THE DAILY EXAMINER.

DECEMBER 18, 1894.

THE PRIME MINISTER.

It has transpired that before asking anyone to form a Cabinet, the Governor-General asked the advice of Sir Frank Smith who advised him to summon Hon. Mr. Bowell. "I think," said Sir Frank in a subsequent conversation, "that I could not have given His Excellency better advice. I have known Mr. Bowell for a great many years, and although he has been a strong Orangeman and very earnest and outspoken in his views and opinions, as he has a perfect right to be, yet I have never know him to say an offensive word about Catholics, or to do anything which they could regard as offensive. I look upon him as an honest and fair-minded man, and I think the country will be quite safe in his hands." This estimate of the Prime Minister, made by a representative Irish Catholic, is endorsed by men of all shades of religious and political opinion. The Free Press, of Winnipeg, an Opposition organ, says:

"To Mr. Bowell personally no one will object, and he may be congratulated on having attained the Premiership of this great Dominion. He is a man of high character and sterling personal qualities."

The (Independent) Journal of Ottawa says:

"Mr. Bowell, as everyone knows, is a minister of long experience and a man of the highest personal character. There has not been, even in the bitterness and recklessness of party campaign, a breath of aspersion on his personal scrupulousness and absolute integrity, and that is a notable fact in a time in which aspersions are numerous and often justifiable. Mr. Bowell stands clear of all that sort of thing. He is held by all, friends and opponents alike, to be a first-class administrator, as his life long knowledge in public affairs will enable him to triumph over many a problem which might upset equally able but less experienced statesmen. Latterly Mr. Bowell's initiation and promotion of the remarkably successful Intercolonial conference made him a figure in the public eye in the rest of the Empire, and even here paved the way somewhat for his present succession to the late lamented Premier. Undoubtedly, Mr. Bowell will receive a most hearty and united support from the Conservative party, and while there is certainly a hard struggle ahead of the party in the near future they will certainly go into it under creditable and capable leadership."

It is thus seen that not only Conservatives, but Liberals and Independents, bear testimony to the high character and eminent ability of the new Premier.

Mr. Bowell is a native of Suffolk, England. He was born on the 27th December, 1823, so that, if he should live until Thursday of next week, he will have completed his seventy-first year. For many years he was proprietor and editor of the Belleville Intelligencer. There can be no doubt that his long journalistic training helped to fit him for the Parliamentary and Departmental duties which he has in recent years performed with great ability and with great satisfaction to the public. He was first elected to Parliament in 1867 the year in which the Confederation was formed, and he has been in Parliament ever since. In 1878, the year in which the National Policy was accepted and authorized by the people, he became a member of the Canadian Government under Sir John Macdonald with the portfolio of Minister of Customs; and in the Government he has remained ever since, developing from Minister of Customs to Minister of Trade and Commerce, and from a member of the House of Commons to Leader of the Senate. Now he is Premier!

He seems to embody that element in the English character which is expressed in the words "hold fast." We have no doubt that he will, if his life be spared, hold fast to the Government of Canada. The people know Mr. Bowell and they know the National Policy. They will prefer the man and the policy they know to the man and the policy they don't know.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—The Bank of Ottawa has a substantial profit of $188,096, or only $3,616 less than in 1893. Its statement shows an increase of deposits, a decrease in loans, and an addition to the holding of debentures, etc.

—The Montreal Witness says: 'In deciding that the funeral of the late Sir John Thompson should be a public one Mr Bowell and his colleagues have taken the only course really open to them, and one which the country will ratify. The premier is, under our constitution, the real ruler of the country. His power is that formerly wielded by the monarch, with this advantage, that while the death of a kaiser or a czar makes a jar throughout the world, a constitutional country changes its ruler with no jar and almost too little consciousness. It is a great event, to which all circumstances is due. The late premier died in the service of his country, and the end came with such unexpectedness and under circumstances which rendered it so peculiarly conspicuous in the eyes of the whole world that public ceremonies are more than ordinarily necessary to give vent to the public feeling that has been aroused."

SIR JOHN S. D. THOMPSON.

Canadian Premier, born at Halifax, N. S., Nov. 10th, 1844, died in Windsor Castle, England, Dec. 12th, 1894.

Ah! little we wot at the dawn of the day,
What shall hap' ere the evening's decline;
We map out the plan and we measure the way:
Rare projects the heart doth enshrine.

But an angel unseen standeth oft' in our path,
And a limit is set to our range;
We see not the end, and we fume in our wrath,
Yet the Changeless doth compass the change.

Sore tidings flash from strand to strand,
O'er sea-wide lake, o'er mountain steep;
And the firmest-minded in our land
Bows down his silvered head to weep.

In ancient Windsor's kingly pile,
Anigh Europa's mightiest throne.
'Neath lustre of a sovereign smile
A mightier Monarch claims His own.

And She, who in those turrets proud
First wept the widow's lonely tear,
Hath stood in reverence by the shroud,
And decked with flowers the stranger's bier.

Ho stately ship of Britain's line!
Peace to thy path across the foam;
Who royal is by right divine,
Thou bring'st in state unto his home.

Ho city, all fair, by the sea!
Receive with due welcome thy son,
Who cometh to rest him in thee
Untarnished, the victory won.

Ah, gently lay the sleeper down!
Earth's withering laurels shrink and fall;
What recketh he for minor crown
Who listeth to that loftier call!

Full tenderly lower him down!
All Canada bareth the head;
All Christendom weaveth a crown
To garland the undying dead.

Oh lesson of lessons, in chapter of life!
Rare chart for the guidance of youth!
Though strong be the current, and rough be the strife,
He shall win who embarks in the truth.

With country for aim, and with Heaven for his hope,
Aye ready, yet willing to wait;
The patriot works with unlimited scope,
Unheeding the issues of fate.

AT ST. DUNSTAN'S COLLEGE,

Lieut.-Governor is Addressed and Addresses the Students,

This forenoon His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor visited St. Dunstan's College and addressed the pupils in one of the large class-rooms of that institution. As His Honor entered the room he was warmly welcomed, the pupils singing the National Anthem. This was followed by the singing of the patriotic song "Canada," presented to the College by His Honor, the solo being sung by Master O'Connell, of Halifax, the students joining in the chorus. Then one of the students, Mr. A. A. Sinnott, of Morell, came forward and presented His Honor with the following address from the students:

Hon. George W. Howlan, Lieutenant-Governor of Prince Edward Island.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOR:—

Allow us again to bid you welcome to St. Dunstan's and to manifest our appreciation of your encouraging visits. Your presence here to-day is a proof of the interest you have always taken in educational matters and now that education on this Island has lately made such rapid advancement the most beneficial results must follow the encouraging impulse given by one in such a distinguished position as you occupy. Your efforts to promote the welfare of our nation, to instil patriotic sentiments into youthful minds and to give them a just estimation of the exhaustible resources of their country must be followed by the most beneficial results. Your great experience and successful carreer in public life eminently fits you to give advice to the rising generation—to whose guidance Canada's destiny shall be entrusted. Few of our Island people have to their credit such a list of brilliant achievements—all for the welfare and advancement of your fellow-countrymen. Such indeed only require a passing reference as they are well-known to all who are familiar with the history of those questions affecting the welfare of our province during the last quarter of a century. Your long and assidious labors for the fulfilment of the terms of confederation have won the enthusiastic approval of every Islander.

Owing to the fact that we are engaged in the Christmas Examinations we regret that we are unable to extend a more significant expression of the pleasure we experience from this visit of Your Honor to-day.

However before closing, we deem it necessary to pay a loving tribute to him for whom all Canada weeps to-day—we refer to the late lamented the Right Honorable Sir John Thompson, your political friend and Canada's greatest statesman, whose sudden death has plunged us into universal sorrow.

We respectfully tender our best regards to Mrs. Howlan, whose presence here would have added much to the pleasure we experience in addressing you. In conclusion we wish you both a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

His Honor, after thanking the pupils for their kind address and remarking that he would not keep them too long from their studies, as he knew they were working hard for the medal he was to present for the essay on Canada, went on to speak of Canada and its greatness. "The area of Canada," said he, "is 3,470,392 square miles, and that of the United States is 3,036,000: Canada is therefore 334,000 square miles larger than the United States. All this Canada—this glorious heritage—is yours rather than mine," he added, "for in the natural order of things I cannot live many more years to enjoy it." Quoting from a recent writer, he showed how difficult it was to form an adequate conception of the vastness of the country. England, Wales and Scotland form together an area of 88,000 square miles, and you could cut forty such areas out of Canada. New South Wales contains 300,175 square miles, and is larger by 162 square miles than France, continental Italy and Sicily. Canada would make eleven countries the size of New South Wales. There are in extent three British Indias in Canada, and still enough left over to make a Queen Victoria and a Victoria. The German Empire could be carved out of Canada, and fifteen more countries the same size. He then proceeded to quote from an oration delivered by the late General Butler to the students of Colby University, Waterville, Me., in the course of which he said "Canada has 500,000 square miles more than the United States and her surrounding waters contain quite one-half of all the fresh water on the globe. Please bear this fact in mind, for I repeat it is a foundation of the resources to make one of the greatest nations on the earth. Canada had quite one-quarter more land for wheat cultivation than has the whole United States. The average production of wheat per acre in the United States in the year 1887 was a little over twelve bushels, while in the same year in Manitoba, where we hardly realize there is aught to support life, the yield was 12,500,000 bushels (last year it was over 30,000,000) at an average of 27 bushels to the acre. Why should the lands be better in wheat producing lands than those of the United States? Because, he says, the climate is colder in the winter and hotter in the summer. I will add that Canada has more timber of every possible description than herself and the United States can need for 100 years to come. She has more iron and coal in her border than any other country yet known in the world; more copper than any other country, if not all others. And a recent writer says that five-sixths of all the nickel in the world comes from Canada. Mr. E. B. Eddy, the millionaire manufacturer of Hull, Quebec, who has lately returned from an extended trip across Canada and the United States, speaks very highly of Canada in the November number of the Gazette. He says: "Canadians may well feel proud and satisfied with their Dominion. I don't feel there are possibilities in any part of the States equal to those of our Canadian Northwest. Why, the mineral resources of the Rockies and British Columbia generally are simply inexhaustible. But her mineral resources are not the only thing Canada has to depend upon in the future; she has a grand agricultural country that has scarcely been touched yet. The fertility of the soil is practically inexhaustible and sufficient can be raised there to feed the world" His Honor then went on to quote statistics of the export trade of Canada to show their volume over and above what is required for home consumption, as follows:

Products of the mine	$ 1,515,092.00
" fisheries	3,969,723 00
" forest	9,529,695.00
Animals	11,646,782.00
Agriculture	2,588,765.00
Manufactures	1,925,497.00
Miscellaneous	46,709.00
Bullion	95,561.00
	$31,317,724.00

This was the showing for the first three months of the present year, from July to October. He thought the showing was an excellent one. We should all be proud of our country. The Scotchman and the Englishmen are proud of their respective countries, but we could get 40 Irelands and Englands out of Canada! He advised the boys to work hard, and pay attention to the instructions of their teachers. In this free country the highest position is open to even the poorest. Sir John Thompson, when 15 years of age, had to step out and earn his own living; but the habits of thrift and industry formed during his earlier life—his schoolboy days—did not fail him, and all know to what eminence he attained. "Where Sir John Thompson got," said he, "it is not impossible for any of you to get." He counselled the boys to be manly and self reliant; to work themselves rather than depend upon others to work for them. They should start out in life with some laudable object in view, and keep right ahead until this object is attained.

The address was listened to with the closest attention and was frequently interrupted by applause. The singing of "God Save the Queen" brought the interesting and instructive proceedings to a close.

CABINET MAKING AT OTTAWA

Nothing Definite to Report.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.

People are busily engaged in assisting Hon. Mr. Bowell in cabinet making. But as yet there is nothing of a definite nature to announce. Your correspondent learns on excellent authority that up to the present time the first minister has not communicated with any outsiders in reference to accepting a portfolio in his cabinet.

The local grits are in the cold shivers lest B. B. Osler, Q. C., should join the ministry.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper returned from the Pacific coast yesterday.

Senator Prowse had a long interview with the first minister yesterday.

Departure of the "Blenheim."

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.

There is still no definite news regarding the date of the departure of the Blenheim. It is thought, however, that her speed may be retarded so as to enable her to reach Halifax about the 27th.

Sir Charles Tupper will accompany the body of the late Premier to Halifax.
