THE DAILY EXAMINER.

AUGUST 29. 1894.

THE QUESTION OF CLUBS.

It is pleasing to be able to state authoritatively that The Examiner was not wrong in its interpretation of the decision of the Stipendiary Magistrate, our esteemed correspondent "Observer" to the contrary notwithstanding. It is pleasing, too, to have the Stipendiary Magistrate's authority for stating that our correspondent is not right when he says:

"There can be no question that a club may be formed and successfully carried on, even if got up on purpose to enable its members to get their liquors which they could not otherwise do owing to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act."

Our correspondent's language is very positive, as that of the most of our lawyers usually is. Still, as it is now certain that The Examiner did not misapprehend the Stipendiary-Magistrate's meaning, we may be pardoned if we suggest that our correspondent has done so. It may be, too, that a closer investigation and fuller consideration of the law bearing upon the case may result in a change of opinion on his part. Perhaps he has not fully comprehended, in all its aspects, the force and meaning of the word "club" or the range of the Magistrate's authority when enquiring into the bona fides of a club. Certainly there is a mistake somewhere; and as all men are liable to fall into mistakes, it is possible that our correspondent has fallen into this one. At any rate, we have the assurance of the Stipendiary-Magistrate of Charlottetown, that he means to punish, by fine or imprisonment of members, in all cases of clubs charged with trafficing in liquor and proved to have been formed for the purpose of evading the Canada Temperance Act. It is well that all persons who may desire to form themselves into clubs for this purpose and all persons who may be inclined to allow themselves to be persuaded thereto, should know this fact.

CHIEF JUSTICESHIP OF ONTARIO.

The resignation of Chief Justice Galt, of Ontario—announced to-day—leaves a great prize open to the lawyers of that Province. But for his fickleness and bad judgment, it is not unlikely that the brilliant D'Alton McCarthy would be the lucky man. Mr. McCarthy's career has been a funny one. Upon every public question he has devoted himself to, he has shown the same want of fixedness of purpose, the same vacillating movements. Take, for instance, the religious question A few years ago Mr. McCarthy courted the Roman Catholic Church, and it turns out that the majority of the appointments he made to the public service were of Catholic young men. Next he turned up as an Equal Righter, and declared in that position that he had at last found the true policy which should guide public men, and that he for one was bound to stand by the Equal Rights movement. Almost immediately he practically severed himself from it! Then, in 1893, he turned up as an opponent entirely of separate schools, declaring that if the people of Ontario wanted to abolish separate schools, he would like to see them have the power, while only a year later he declares that he is not agitating for the abolition of separate schools, and speaking for himself, that he would rather have separate schools than secular schools. Take, again, the Home Rule question. On this question he once voted for Home Rule; then a short time afterwards violently opposed it, declaring that he only voted for it in the face of an election—in other words to get votes.

Look, too, at his connection with Imperial Federation. He was the President of the Federation League in Canada. He devoted himself assiduously to the work; he was an enthusiast in it. Out of his connection with this organization came his position on Imperial and Colonial Preferential trade. He moved a motion in the House of Commons upon those lines, and in the speech with which he supported his motion he declared that there was a strong party in Britain in favor of the scheme, and that its final success, its early success, he looked upon as a strong probability—indeed a more than strong probability. Only two or three years afterwards, he is found with his back turned upon the Imperial Federation League—it is dropped like a new toy from the fingers of a tired and fickle child, and he is standing in his place in Parliament declaring that we should be unreasonable to ask Great Britain to adopt the very scheme that only two years before he had declared there was a strong party in Great Britain to support, and whose success he looked upon as assured beyond a doubt. Then, his varied course upon the trade question is well-known. (1) A strong Protectionist; (2) Thanking God for the National Policy; (4) Even when opposed to the Government still supporting them upon the National Policy; (4) Declaring for protection, but in a milder form; (5) Denouncing protection as monstrous.

It is not probable that a man who has been so unstable will be selected as Chief Justice of Ontario. We fear that D'Alton is out of it.

—Monetary Times: Real Light is likely to be thrown on the dark places of the late railway strike by the commission of enquiry which President Cleveland has set on foot. The workmen's story is being heard first. So far the chief enquiry centres around the Pullman works. In providing houses for the workmen, the Pullman Company, in effect, introduced a new feature of the old discredited system of "truck" pay. A woman who earns $1 a day and is charged $17 a month rent for her house, pays more than half her income in rent: it is evident that she must be in want of money and other things. The Company's side of the story has to be heard in rebuttal.

WHAT IS INCOME?

Let those who think they know what income is attempt to answer the following questions which we quote from a short article, "The Phantom Quality in Incomes," by Mr. George Gunton, in his Social Economist:

"What is Income? If Lieut Peary, by expending $40,000 in fitting out an Arctic expedition which consumes three years makes himself sufficiently in demand as a lecturer so that he can obtain $40,000 by lecturing six months, what is his income for the purposes of a tax on incomes? Would not any tax laid on his income be simply a deduction from the fund available for his next Arctic expedition? Should the income tax rest on $40,900, on $80,600, or on nothing? A cotton Factory, newspaper, or steel rail mill devotes ten years to building up a trade, absorbing all the capital it can draw in and pay interest upon, from whatever source, uncertain all all the time whether it is advancing to a fortune or a ruin; reinvests in plant and extension all it can spare from salaries and wages; is burned out several times and depends upon insurance for escape from bankruptcy, and finally by a lucky turn in the market makes a profit through an unexpended rise in its stock of goods on hand or on its real estate—is this lucky profit an income? If so, what is it if, before the tax has been paid, it is swept away by an unfortunate speculation in stocks?

"Is money which comes to one by inheritance income? Is real property which descends to one income? Are all profits income, or only the annual excess of profits over losses and expenses. Is a happy speculation in wheat income? Is a lucky bet at the races, or a fortunate drawing in a lottery income? Is a portion of a merchants sales which he invests in more goods, larger buildings or an expensive home income? Can the losses of previous years be balanced against the profits of this year in arriving at income? If a man marries a rich wife, is the fortune that comes to him, through her, income?

"These are a few of the questions which may aid us in understanding why the presence of an income tax is so frequently spoken of as fruitful of prevarication, evasion and perjury. The subject of income is an elusive and evasive one to reduce to any definite figures, unless one has but one means of income and that a fixed salary. The money which a man expends in support of his family is as truly one of the conditions on which he can transact business, as the money he pays for the rent of his store, or as his taxes themselves. But if all the conditions on which a man does business are first to be deducted, then not not only rent and living expenses, but salaries of employees, advertising, commissions and all other expenses must first come out, before net income is reached. And if rent and living expenses should first come out, then if one, to stop paying rent, buys a residence and pays the whole price, such price should as the capitalization of his rent, also come out."

Mr. Gunton declares that it is impossible to draw a hard and fast line which should distinguish gross income from net income, recoupment on previous losses from present income, beneficial accidents from income, casual profiits of speculation from income, conditioning expenses from income and illusory and ultimately profitless investments from income. In short, says Mr. Gunton, income is largely and an intellectual conception rather than a physical fact, and an effort to tax it upon any principle or quality of justice becomes illusory. If no man can satisfy his own mind as to what income is, it must always be difficult to satisfy that of a public officer: therefore Mr. Gunton is opposed to the income tax.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

—On the 31st July—after the half-yearly subsidy had been received from the Dominion Government—the amount due the Merchants' Bank of P. E. Island by the Provincial Government was $83,045, and the amount loaned to Provincial Governments by the Merchants' Bank of Halifax was $33,300.

—Referring the resolution re the insurance tax passed at the Board of Trade meeting, the Journal says:

"When it is remembered that Hon. Mr. Farquhrrson and Mr. Rogers were among the prime movers in the imposition of a heavy rate of taxation upon fire insurance companies and other corporations, and thus instrumental in having higher rates charged the people, the above resolution would appear to be vers strongly flavored with gall. It is the most complete instance we have ever seen of men condemning and decrying their own work, and we ask the people to note the anomalous position in which the mover and seconder of the resolution have placed themselves."

THE WOOD ISLANDS TRAGEDY.

Preliminary Examination Before Stipendiary-Magistrate Palmer To-day.

The preliminary enquiry into the shooting of Wm. J. McMillan was begun at 2 o'clock this afternoon before H. James Palmer, Esq., Stipendiary-Magistrate for Queen's County, in the City Court Room.

The Attorney-General appeared on behalf of the crown, and A. A. McLean, Esq., Q. C., for the defence.

Mr. James McMillan, the father of the young man who was shot, was in the court.

After the Magistrate had read the charge, the following witnesses were called:

Wm. D. Taylor (sworn).—Gave substantially the same evidence as at the coroner's inquest; but examined by the attorney general said that on the day of the shooting he had about four drinks of whiskey out of a bottle, and a couple more drinks afterwards of rum and whiskey. He wasn't sober when he went to McNeill's house with young McMillan, but he knew what he was doing. McMillan was in the same condition as himself. After this they went to McNeill's house, who let them in. They gave him some whiskey for his sister and himself, and then began to have some fun mimicing the old man. While they were having some fun, McMillan went outside and threw a pot into the house. Taylor went into the porch to look for McMillan, and pulled over a bench on which were some buckets of water, which were spilled on the floor. Taylor went outside and met McMillan and then opened McNeill's bedroom window and threw two boards into the room. All this was done "for fun." Then McNeill appeared with the gun. Taylor and McMillan held up a board when the shot was fired. McNeill had, a few minutes before, threatened to shoot. Witness said that they had plenty of time to get away after they were warned.

The attorney general during the examination of this witness gave him some very wholesome advice as to his disgraceful behaviour in teasing the old man.

Taylor being cross-examined by A. A. McLean, said: I did not throw the stones that made the marks on McNeill's window sill. I did not shake the handle of the door. I heard McNeil getting up. I think I told McNeill we wanted to have a rest. After we got in McMillan mimiced McNeill. I swear I used no obscene language. McMillan might have. McNeill told us his sister was very sick. The pot that McMillan threw at McNeill fell alongside his feet. I can't swear that I did not pull the lounge down. I think only the mattrass on top of it came down. Taylor, who told me of the shooting. McMillan was lying near the wood pile. I went to him and took hold of him, but he was in great pain and did not want to come in. We took him in after some persuasion. Taylor went for Dr. McLaren, who arrived in half an hour.

The doctor advised us to send him home. We put him in a cart and he was taken home. I know nothing more except what McNeill told me. He said that the boys came to his house that night and rapped. McNeill asked who is there? The answer was, Willie Taylor and Willie Jim. I asked McNeill why he let them in, seeing that all the boys were at variance with him? He said that he was friendly with Taylor, who had been at his house that evening. He let them in because he thought they were tired. They had a drink. They said they were hungry and said they would like some fish. He gave them some and offered to make them some tea, but the boys said no. After that they commenced teasing the old man about a woman who is in my employ. This made McNeill angry, who said that he would not allow any blackguard talk about a woman in his house, and ordered them out. Then after McNeill ordered me out I went round to his bedroom window, reached in and pulled at his bed tick. I thought McNeill would pull against me. He tried to hit me with something. I can't say that it was the gun. Then I ran away, to keep way from the gun. It was about the time I had my hand in the window that McNeill said he would shoot. It might have been after this that I threw a barrel stave in the window. I don't know that McMillan made a dying statement. I was with him when he died. He could not speak very well.

Archd. Bell (sworn) Examined by the Attorney-General—Live alongside prisoner. Have been near him all my life. When he's left alone he's a very quiet man. I never have any trouble with him. The party that evening was at my house. Taylor and McMillan, I would say, were sober. They left my house at 10 o'clock. I went to bed then. About 3 o'clock I was waked up, and going to the door I found McNeill told me all that they did to annoy him, and that when Taylor threw the boards into his bedroom he ran in and took his gun. Half of Taylor's body was in the room. McNeill pushed him with the stock of the gun, and told them to clear out or else he'd shoot them. They were giving him "chin," he said, and taking him off. He then commenced loading the gun after he had put Taylor out. He said he loaded it with powder, but could not find the shot. He found a few sparables in his pocket which he put in the gun. Then he said he told them to go and put the gun out of the window. They would not go and he fired. He said he did not mean to kill them. He meant to hit them in the feet or legs to cripple them. McNeill told me all this the morning after the shooting.

Cross-examined by Mr. McLean.—The boys bothered McNeill a good deal more than I would put up with. Formerly they used to pull down his fences on Hallow E'en, and jeer at him. Some years ago McNeill sent for me to help protect him from some boys. His sister is a sickly woman and is often bed-ridden. I did not tell her that her brother would be hanged.

The examination was proceeding as The Examiner went to press.

GOOD SHOOTING AT OTTAWA.

THE ISLAND BOYS ARE IN IT.

Sergeant Grey Meets a Misfortune.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.

In the D. R. A. matches, the Dominion of Canada match was won by the 3rd Victoria Rifles, Montreal, with a score of 551, the average per man being 91 points, 56 per cent. per man. This is the highest average ever made by a team of six men on the Rideau Range. The Minister of Militia's cup went to the Victoria Rifle Club, Hamilton. During yesterday a great misfortune befell Sergt. Grey, of Charlottetown. He put on a score of 91 in the Dominion of Canada's match; but when his rifle came to be examined, it was found, contrary to regulations, that the minimum pull of the trigger was less than six pounds. The result was that Grey's score was disallowed. He loses the prize of $8, and what is worse, with 91 points off his grand aggregate score he is effectually debarred from coming within the Governor's 100 and shooting for a place on the Bisley team.

In the Macdougall challenge match, the possible being fifty points, the second prize of $20 and a badge, goes to Sergt. Davison, of Charlottetown, who made 46 points.

ANOTHER DESPATCH:

Ottawa, Aug. 29.

In the Dominion of Canada match, yesterday, seven rounds at two, five and six hundreds yards, Sergt. J. M. Davison scored ninety-two points and won eight eight dollars; Sergt.-Major Grey, 91 points and eight dollars; Major Longworth, 89 points and five dollars; Lieut. Ewen Stewart, 87 points and four dollars; Sergt. Allen, 86 points and four dollars. eighteen 86's counted out.

LATER.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.

In the Minister of Militia match, seven rounds at 500 and 600 yards, Gunner Percy Dogherty made 61 points, and won $5; Quartermaster Sergeant R. V. Longworth made 59, and won $5. Ten 58s were counted out.

A Drinking Driver Disqualified.

Bangor, Me., Aug 29

In the 2.27 trot yesterday, Carvell, of St. John, owner and driver of Speculation, came on for a second heat in a condition unfitting him for driving. He was scored out of position several times, and the judges fearing an accident, ordered a new driver. Carvell refused to let anyone but himself drive the horse, and they sent him to the stable. The judges announced that he would be expelled from all the tracks of the National Association. Speculation was second in the first heat.

Arrested the Wrong Man.

Rockland, Me., Aug. 29.

Jack McEachern, of P. E. Island, has been arrested here for setting incendiary fires of late. It has, however, been ascertained that McEachern only arrived here on Monday by the boat. It is, therefore, quite impossible he is the incendiary, though he was seen hanging around in the vicinity of the fire of Monday night. It is supposed he is insane.

GOOD NEWS.

Hundreds and Hundreds of Ladies to be Sacqued.

We've just received word from our Mr. McLaren, who is now in the European markets, that he has secured a large shipment of LADIES' SACQUES, CAPES, etc., much under regular price. He says:

"I flatter myself on securing this lot, as no other buyer from our side of the Atlantic can buy the same Sacques for double the money. I have visited all the other big houses, and for style and appearance, compared with this lot, they are simply 'not in it.' I ordered them to be shipped at once."

LADIES!—We have received the invoices of this big shipment of Sacques and Capes, and expect to have them opened and ready for your inspection in about two weeks' time.

We do not want to limit your purchases from us, as we presume you will buy what you can pay for. For the above customers we have bought a line of goods second to none, and we will guarantee values to be as good as can be had consistent with first-class goods.
