STRICT ATTENTION to Business, Honesty and Square Dealing, and paying Cash every time, is what has placed to the front of all competitors, in CLOTHING, HATS, &c.

L. E. PROWSE

He does not advertize to sell goods at cost, but he guarantees to sell from 10 to 25 per cent less than those who do advertize to sell at cost.

He does not try to deceive the people by making a big blow and offering paltry rewards, but tries to do things right and has the goods to back him up in what he advertizes.

He has now about 6,500 HATS and $4,000 worth of CLOTHING, which he guarantees to sell from 10 to 25 per cent less than any house in the trade. A lot of this Clothing was bought less than half price, and will be sold less than half price.

He does not ask the people to believe his advertisement until they see his prices; he knows then they will believe, and knows that the goods and prices back him up every time.

All goods freely shown, or sent to any part of the town.

Please don't forget to call.

ABSOLUTE PURITY.

THE following analyses (made by the Dominion Analyst) of three BAKING POWDERS sold in this market should put a stop to the unjust efforts of the Royal to mislead the public as to its being the only pure Powder. These impartial tests show that other Powders are as pure and wholesome:

W. SAUNDERS, Dom. Analyst, St. John, N. B. reports:
Royal—Contains Alkaline Carbonate—a mixture consisting mainly of Bi-Carbonate of Soda and Cream of Tartar—adulterated with about 20 per cent. of Starch.

W. F. BEST, Dom. Analyst, St. John, N. B. reports:
Pure Gold—Contains Cream of Tartar, Carbonate of Soda—fresh and pure.
Nov. 19, 1882—Not adulterated; same as usual.
April 7, 1883—Not adulterated; same as usual.
June 4, 1881—Fresh and pure; same composition as usual.

MAYNARD BOWMAN, Dom. Analyst, Halifax, N. S., reports:
WOODILL'S Of good quality; contains nothing injurious.

WOODILL'S German Baking Powder has a reputation for purity and wholesomeness now nearly 30 years.

Ethel De Wolfe

—OR—
SHADOWS AND SUNSHINE.

BY S. M. BENT.

CHAPTER XII.

"Well, Miss De Wolfe," said Warner, "I will not further question the dictates of your heart. I merely await your reply to my proposal, as conveyed to you by Mr. De Wolfe."

"Are you determined, in case I refuse the offer with which you honor me, to press your base advantage against my father?"

"Most assuredly; my father has long been endeavoring to accomplish the ruin of Mr. De Wolfe, on account of some revengeful motive, and only by strong pleading could I induce him to yield to my wishes, and abandon the plan he had laid down, dependent upon your answer. If you consent, your father will retain his standing on the Exchange, and no one be the wiser concerning his present position."

"Then, to save my dear father in his declining years, I accept your offer of marriage; never could you have my consent otherwise, and you must take me loving and unloving, but rather loving, as you already know that my love is given to another."

"I thank you, Miss De Wolfe, sincerely and humbly for deigning to accept my hand, and will endeavour to prove myself worthy of the honor, and grateful for the happiness you have bestowed upon me; I trust you will forget your present emotions, and in time learn to respect me for the love I bear you."

"Respect!" she sneered, "had you followed up your loud professions of love, and marched away to serve your country, like the brave man who fills your place today, I might have learned to respect you, but you could not tear yourself from your haunts. Ah! Lionel Warner, it is a small claim you have to any woman's respect. When I am sold to you, you must take me with a heart filled with undying scorn."

"Miss De Wolfe, you are unjust. I protest that I am not so black as you paint me. Become my wife, and in the love with which I shall cherish you, you will see that which I have wrongly judged me. Am I not the equal of Captain Chandley? Am I not—"

"There! stop, please! let us not mention that name again; it is too good to be so lightly spoken of; and let us make this interview as short as possible."

"Since you have honored me with your hand, may I ask, you, before I take my leave, to name the day which will see us one."

"It matters not to me now; my consent to this mercenary bargain, for I will not give it any softer title, was only a secondary condition, a mere formality. You are at perfect liberty to fix the day yourself."

"May I then suggest Christmas Eve—three weeks from to-day?"

"Very good, the sale of Ethel De Wolfe will be completed at that date. But I will not submit to a grand wedding, it must be private, with just a few friends around us; and I shall instruct a lawyer to call upon you, and make known my wishes in regard to the mortgage on Inglewood, for as this is a mere matter of buying and selling from the first step to the last, all legal formalities may as well be observed."

"I shall only be too happy to carry out any instructions you may give concerning this beautiful place," said Lionel.

"In the meantime," said Ethel, rising, "let there be no further intercourse between us. I shall positively decline seeing you again previous to the day named for the ceremony. Allow me, then, Mr. Warner, to wish you good morning."

And, with the scornful air of an offended princess, she swept from the room.

CHAPTER XIII.

A RIPT IN THE CLOUDS.

"Great was the joy; but at the bridal feast, when all sat down, the bride was wanting there. Nor was she to be found? Her father cried, 'Tis but to make a trial of our love!'"

And filled his glass to all; but his hand shook. And soon from guest to guest the panic spread."
—Loggers.

The longest day comes to an end at last. No matter how wearily the grief-burdened hours drag their leaden minutes along, no matter how feverish the mind that lids then hasten to bring some wished-for consummation, or to carry us past some hateful and dreaded goal, all comes about in God's own good time. He may test the patience of His creatures, but it is only to show them, when the moment, long prayed for, or long feared, arrives, that His way is best, and that the anticipated pleasure is to be more thankfully received, or that the decree against which the spirit rebelled is shown by His mercy of half its terrors.

So came to Ethel De Wolfe the day on which she was to resign that name for one she could not respect or love. Yet so cheerfully did she move about her unaccustomed duties, so fair was she with the deep pink blush of maidenhood once more suffusing her beautiful face, that to look upon her, no one would think her heart was sore even to breaking, or that she was playing a part at which her pure nature revolted.

Without, the air was keen and sharp, the cloudless sky spangled with the million openings through which some escaping rays of heaven's brightness find their way to earth; to speak to mortals of the joy within; the lamps of the city gleamed in vain rivalry of those so far above them; the frozen ground echoed the rumble of laden vehicles, and the lightest footfall of the pedestrian; the light streaming from the windows touched with wondrous effects the frost-tipped shrubbery and the red clusters of frozen thorn berries.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Blaming the Circulars.

SIR,—Every one knows by this time that the so-called Liberals are alone responsible for the Orange circulars. Mr. Joseph Wise's name stands at the head of the new platform. It is said that he aspires to be the leader of the so-called Liberal party in this Island. His aspirations may never be realized—especially if he sticks to the circular business. The circulars were got up for a purpose, and it is a matter for regret that they accomplished that purpose so effectually. They defeated Government candidates in New London, West River, Belfast and other Protestant Districts, and that was what they were intended for by the plotters who had the matter in hand. If they had succeeded in other Districts, there is no doubt but the Government would have been defeated. But the conspiracy was fortunately discovered in time to prevent that. When the plot was discovered it was found to be a sword that would cut both ways. As long as it was cutting the way the Opposition wanted it they were perfectly satisfied, though they now profess to be very much disgusted because it wasn't allowed to do its treacherous work unchallenged.

It is certainly very amusing to find Messrs. Aitken and White, the defeated of Murray Harbor, denouncing the circulars. They only heard of them they say, on the eve of the election. Strange that they should be kept in the dark so long. Nearly everybody else heard of them weeks before the election. But it would seem that these two guileless individuals never once heard of the circular business before the contest. The circular business was no injury to Messrs. White and Aitken. At any rate it did not prevent a prominent and highly respected Catholic clergyman from voting for them; and we defy them to name one individual member of his flock who was "alienated" into supporting the Government candidates on account of the circulars. Placing the cause of their defeat upon the shoulders of the Catholic electors of the District is very unfair on the part of the defeated candidates; and as false as is unfair, are anyone who has any knowledge of the District.

Instead of whining over their defeat at the polls, let Messrs. White and Aitken own up that they have been honestly and fairly defeated by the electors; and in place of offering insult to Catholic electors, let them offer an humble apology for the mean and treacherous manner in which their party tried to ride into power by raising religious prejudices among a people desirous of living in peace and harmony with their neighbors.

Yours,
ELECTOR.

Fourth District, July 19, 1886.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites

AS A REMEDY FOR PULMONARY AFFECTIONS AND SCROFULOUS DISEASES.

Dr. Ira M. Lang—a prominent physician in New York, says:—I am greatly pleased with your Emulsion. Have found it very serviceable in above diseases, and it is easily administered on account of its palatableness.

MR. RUSKIN ON BEGGING.—A few weeks ago Mr. Ruskin received a circular letter asking for a subscription towards paying off the debt owed by a chapel in London; to which he returned the following characteristic reply:—

"Sir,—I am scornfully amused at your appeal to me of all people in the world! Precisely least likely to give you a forwarding! My first word to all men and boys who care to bear me is 'Don't get into debt.' Starve and go to heaven—but don't borrow. Try first begging—I don't mind if its really needful—stealing! But don't buy things you can't pay for! And of all manner of detestable pious people building churches they can't pay for, are the most detestable nonsense to me. Can't you preach and pray behind the hedges—or in a sandpit—or a coalhole—first? And of all manner of churches thus idiotically built, from all the seeds of believers in any ruling spirit—Hindoo, Turks, Feathic idolaters, and Mumbo Jumbo, Log and Fire worshippers—who want churches, your modern English Evangelical sect is the most absurd, and entirely objectionable and unendurable to me! All which they might very easily have found out from my books—any other sort of sect would!—before bothering me to write it to them. Ever, nevertheless, and in all this saying, your faithful servant,—JOHN RUSKIN."

Mr. Disraeli appealed to the country in 1868 and was defeated with terrible slaughter. Mr. Gladstone met with the same experience in 1874 after six years of extraordinary legislative activity. Lord Beaconsfield was confident of success in 1880 when Parliament was dissolved, but the country repudiated his policy. Lord Salisbury had no better luck last year, and now Mr. Gladstone has made his second unsuccessful appeal to the constituencies as Prime Minister. Not once in twenty years has the Government of the day been sustained in a general election. No wonder that a ministry holds on as long as it can under the Seven-year Act when it has a well-disciplined majority to register its will!—N. Y. Tribune.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and all the little shrewd awakenings as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.
