Centennial Committee Planning Financial Aid

The central centennial committee met yesterday morning in their first weekly meeting to hear reports and suggestions from the chairmen of sub-committees.

The first report received was that of J. Lincoln Dewar, chairman of the committee on agricultural, fisheries and community affairs. He suggested that assistance be given to the Women's Institute in its needlepoint project. The group plans to make 25 seat covers for Government House with the provincial coat of arms worked into them.

The committee mentioned that they hoped to provide towns and incorporated villages 20 cents per head of population to assist in paying for special activities, in addition to the 20 cents per head already offered for permanent projects.

At an agricultural project it was announced that an attempt will be made to "domesticate" the Lady's Slipper, floral emblem of the province, through the research department, Experimental Farm.

Burke of H.M.C.S. St. Croix, A.B. Bruce MacLean of the R.C.N., stationed on HMCS St. Croix is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacLean.

He also proposed a essay competition in two parts. The first for older people on the theme of: "When I was young"; and the second an open event under the heading, "Rural life in 1964". Both are designed to perpetuate the Island way of life at the time of the first Confederation meeting here.

Along the same line, he proposed a search be made for farms still in operation, and owned by the same family for at least 100 years. They would be suitably marked so visitors would have an idea of the age of the place and the continuity of Island farm life.

It was also suggested a "period" farm house be established, complete with furnishings of the 1964 era, and arrangements made for the re-creation of a old-time blacksmith shop near the town.

On this point Dr. Frank MacKinnon, general chairman, who presided yesterday morning said he would like to see the Stafford Gordon property near Brudenell turned into an agricultural museum.

EFFORTS' FUTURE
Regarding the Lady's Slipper, it was noted that efforts to transplant this flower are all most futile. It was said it will then die out. Since it is the only known orchard growing in the province it is hoped to find a way of perpetuating a way of life more than in its present wild state.

In general remarks Dr. MacKinnon said since next year's celebration must be considered a prelude to 1967, the 100th anniversary of Confederation, it had to be thought of as a national event, not just a purely local party.

He pointed out the necessity of combining local and national events in as wide a variety as possible to appeal to every taste. These would range from purely cultural matters to games, sports, music and dancing. In pointing to the national character of the centennial, the chairman mentioned the new Fathers of Confederation Memorial Building, which is being erected through the combined efforts of all the provinces and dominion government.

He said the "centennial calendar" was being prepared to list everything in prospect, and it was for this reason the committee has asked all the small areas of incorporated towns and villages to present their proposals for things of a permanent nature in their communities.

It was noted by Kenneth Birville, of the planning committee, that several communities were now actively working on projects they were submitting for approval. They included North Ruston, Alberton, Montague, Kensington, Summerside, and Murray River.

In the other direction, he thought many gardens could hold such things as "picnic" dinners in connection with special days.

Also under consideration was the matter of decorations in the smaller communities with all villages and towns expected to break out lights, flags and other items which would serve to brighten things for the visitor and resident alike.
