Wedge Says Act Change At Union Request Unlikely

BY DON MacLEOD

"It is very unlikely that this province's Industrial Relations Act will be changed to comply with a request of the Canadian Union of Public Employees," Welfare and Labor Minister Henry Wedge said yesterday.

He was commenting on criticism levelled at the act by delegates attending the founding convention of the 84,000 member union meeting in Winnipeg. The union said that this province denied hospital workers the right to strike to secure collective bargaining gains.

Delegates to the convention voted to ask the federal government to withhold federal financial assistance for hospitals until the province "removes from its Industrial Relations Act all discriminatory sections affecting workers."

The sections referred to is that which states that workers essential to the maintenance of an institution are prohibited from taking strike action.

TWO-YEAR WAIT

For more than two years, non-professional workers at the Charlottetown Hospital and Prince Edward Island Hospital have been seeking new wage agreements with the hospitals. The hospitals are willing to provide the wage increases called for in the new contracts but say that the Hospital Services Commission controls hospital budgets and the hospitals, for that reason, do not have the money to cover the increases.

Mr. Wedge suggested that the union should negotiate with the Hospital Services Commission. "The commission," he said, "makes up its budget, based on the financial needs of the hospitals, and, so far, every financial request submitted by the commission, has been approved by the government."

He said that a study is now underway by a committee representing the hospital association of the province which deals with the salary question in all provincial hospitals.

"The commission," he said, "should soon have the report, and a new salary scale for hospital workers is expected to be included in the commission's 1963-64 request for funds to the provincial government.

"This request, if approved, will be included in the government's budget for the next fiscal year and will be brought up at the next session of the Legislature for consideration.

Prince Co. Fishermen Seek Exclusive Rights

By DON MacLEOD

Seeking some form of assistance for Prince County, a delegation of fishermen from the Abram's Village area, met yesterday with Premier Walter R. Shaw and some of his cabinet members.

The delegates suggested that the waters off the county were being fished out, mainly by New Brunswick fishermen operating in the area.

As a result of their representations the provincial government may seek federal action to have Prince County fishermen given exclusive rights in a portion of Northumberland Strait.

The delegation, comprising Rev. Nazaire Poirier, Simon Gallant, Cyrus Gallant, and A. Arsenault, suggested that a dividing line be set up between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island in the Northumberland Strait, so that fishing rights of Prince County fishermen could be reserved.

PRESS FOR ASSISTANCE

Welfare and Labor Minister Henry Wedge, who attended the meeting, said the government will also press to see if any form of federal financial assistance would be available to compensate for poor lobster catches. He pointed out that the federal government made money available to pay compensation to farmers who had poor potato and grain crops in recent years.

Commenting on the present season in Prince County, Mr. Wedge said "about 125 boats are fishing on the South Shore, but catches have been so bad that fishermen have had to lay off their helpers."

It is expected that Premier Shaw and Fisheries Minister Leo Rossiter will study the situation and make representation to Ottawa for assistance for the fishermen.

The only statistics on catches for the fall season this year available from the department of fisheries were for the month of August. In August, fishermen from Victoria to North Cape landed 474,000 pounds of lobster, compared to 1,107 000 pounds in August of last year, a drop of close to 60 per cent.

LONDON (Reuters) — Radioactive fallout over Britain increased during 1962, a report by the radio-biological laboratory of Britain's Agricultural Research Council said Wednesday.

FARM FEDERATION NEWSLETTER

Wheat Board Gets Credit For Giant Russian Deal

The important news in the last 10 days from an agricultural standpoint is, of course, the sale of wheat and flour to Russia. Significant is the fact that the Canadian Wheat Board is being given an important share of the credit for setting up the deal. The Wheat Board is marketing agency for western grain and has long had the support of the western farmer and his organizations. The affect on the Canadian economy generally will be significant, not only is farm income affected but transportation, employment, and a variety of services are involved. Surpluses of any farm product are bothersome, but it is probably better to be sorry for having them than to be sorry for not having them a point which the urban press in large centres might do well to remember.

BRITISH PROMOTION

The British Dairy Queen Miss Manister was accompanied to Canada by Mrs. Valerie Boyd an executive of the British National Dairy Foods Service Bureau in the promotion of dairy products. British farmers are providing a budget in excess of $5,000,000, a large percentage of which is used to promote sales of fluid milk. Mrs. Boyd stated that the British program was strongly supported by the producers who were convinced of its success in expanding dairy markets.

It is interesting that the budget of the American Dairy Association for 1964 is very similar in amount to that of the Old Country. By comparison the amount available in Canada is quite modest, but there does appear to be good prospects for expansion.

PRINCE CO. FEDERATION

Meeting this evening in Summerside are the officers of the Prince County Federation of Agriculture. Considered will be the projected economic survey now getting underway and what the federation may have in the way of ideas to offer. The federation has been a consistent supporter of surveys of this type believing that there is never too much knowledge available where problems are concerned. Originally the federation had recommended a survey on agricultural matters covering the entire province. Time will tell whether the findings in Prince County can be applied to the rest of the province.

SOIL SAMPLING

The department of agriculture is emphasizing the value of soil testing and making its service available in this connection. This is the time of year to plan next year's program and farmers interested in better crops, and the most efficient use of fertilizer and lime can use the soil testing service to advantage.

YOUTH FAIR

This week's big event is the Rural Youth Fair which brings together our young people in the 4-H movement from all over the province. It is very easy to be complimentary with respect to the value of 4-H work and its great contribution to citizenship training. There are many other values in the creation of interest in agriculture and the opening up of careers related to it. One of the features of the Dairy Queen's visit here was the Sun day evening function in which a number of outstanding young women in the movement met the queen and made a group of which the province can be proud.

This week's fair represents the climax for a great deal of work by club members, departmental officials and club leaders.

FLUID MILK GROUP

The P.E.I. Fluid Milk Association represents both the producers and the processors and has now held its third annual meeting. Fluid milk is probably subject to more regulation designed to protect quality and ensure the consumer a getting of good product than any other food. It is one of the best foods also one of the most perishable and all concern in its handling must be constantly alert. The association is concerned with protecting quality in acquainting the public with the value of milk, with expanding its sale to the end that a larger portion of dairy production will go through the most profitable channel. Fluid milk producers have the advantage of a regularory board which sets standards ad prices at all levels.

The autumn equinox and a new sharpness in the air gives notice that in our northern climate we are now verging to winter and the darkness of December. A few light frosts have been cause of concern to those with such perishable crops as tobacco, but to the present time no really serious damage is reported. Potato digging will soon be the major operation but will be awaiting the cleaning up of this year's fine harvest.

For those who appreciate variety life in the temperate zone has many advantages over the far north or the far south where a monotony of vegetation and coloring is typical. It may be an advantage to be warm but a moderate amount of chilling stimulates the ambition of the human animal and has an effect on Initiative and production.

Brig. Oland Guest Speaker At Rotary

The United Fund campaign will be the subject of the address to the Rotary Clubs of Charlottetown and Summerside, by Brig. Philly W. Oland, Lancaster, N.B., when he visits the province next week. The Island campaign gets underway in October.

Brig. Oland speaks in Charlottetown Monday and Summerside Tuesday He has been a charter director of the fund since 1959 and a member of the budget committee for the greater Saint John fund.
