THE OLD HYMN.

I sat within a vacant room,
 A low ceiled room, quaint shaped, oak beam-
 ed,
 With windows looking off to sea,
 O'er which the sunset's glory streamed.
 I watched the faroff fitting sails,
 And "Halfway rock" that looming rose
 A tower from the heaving sea
 Whereon the scattered isles repose.

And some one near me gently played
 A dear old hymn that stirred my heart.
 'Twas "Children of the Heavenly King."
 And what it woke made quick tears start.
 The long years seemed to backward turn,
 And I, a little child again,
 Held fast within his strong arms' clasp,
 While soft he crooned the old refrain.

Oh, just once more to be that child
 And know again the blissful rest
 The old hymn brought me, rocked to sleep
 With pillow'd head upon his breast!
 But only yet a little while,
 Though earth may call it years that creep,
 I know he'll come to me again
 And rock me to eternal sleep.
 —Mary Devereux in Boston Transcript.

IT CURED THE COOK.

The Result of Her Master's Wrestling Match With the Telephone.

"About a week after the telephone was installed—any electrical device is always 'installed' when it is brought into the house—the cook was suddenly taken ill in the middle of the night, and I was requested to telephone for the doctor. It took me fully ten minutes of prolonged ringing and yelling before I could induce the central office to put me into communication with the doctor. Then I sent an agonized howl through the telephone, begging the doctor to come at once.

"In the course of the following hour six different persons carried on brief conversations with me, but no one of them was the doctor. In the case of each person it took about ten minutes of hard labor to induce him to say anything intelligible, and when the intelligible remark arrived it was to the effect that the speaker was Brown or Jones or Robinson; that he was not a doctor, and that he would inflict personal chastisement on the man who had called him out of bed if he could find the criminal in the morning.

"At last, however, my efforts were apparently crowned with success. A wretch who said he was the person of whom I was in search, promised to call at my home at once. Accordingly he hour and a quarter after I had first rung the telephone I received a hurried call from the local undertaker, who insisted that I had telephoned to him to bring a coffin without a moment's delay. I got rid of him at the expense of 5 shillings and a glass of wine, and I am happy to say that the shock of the visit cured the cook without the aid of any other medicine."—W. A. Alden in Pearson's Magazine.

Cyclists as Sportsmen.

The wheelman himself can hardly be held answerable for the death of a rabbit which bolted into his machine as it stood by the roadside and broke its neck, and there was contributory negligence, as the lawyers say, on the part of the cat which tried to go through the wheel of a passing bicycle and gave the rider a bad fall at the cost of its own life. Much more noteworthy than either of these was the achievement of a cyclist who while scorching along the road (he must have been scorching) ran into a covey of partridges and killed one, his wheel passing over its neck. The only way in which this curious accident can be explained is to suppose that the birds were "dusting" at a bend in the road, and that the cyclist's approach, concealed by the hedges, remained undetected till the enemy was literally among them.—Chambers' Journal.

The camel is a beast of great strength and endurance. Nothing hurts it until the proverbial "last straw" is added to its burden. It is really astonishing how much abuse it will stand. Sometimes, however, something worse than usual will be eaten, and will go through the stomach into the bowels, and there it will seek—'hat's constipation. Nine-tenths of all human sickness is due to constipation. Some of the simplest symptoms are a coated tongue and foul breath, dizziness, heartburn, flatulence, sallowiness, distress after eating, headaches and lassitude. A little thing will cause constipation, and a little thing will relieve it. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a certain cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules, mild and natural in their action. There is nothing injurious about them. Sold by druggists.
