yesterday morning he returned to Halifax accompanied by the young lady, and last night they were made one by a well-known Baptist divine. Captain No. 2 is hereby notified of his matrimonial shipwreck. Meanwhile there is an interesting subject for gossip down the line.

Stewart's Fate and Gordon's Heroism.

A London correspondent writes: We have had a painful sensation in the news of Col. Stewart's murder. This fact helps also to keep alive the public excitement. There is meanwhile a sharp revival of jereמידs in the Tory papers over Kharout, and the reports that Mahidi is now ready to march give color to the fears that Gen. Gordon will not be able to hold out. The difficulty of transport on the Nile are unquestionably great. Steamers are breaking their cranks, hawsers are giving way, and boats are capsizing. It is said that the saddles for the camel corps, being made of green wood, are splitting already, and much trouble is anticipated in the work of replacing them. Gen. Gordon's exploits have made him the hero of all Europe, and the whole continental press is filled with praise of him. His work is always put in contrast with the bungling impotency of the general English policy. It is said now that there was more truth than a little in the Times' recent canard about Gen. Wolesey's recall. The condition of the Cape is so menacing that nobody sees how war can be avoided there. It is a curious fact that public opinion of England is almost a unit in opposing the foreign policy of the government. There is growing at the inaction at the Cape. People declaim against the embeccility and delay shown in Egypt, and they sneer at the folly of alienating Germany. And yet the government has rarely been stronger than it is now.

Delightful Consistency.

(St. John Sun.)

The Toronto Globe in a recent issue resurrected the old question of confederation, and declared that it had damaged Toronto in its wholesale and retail trade and done almost nothing for its manufactures."

The Halifax Recorder, as violent an opposition sheet in Nova Scotia as the Globe is in Ontario, attacks confederation with equal bitterness but from a totally different reason. It says:—

At every railway station in the province of Nova Scotia on any fine day may be found numerous packages of goods—agricultural implements, leather findings, flour, and scores of other commodities. A glance at the labels on them shows that in most cases they come from Ontario.

Both agree in deprecating the union of the provinces; they are as wide asunder as the poles in the reasons assigned. The Globe asserts that it has done nothing for Ontario manufactures and trade; the Recorder's complaint is that Ontario manufactures are flooding the province of Nova Scotia.

"TWENTY-FOUR YEARS EXPERIENCE," says an eminent physician, convinces me that the only way to cure nervous exhaustion, and weakness of the sexual organs, is to repair the waste by giving brain and nerve foods, and of all the remedies compounded, Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best.
