Montague Board of Trade Completes Tree-planting Project On Highways

"On Wednesday of this week the Board of Trade completed a local project at Montague by planting trees on the main highways leading to the town. At a meeting last week, the idea was proposed to plant trees on either side of the main highway towards Charlottetown and Murray River.

On Wednesday a crew of men volunteered their services to plant the trees and this was accomplished in the late afternoon. The double row of trees extend from the outskirts of Montague for over a mile on the Charlottetown highway, and from the crossroads to Gaiety's brook on the Commercial Road.

Salvation Army Campaign Assured Of Fine Support At Supper Meeting

Mr. Arthur Hogan, city chairman for the Red Shield and Sunset Lodge fund raising campaign presided at a supper meeting of 35 busy business men last evening at the Queen Hotel where enthusiastic assurance was given as to the outcome of their activities.

As name after name of prospective and proven supporters of the Red Shield and Sunset Lodge campaign was read out by co-chairman Russell Seller, members of the rival special name teams vied with each other to make the approach.

Chairman Hogan in his "pep" talk to the canvassers, admonished them to make their calls promptly and complete the same before next Thursday when the general campaign will be inaugurated by a mass meeting of workers at a supper meeting in the Salvation Army Citadel.

Hon. B. Earle MacDonald, Minister of Health and Welfare speaking briefly and to the point said "there is no argument against the Salvation Army in which we all have great faith and to which we are always willing to give."

Provincial chairman Norman Lowther admonished the teams "Don't drag or lag, keep things moving."

Seated at the head table were Arthur Hogan, Mayor Ida Henderson, Major Mildred Stevens, Capt. and Mrs. Titcombe, N. W. Lowther and the campaign secretary, Mrs. Clive Cudmore.

cast in gloom, until Verity decides to go against her uncle's wishes, and Brian then declares his love with a marriage proposal and happiness is restored.

A side romantic element exists between Markham and an "old flame" Joanna Cooper, excellently portrayed by Vivien Fraser, and provides the avenue of merit, ably supported by Utility Jones, played by Paul Dewar, portraying a seedy farmer possessing a homey philosophy on human nature.

Other supporting roles strongly played were Paddy Richards, a niece, by Lorraine MacLure; Mrs. Wilkes, the house-keeper, by Mrs. Lorraine Coffin; Phyllis, the maid, by Joyce Wigginton, and Mrs. Webb, the neighbour, by Iva Docherty.

The play is a well rounded one, providing opportunities for acting in every phase of human thought and action: Pathos, merriment, shyness, brusqueness, irony and sarcasm, haughtiness, bitterness, meddling, and romance. Each actor and actress played his and her part successfully and well, to provide an evening of excellent entertainment.

I DON'T CARE IF YOUR NAME IS CHURCHILL. YOU ARE NOW A PRISONER OF THE BOER GOVERNMENT!

UNCUPLE THE ENGINE! EVERYBODY RETREAT! WE CAN MAKE IT!

This time it was the Boer War. British against Dutch in South Africa, and the battle pushing deeper into the jungle where the Boers had the advantage.

THE journalist-soldier of India and Africa, age 25, returned to England to run for Parliament. And the electorate returned him to journalism ... and to Africa.
