

British Coal Board Operates At Heavy Loss

LONDON (AP) — Britain's nationalized coal board Thursday night announced a record quarterly loss of more than £10,000,000 in the second quarter of this year. The largest previous quarterly loss was £4,000,000 in the fourth quarter of 1951.

Coal is a vital factor in the British economy. The loss figure, contained in the board's quarterly statement, presented a gloomy picture in the industry.

Britain now is importing a large amount of coal from the United States, and has been exporting large amounts of her own coal to old customers on the continent to keep that market open.

LOSS ON IMPORTS

This arrangement accounted for a loss of £6,700,000 in the quarterly total on imported coal. The board said the loss occurred because we are committed to selling comparable coal at British prices—prices which are below those prevailing in most other countries.

Other factors which accounted for the quarterly loss, the board said, included the introduction of changes in the wage structure for miners, the strike in the Yorkshire pits in May and the national railway strike in June.

New Church At Hope River Recalls Early Achievements

The laying of the cornerstone of the commodious new Church of St. Anne at Hope River by His Excellency Bishop MacEachern on Sept. 11th recalls some interesting events in the history of the Roman Catholic Church in this pioneer community.

From the year 1819 to the year 1830 the district which comprises this mission was gradually settled by Irish emigrants, chiefly from the counties of Wexford and Kerry. These people encountered the hardships incidental to settling in a new country, among others that of being a long distance from a church or a resident priest.

Rustico was the nearest mission to them and thither they repaired when Mass was said. At other times they assisted at the Holy Sacrifice in the parish of St. John the Baptist, New London, and at the mission of St. Malachy's, Kinross, in the year 1822.

These people united to build a church, working under the direction of a foreman named James Island, and later its Chief Justice. His parents emigrated to this country from Kerry, Ireland, and settled in the district of Hope River.

In Hope River was also spent the boyhood of Mr. James Jeffrey Roche, who in early manhood left Prince Edward Island for the Athens of America, where he was ranked among the distinguished literary men of the day.

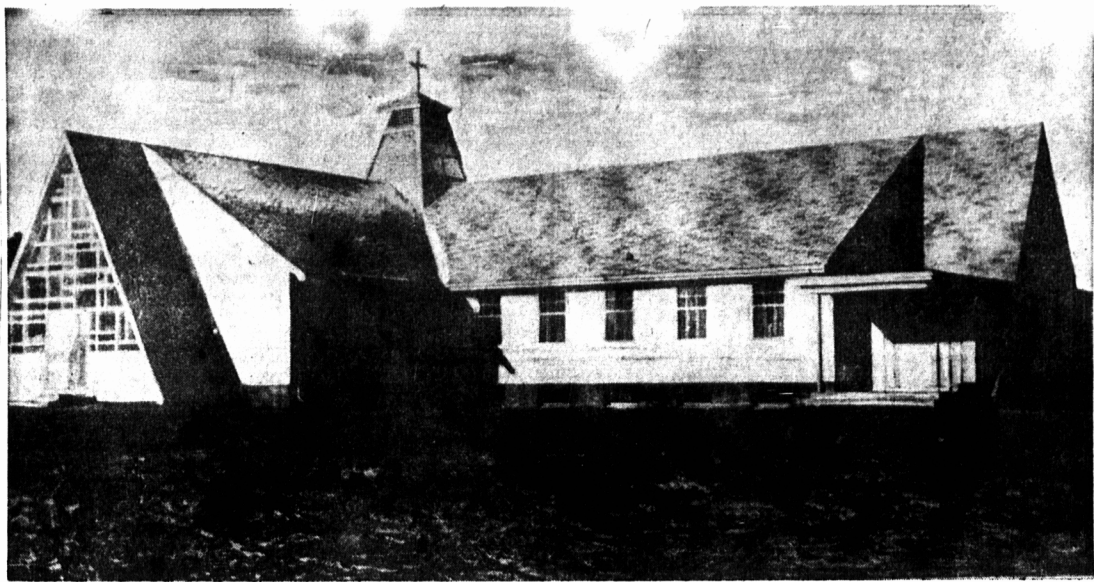

From 1881 to 1888 there was no resident priest at St. Anne's, it was attended by Rev. J. Gallant in 1888. Father P. X. Gallant was made pastor and he remained until 1891 when he was succeeded by Reverend James Aeneas MacDonald. In 1903 Father Alexander MacAulay was made pastor and remained until 1913. He was succeeded by Rev. John A. Gaudet who remained until 1921. Father William V. MacDonald was the next pastor incumbent Rev. Earl Dalton in 1937. The parish of St. Anne is now composed of 120 families.

The first settlers of the mission of St. Anne were: Patrick Fleming, John Barry, Michael Conaghan, James Bowlan, John Cullinan, W. Sullivan, Timothy Harrington, Jeremiah Harrington, Patrick Canning, William Pendergast, Clemen Cullen, Lawrence Hogan.

The Gothic style of Architecture. It was just completed exteriorly when it was accidentally consumed by fire in the month of October 1875.

In the following summer, a contract for building the existing church was let to Messrs. Burke and MacDonald, who put up a fine frame building, according to the same plan as that of the preceding one, which had been designed by Mr. John Corbett, architect, then of Charlottetown, who himself undertook the completion of the interior of the church.

This church was one of the prettiest among the wooden churches of the diocese, and was beautifully situated upon an eminence overlooking the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and was surrounded by well cultivated farms. The church was first served by Bishop MacDonald, or by a priest sent from Rustico. From the day of the Bishop up to the year 1882, it was still attended from Rustico, the missionary being Rev. G. A. Belcourt. From 1882 to 1886 it was attended from St. Malachy's, Kinross, first, by Rev. F. de Guis, then by Rev. Patrick Doyle. Mass being said in the mission every

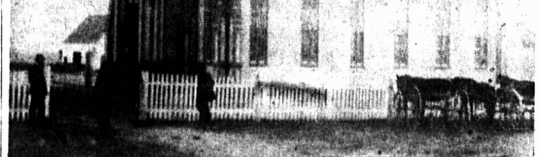

New Hope River Church

The new Church of St. Anne, the cornerstone of which was laid on Sept. 11, was opened on Christmas Eve last with the celebration of Midnight Mass by the parish priest, Rev. E. J. Dalton.

An excellent creation of modern architecture, the design of the church is believed to be unique in the Maritime Provinces. It is built in the form of a cross, and large clear glass windows with colored plexiglass design from the ends of the nave and transepts, providing brilliant natural illumination throughout.

The low ceiling finished in terrazzo tile facilitates rapid heating of the building through a thermostatically controlled forced hot air system of nineteen ducts placed in the floor throughout the building. Seating accommodation for 450 persons is provided in the main part of the church, while upwards of 100 can be seated in a smaller chapel which forms part of the building.

The interior of the church, the seats, and fixtures are finished in blond, and the side windows around the nave and transepts are made of tinted cathedral glass arranged to depict a cross in each window. The exterior is finished in plywood, and the basement is excavated under the entire building to a depth of nine feet, and here also the heating plant is located in a fireproof room.

square. Soon after its erection, it blew down. The parishioners then gave a contract for the building of a second church to Messrs. Joseph Doyle and Tierney, agreeing to pay them the sum of forty pounds.

This primitive church was served by Bishop McDonald, who said Mass there three times a year. It was removed a few years after its completion to a more central and prominent site, and in 1864 was replaced by a frame building, erected by the parishioners themselves who hewed and prepared the timber, put up the frame, and boarded and shingled it.

This church, although in use for ten years, was never completed, it being the wish of the Bishop to have it replaced with a stone edifice, for which an adjacent quarry would furnish ample material. This stone, however, the parishioners imagined to be unsuitable for building purposes, so that the project of a stone church was given up, and in 1875, another wooden one was built. It was seventy-five in length by forty in breadth, and was in

High Hopes For Invention To Reduce Injuries

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario hockey executive has high hopes an invention of his will sharply reduce the number of injuries suffered by players from the butt end of hockey sticks.

Harry Doughty, a member of the Ontario Hockey Association executive, has designed a vinyl plastic cup to cover the butt end of the stick.

The "butt-end hazard" is considered cause of more severe injuries than any other in the game. Sticks with the cup permanently attached are being made at Breslau, Ont.

Doughty says the invention has been endorsed by Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, as well as players, coaches and executives.

Light Conversation

by PEGGY LIDSTONE
Lighting Specialist

Would you like your living-room to look larger? Then, install a glamorous wall valance with hullion lighting. When the lights are on, your living-room instantly looks larger, cheerier, even cleaner. You can install this valance yourself, or have an electrician do it. All you need is a valance board 10 inches wide along one wall, plus several fluorescent tubes fitted end to end. If you prefer, you can use lumiline lamps instead of fluorescent. Putting up a wall valance with its own built-in lighting is almost as easy as putting up the valance alone. And what an enlivened, glamorous atmosphere you bring to your living room!

If you want further information on modern lighting tips write to me, Peggy Lidstone c/o Lighting Institute, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., 163 Dufferin Street, Toronto, and I will send you FREE a 16 page illustrated booklet "How to Light Condition Your New Home."
