W.C.T.U. NOTES

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

Dr. Haven Emerson, Professor Emeritus of Public Health, Columbia University:

"Alcohol is not an efficient source of physiological energy. It is not free from the disadvantages of its toxic effect. It cannot meet any emergencies of the body by storage, but it can add to the production of heat and energy temporarily at a toxic cost. Now if you take food to meet your needs, it goes through the process of digestion, of absorption, and of elimination, and food that is not presently used is put aside or stored for future use. But alcohol cannot be stored in the body.

"From the moment alcohol is taken into the body, the body goes about the process of getting rid of it, and it does it in an amazingly consistent and efficient manner at the rate of about 10 per cent per hour until it is all gone. In other words the body is not satisfied to live with alcohol. It has mechanisms of detoxication in the liver, it has mechanisms of elimination by the breath, by the urine, by the sweat, which are so consistent that under ordinary conditions, after a single dose of alcohol, the 10 per cent elimination goes on and in about ten hours you cannot find any of that alcohol in the body."

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, vice-president of the University of Illinois:

"Drinking in moderation is not scientific. The only factual scientific guarantee against alcoholism as a vice and disease or the only scientific guarantee against alcoholism as a cause of accidents and human misery is total abstinence. There is no way to discover an alcoholic until he is an alcoholic. There is no cure for alcoholism except total abstinence."

Judge William R. McKay, Superior Court, Los Angeles County:

"During the year 1949 I have presided over one of the Civil Departments of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County. Each morning the judges of the court have presented to them for their consideration two or three default divorce cases. These are cases where one or the other party to the action has failed to appear and the one in court seeks relief through the medium of severing the bonds of matrimony.

"Day after day, this endless stream appears before me, and in 75 per cent of the cases which have come to my attention liquor has played an important part in the disturbance which has made necessary an action for divorce. Quoting directly from statistics, during the year 1949 I presided at 424 default-divorce hearings, and of that number, in 327 instances intoxicating liquor figured prominently in the cause which impelled a legal separation.

"I have been particularly impressed with the increased drunkenness among women. Of course this is morally bad in every sense. Obviously it contributes to juvenile delinquency, because mothers neglect their homes and children while they spend their time in saloons saturating themselves with drinks."

Judge Joseph T. Zottoli, Associate Justice of the Municipal Court, Boston:

"Primarily and fundamentally you are confronted with the proposition that alcohol itself is destructive of human tissue. It is a poison. Now you could stop right there, and you could say that any person who uses anything in moderation—so-called moderation—that is destructive of human tissue, is really not using it in moderation, for there is no moderate use of poison to an individual or to a society."

EDUCATORS

John C. Almack, Professor of Education, Stanford University:

"It is not enough to give young people information about the effects of alcohol. To be effective, education must include discipline. Educators today put too much emphasis on activity. Lessons of self-control and restraint are just as important to the well-being and safety of the individual.

"Discipline should be a part of education from the first in all social situations. It should begin in

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

PRE-SCHOOL AGE

Never does a small son or daughter appear more adorable than when trying to fit on a tiny shoe or spoon up the food without help. Young birds need to learn how to look after themselves too, and never seem more attractive than when making their first attempts. But for them this is a serious business. Very soon they must be able not just to feed themselves, but find their own food, and the necessity of knowing how to evade danger in order to survive starts at birth.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bob-white, members of the Partridge clan, care for their very young children. Certainly the mother could not be expected to manage alone, for there are sometimes as many as 18 in one brood, and two broods in a summer. Obedience is the first lesson. When but a day or so old, they are given instruction in concealment. A word of command, in a tender voice, is enough to stop a baby in its tracks. It "freezes." If one wanders away by itself, a parent gives a gentle whistle, then with a small, answering call is heard.

You should be near to watch Mrs. Merganser lead her large family to some sheltered bay and show them how to get their own food. Each duckling is taught individually. On sighting a fish, the mother dives, pursues it under water, and catches it in her slender, toothed bill. At the appearance of the next fish, a young Merganser disappears for an instant, then comes to the surface a short distance off—probably without a fish. This is a difficult lesson to learn all at once.

Then, one day, Mrs. Merganser may be found near shore, surrounded by the children, instructing them how to skim over the top of the water. As young Ducks cannot fly, this is a much needed accomplishment, because it is their sole hope of escape from danger. Their flat, paddle-like hind toes help, and with the extra aid of fast moving wings they rush over the surface.

The little Catbirds' bathing lesson is noisy. Wading to her knees, mother crouches down, splashes, and shakes her feathers vigorously, while the four youngsters "meow" with excitement. One by one they imitate her, until she spies an audience, when, with louder "meows", they all disappear into the bushes as if by magic.

Are all Woodpeckers red-headed?

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband Basil S. MacNeill, who passed away October 15th, 1950.

Since you've gone first and I remain
To walk the road alone
I live in memory's garden dear
With happy days we've known
I hear your voice; I see your smile
Though blindly I may trope
The memory of your helping hand
Still buoy me on with hope
We've known so much of happiness
We've had our cup of joy,
And memory is one gift of God
The death can not destroy.

Ever Remembered by His Wife.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Father, Basil S. MacNeill, who passed away October 15th, 1950.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawn another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.

Best wishes are being extended to Mrs. Ellen MacDonald, who recently observed her ninety-fifth birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward MacArthur Tyne Valley were recent visitors

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Judy Gloria Creed who departed this life October 15th, 1950.

Off and off our thoughts do wander,
To the grave not far away,
Where we laid our darling Judy
Just one year ago today.

Ever Remembered by Mother and Dad.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of our dear son and brother, L. A. C. Charles McCarren who lost his life in the sinking of the S. S. Caribou by enemy action, October 14th, 1942.

Our hearts are sad and lonely,
For the wound was very sore,
And although the years have passed
We miss you more and more.

A loving son and brother, so gentle and true,
Our proudest possession is memories of you.
We loved you so much and think of you often,
God bless you dear Charles, you are never forgotten.

Lovingly Remembered by Mother, Dad and Sisters.

FROM BAKERY TO FARM

RINGWOOD, Hampshire, England—(CP)—Gordon Derek, a baker's son, was given an official welcome as the 10,000th lad to enter a Y.M.C.A. scheme to put city and town boys on the land.

"Just the sort of lad we like to see," said Agriculture Minister Tom Williams.

"Headache?..take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief. DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

BURGESS BEDTIME

Why don't you wait? I would if I were a Swallow.

"You don't say," twittered the lone Swallow. "Well, if you stayed until Jack Frost gets here you never would reach the Sunny South."

"Why wouldn't I?" demanded Peter.

"Because you would starve to death before you even started," retorted the lone Swallow.

"Why would I starve to death any more than the other feathered folks?" Peter wanted to know.

"You don't know much, do you?" said the young Swallow. "What do you think all that flying about over the Green Meadows was done for?"

"For the fun of flying. Anyway, that is the way it looked. You Swallows looked as if you were having a wonderful time," said Peter.

"We were," replied the lone Swallow. "Getting enough to eat is always fun, and that is what we were doing in the air. We get most of our food in the air. And that is the reason why we have to start early for the Sunny South. The first insects that Jack Frost kills are the ones that fly, so we have to make sure he never catches up with us."

The University of London, England, awards a diploma in dramatic art as well as certificates in diction and drama.
