getting out of hand and we deliberately set out to cut back on troublemakers. Whether we succeed or not remains to be seen.

In closing, I would like to say that we are not "ripping off" anyone at G.J.'s although it might appear that way to some. We are not using inflation as an excuse to properly run our operation. We are endeavouring to keep prices in line and give the best service possible. Thank you for the space.

Yours truly,

As a student, I wish to give my impressions of the new Library. The library is a welcome addition to the campus. This building should give the University a better image and a more of a 20th Century look, which was badly needed in this University. To students now and to come it will be of great benefit in helping them to acquire much more education.

But to me this building has been a disappointment in many ways. One of the reasons for building a new library was to give the students more space to study, and to provide for an increase in students in the future. But upon inspecting this new library, I found the only area of any size for studying, was two big open rooms. There was hardly enough furniture in these two rooms for forty people to study. In the rest of the building there is a few spots to study but they only contain a few tables which 20 people could fill. Also there is a few private rooms for people to study but again, 20 people would fill this area up. The point I am trying to make is that right now there is only room for 80 people to study. To have the excuse of building the new library to provide extra space for students, I just can't see it.

The private rooms for studying are a good idea but there are too few of them. The open rooms for studying are alright to those who like studying in them but to me there are too many distractions by people moving around. So the areas for studying are either too open or too private. There is no happy medium.

I do like having the idea of the book stacks all on the same floor. Also the rest of the library material is easy to find. EVERYTHING is okay in the library until it comes to meeting the needs of the students. For example the students leisure room in the library is again too open and reminds me more of a childrens playroom. The smoking areas are nice but too small. So for the time being the library will survive but it is too bad that they forgot all about the students when they were building this library.

ATTENTION CHEMISTS!

Have you ever heard of Trent University?

If you haven't, well, Trent is a small but good university on a beautiful campus in a small city about 80 miles northeast of Toronto.

If you have, you've probably heard nice things about the rather personal attention Trent gives its undergraduates.

But have you ever considered doing graduate work at Trent? Perhaps you should. Why not drop a line to the Chemistry Chairman, Trent University, Peterborough, Ontario? Or phone him at (705) 748-1505. You'll probably be glad you did.
