"BOY WITH GREEN HAIR" HAS UNIQUE PLOT BASIS

Appealing drama of a startling kind motivates RKO Radio's current screen offering at the Capitol Theatre, "The Boy With Green Hair," in color by Technicolor, which stars Pat O'Brien, Robert Ryan, Barbara Hale and young Dean Stockwell, the last named in the title role.

Blending laughter and tears, the story deals with a war orphan who is induced to set out on a solo crusade against war, only to find unsuspected obstacles in his path. Laid in a small-town background, the film's daring theme and utterly novel treatment make it one of the most talked-about offerings of the season, and in which the performances of O'Brien and the Stock well boy are being hailed as remarkable.

Richard Lyon, Walter Catlett, Samuel S. Hinds, Regis Toomey and other well-known players are also seen in the Dore Schary presentation. Joseph Losey directed and Stephen Ames produced.

BOGART TAKES OVER AS TOUGH "TOKYO JOE"

Humphrey Bogart blasts a new kind of underworld in what has been called his greatest screen adventure, "Tokyo Joe," which opens today at the Prince Edward Theatre. Punch-packed drama of postwar Tokyo, Bogart shares stellar honors with Alexander Knox, Florence Marley and Sessue Hayakawa.

Miss Marly is seen as the blonde torch singer in a Tokyo night club, put on the spot by Japanese mobsters. Her rendition of "These Foolish Things" has brought that song into a new popularity, comparable to the manner in which "As Time Goes By" was greeted after "Casablanca." Hayakawa, Japanese-born silent screen star, makes his first Hollywood appearance in 17 years as the menacing leader of the Tokyo underground.

Jerome Courtland heads the important featured cast of "Tokyo Joe", which was directed by Stuart Heisler from the screen play by Cyril Hume and Bertram Millhouser. Robert Lord produced the Santana Production for Columbia Pictures.

get a line on her qualifications for a stepmother.

But, anyway, don't marry the middle-aged woman whom you don't love, under any conditions. That will make all three of you miserable.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband comes to the table every morning unwashed, uncombed and unshaven. I have talked to him about it, but he does not seem to see that he is losing my respect and endangering the happiness of our marriage. When I look at him across the breakfast table I wish I was a thousand miles away.

NEAT WIFE

ANSWER: Men know how much importance they put upon their wives being easy on the eyes. It is strange that they do not realize that women, who put so much stress upon appearances, are even more offended by having to look upon a slovenly man.

But how you are to make your husband feel that you are worth dressing up for of a morning, I don't know. You might give him a dose of his own medicine and come to the table with your hair in curl papers and cold cream on your face and, if he objects, tell him that if he will doll himself up for breakfast, you will, too.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.
