

Hungarian Refugees Tell Of Heroism, Heartbreak

By IAN MACNEIL
 CANADIAN PRESS Correspondent
 SYDNEY (CP)—Five Hungarian refugees who participated in the Budapest uprisings arrived here Sunday by plane and told stories of heroism, heartbreak and hope.
 Pretty 18-year-old Marion Sroder said she was among the peaceful demonstrators who were fired upon by Hungarian security police Oct. 23 when they gathered around the Budapest radio station. "It was like a bad dream," she said through an interpreter. "Many of my friends fell. I pray it was not in vain."
 Miss Sroder is en route to Toronto to join her brother who came to Canada seven years ago. HEART AT HOME
 "I hear this is land of hope and glory," she said. "It's strange but that would be a good description of Hungary today. I'm happy to be here but my heart is in Budapest. The situation looks hopeless but Hungary will rise again."

 She refused to elaborate on details of the struggle. "My mother and father remain behind," she said. "Please understand."
 Gza Hunfalv 24-year-old acromechanic, was en route to Winnipeg to join relatives.
 "I hear it's awfully cold out there," he said in broken English. "But it's colder in Siberia I bet."
 Hunfalv was taken prisoner by the Russians a few hours after the uprising started.
TALKED WAY OUT
 "I talked my way out of the labor camp and in a way I cannot reveal, made my way to Austria."
 Forty-nine-year-old Mannel Matome was en route to Saskatoon to join her husband who has resided in Canada for eight years.

"It will be wonderful to see my husband again," she said. "It was difficult to leave my two daughters behind but perhaps they will follow later."
 Lackics Joesef and Bakor Ystair told of the terrific problems encountered by the deluge of refugees streaming across the border into Austria.
 They said official estimates of the number of refugees who have fled to Austria since the start of the revolt, to take advantage of her standing offer of asylum, varied from 50,000 to 100,000.
 "The help that countries like Canada has offered has been greatly appreciated," Ystair said. "There is, however, a certain amount of disappointment that we did not receive aid during the battle. Free countries kept urging us to revolt against communism but when we did they would not help us."

Montague Waterfront Active During The Past Five Weeks

The waterfront in Montague has been the scene of great activity during the past five weeks. Citizens have noted that it is reminiscent of the old days to see the many Newfoundland motor vessels tied up at Poole and Thompson's wharf, where the loading of produce never ceases to be a fascinating thing to watch.
 Though potatoes make up the important part of the cargoes, items such as butter, eggs, cranberries and canned beef also go in the holds along with turnips, parsnips, beets, carrots and cabbage which flow in from the farms on trucks and in trailers drawn by tractors. Oftentimes they take away live stock, a cow, hens, geese, young pigs.
 From Marystown, Burin and St. Anthony's they come, and from Creston, Ramea, English Harbor West, Ballestram, Bay-Du-Nord, Grole, Gaultois, Lord's Cove, Petites, Fortune and Grand Bank. Sometimes unusual and always interesting are the names of the sturdy craft. The captains, who know seafaring so well must have fine stories to tell of their experiences and of the ships they sail.
 The Bellegreve, the Golden Glow Nellie A. Cluett, Ruby Wiscombe, Ruby Smith, The General Bursfall, the Spindler, Shirley Blanche, Arawana, The Pauline Winters are some of those familiar at this important port.

 The visits of those boats with their friendly captains and crews, have long since become events looked forward to each fall in Montague.
Probe Arson Possibility In Recent Fires
 The possibility of arson in recent fires in King's County is being investigated by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, it has been learned.
 Two blazes are receiving particular attention. One was at the store of Lawrence McHeron, Gasperaux which was extinguished before it caused serious damage. There apparently had been more than one attempt to start a fire at this store. The business was operated formerly by Borden Graham and had only recently changed hands.
 The other blaze under investigation was at the Dockendorf sawmill at Dundas. Here the fire was discovered by neighbors and was extinguished before any damage was caused. Other recent fires in the County included a store at Murray River, operated by George

P.W.C. NEWS

The biggest event of the social world took place last week. This was the annual coronation of the College King and Queen. We can be proud of the good taste of the student body and the choice of LeClair as King and Eleanor Haywood as Queen. Alan MacKenzie and Maida Rogerson were the Prince and Princess while Fred Seller ably performed the duties of the Arch Deacon.
 The first news of the results of the election was announced at the Torch Lite Parade, when the newly elected Royalty took their places of honour in the procession. There were about 200 to 300 students in the parade and, we even had a mobile band. It is not known what our good townsfolk who are proud of P.W.C. must have been very glad to see such a tremendous exhibition of the so-called dead, college spirit, which was just resting.
 The night was ended with a dance, at which the Royal Family received their symbols of royalty and the homage of their fellow students. It would be hard to estimate the number attending the dance but one can only say if there were any more, we couldn't have danced.

 "Wonder what happened to the 'College Times'?" So much activities during the last few weeks don't tell me it was forgotten? Well, the answer finally came out. The paper was at the publisher's and as soon as the ink dried it would "hit the corridors".
 The football team finally had their much looked forward to game. Saturday they retired to the field with two teams made up of the 1st team's players. After much grunting and grunting the white's, I think, won by a score of 25-0.
 But football isn't the only sport. A few days ago the overwriter happened to drop into the gym, and noticed a, to say the least, eccentric group of players jumping, yelling and hitting a fairly large round ball over a net. To relieve my innocence it was explained to me, with much exasperation, this was Volleyball. Well needless to say, I left the gym. But, truthfully this, what seemed to be forgotten game, has been, one might say, revived. As of yet too much is not known concerning a league, but it is hoped to form one soon.
 Nothing more is known about hockey and basketball but maybe next week a little more detail may be found on these sports.
 The Christmas exam schedule has been posted on the bulletin boards and many students, it is said, are beating a path to get the text books.
 It is rumored that next Friday

BRISTOL

Mr. Bill Kelly has purchased the old store of the late Bruce McEwen, that has been vacant for quite a number of years.
 Mr. Kelly is tearing the building down for what lumber he can salvage from it for other purposes. This old store property goes away back through the years and was operated by Mr. McEwen's late father, Hon. H. D. McEwen. A large volume of business was done at its old site with the railway siding and C.N.R. station so near.
 Mr. Frank McLaren, Cable Head has purchased the lovely home of Mr. Bennett on the Morelle river bank, east of the bridge. He will move to the property right away. Mr. Bennett, who is well along in life now has moved into his cottage also at the river side. Here he has carried on community canning for many years and is considered one of the best.
 Making inquiry about hockey this winter we learn from Mr. Jack Coffin, that there is hope of a team. He pointed to the lovely trophy on display in the village diner. Jack said: "Don't forget our boys brought that home to the village last winter for smart hockey."

The Guardian, Page 5 Tuesday, Nov. 27, 1936

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Lapierre have their new lovely home in the village nearly completed.
 Miss Muriel Villard, who was on the staff of the village diner for quite a while has gone to Boston. She will spend the winter months with relatives, especially her aunt, Mrs. Kennedy. She will be sorely missed by her many young friends in and around the village where she was very popular.
 Miss Elva Trainor, has taken a position as waitress at the village diner, a very pleasant young lady Miss Trainor is well liked by the patrons.
 Miss Margaret Finley, and her sister, Mrs. James F. MacDonald were in the city last week on business.

WREN RECRUITING TEAM HERE

 Naval authorities indicate that the main intention or aim of the team, while on the Island, is not to recruit, but rather to familiarize the people of the province with the training and activities of the women of the Royal Canadian Navy. However, they are also prepared to recruit if acceptable applications are made.
 During their visit, they will speak at Union Commercial College, Saint Dunstan's University and at several places in communities in the immediate Charlottetown area. It is planned that they will be in Summerside for one day before returning to their bases on Friday. Contact can also be made with them almost anytime during the period at H.M.C.S. Queen Charlotte.
 C.P.O. Bayley, who is the only wren chief petty officer in the Royal Canadian Navy and who served for three years during the War, stated that a force of only 356 wrens is desired in Canada. This force, she reports, is required to be highly trained in the event that Canada may become involved in hostilities. She further said that the purpose of their scheduled visits to the colleges is not to take girls from their studies but rather to interest them in wren life as a possible career after they have completed their scholastic education.
