CIVIC MATTERS

DEAR SIR,—Among the many conflicting duties incumbent on you as the editor of a leading journal, which you have ably maintained there is another that seems to be forgotten because it appears to me more of a personal nature while at the same time it is one if remarked on by the press and carried out by the people would afford much more pleasantness in our daily walk over the sidewalks.

In passing each other, sometimes to the right sometimes to the left, instead as we ought to do keep to the right hand side, we often come in collision. I, therefore having often experienced this annoyance, take the liberty to suggest that our friends would remember the good old English rule, viz., keep your right hand to the wall as you pass along. This would obviate the obstruction.

There is another nuisance I would like to take the liberty to remark on and call the attention of our worthy city councillors to respecting the sidewalks and the street crossings. With respect to the former I beg leave to say in the client time when the citizens drank either rum or brandy that every shop-keeper stored his cellar with puncheons of rum and casks of brandy and wine, it was therefore necessary for him to have cellar doors on the sidewalk about six feet square rising up as it approached the house about eighteen inches in order to throw the rain off. It became an intolerable obstruction and caused pedestrians to walk pretty nearly on the centre of the street. The merchants used to purchase their stock in trade in this line at Halifax, where the writer passed a week at the Acadia. One morning several gentlemen were chatting together when a stranger passed along, a well-dressed, gentlemanly-looking fellow. Who is he? One asked the other. Nobody knew. One of them, a wit, said I think he is a Charlottetown man. Why? Because I notice men from that quarter walk the centre of the street.

When our first Mayor Hutchison took office this obstruction was brought to his notice, and he endeavoured to have it removed peacefully. When it could not be obtained in that way, he took men and removed the obstruction by force on the south side of Queen street. This caused a strong sensation against the corporation that was finally compromised, the parties agreeing to level down the old cellar door level with the platforms that were about being laid, and that the cellar door should be on hinges and opened as required. Now, Mr Editor, those old cellar doors are very much in the way, and as there are no puncheons of rum to lower, ought to be done away with and a grating of eighteen inches allowed to shovel coal in. I think there can be no reasonable objection to the improvement suggested.

I would further say, as a tax-payer, that although I feel myself indebted to the corporation for the side-walks and crossings, I would feel much more so if they would employ some poor fellows to keep the sidewalks clear, especially during the winter months. I beg to add that I shall be pleased to contribute my share of the additional expense to carry out this suggestion.

The old story of Prometheus is a parable. Prometheus was on terms of intimacy with the gods. From them he stole fire, and gave it to men. For this sin he was bound to the rocks of Mount Caucasus, and vultures were set upon him. They only ate his liver. This grew again as fast as it was pecked away. Are his sufferings to be imagined?

Take a modern interpretation of the parable. There is no cooking without fire. In cooking and eating the mischief lies. The stomach is overtasked, the bowels become clogged, they cannot dispose of the food that is given them. The impurities back up on the liver. Then come the vultures—the torments of a diseased liver. Dr. Piene's Golden Medical Discovery is more than equal to the vultures of dyspepsia and its kindred diseases. There is no more need of suffering from dyspepsia than there is of hanging one's self. Sold by all medicine dealers the world over.

SCHOONER IN DISTRESS.—The schooner Sam Slick, captain Oz Lee, arrived here on Saturday evening. Captain Ogilvie reports that he left Charlottetown on Thursday morning for Stonehaven, Bay Chaleur, but after getting to Miscou was obliged to put back for shelter to West Cape, anchoring in the bay with ballast badly shifted. Here the anchor chain parted and the vessel swinging around before sail could be made struck bottom in a thick snow storm and unshipped rudder. A survey will probably be held in a few days to ascertain the extent of the damage. The Sam Slick is owned by Messrs McKinley and Shaw, of Windsor, N. S., and is chartered by Lombard & Co, of Boston to load grindstone at Stonehaven, Bay Chaleur. She is 90 tons burthen. There is no insurance.
