Contrast

By Ruth E. Schartz

Sometimes an errant wish comes whispering
That I had been by birth a city child;
For days are filled with gaiety and sills
With many little friends to laugh and play
When homes are close, along the boulevard!
The playground summons to the slides and swings
While swimming pools invite with cooling grace,
Ice cream is not rare manna to the lips,
And movies are a customary fare!
In winter, rinks are smoothly blue
and snow,
With sweetened skaters, twirling high white boots
On gleaming steel blades, spraying silver sparks!
But I was born a child of field and tree,
Who made believe green ears of corn were dolls,
That cunning kittens were poor crippled tots
In need of operations; I, physician
Who healed their limbs (not seeking any fee!)
The Castor river was my wading pool
Wherein I tended goslings and young ducks —
My loyal mongrel swimming by my side,
Crisp winter hailed us, skimming o'er the trails
A rescue dog-train flying day and night,
To some strange village, winter-locked and ill,
(Where imprints on the drifted hills declared
That angel-figures cared to linger there!)
Few books were mine, and these I knew by heart;
But in my Theatre of Thought I moved
With characters, alive in fantasy,
And Christmas drills thrilled with wild ecstasy!
Fresh home-made rolls, salt-pork and sauerkraut,
Quaint pancake isles in maple syrup seas,
Were warm rewards for wintry walks from school
And finally — the weary time —
to sigh
And float on feathers with the fragrant
Of cedar kindling stealing through my dreams!

When these fond scenes come tripping back to mind,
No privilege in this city whirl I find.

St. John's W. A. held their monthly meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Wilnot MacDonald in Crapaud village. The ladies decided that they would finance the painting of their church this spring, as well as decorate the interior of the new rectory. The men of St. John's have cut the necessary wood for erecting a stage from which repairs will be made to the church spire. The Anglican youth centre, an adjoining property which is maintained by island Anglicans for summer camps, is undergoing a transformation too. The whole interior (12 rooms) is being painted and decorated, and the dining room at the rear of the building is being modernized.

Due to the unprecedented bad roads around Crapaud and Victoria, the members of St. John's Anglican congregation made their way to evening on Sunday, April 16th, by tractor, wagon, and foot. T. H. Head, minister of Hampton United Church who is proceeding at the end of this month to Cape Breton where he will assume new pastoral duties, preached on the Resurrection theme. At the end of the service Mr. Head had an opportunity to bid adieu to his many Anglican friends in the district. Twelve girls of the junior choir appeared for the first time in their new wine-colored gowns and mortar-board hats of poplin which were sharply marked with a round collar and jabot of white shark-skin. One recalls the time when choir robes were taboo in many Christian churches but now they are making their appearance everywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Maynard, their young son Donald and also daughter Dorine (now in her first year at Prince of Wales College), will take up residence in Summerside the first of May. The faithful service of this couple to the community is revealed in the fact that Mr. Maynard has operated a garage business for the past fourteen years and his wife has been in charge of the telephone exchange for half that period of time. Villagers are expected to turn out in full force on Monday evening, April 24th, for a farewell party in the family honour at the community hall. At the close of last Sunday morning's service at St. John's Anglican Church, where Mr. Maynard is a warden, a presentation of leather-bound prayer and hymn books was made to the members of the Maynard family by the various organizations of which they were members.

The story of how one good turn may lead to a very embarrassing aftermath for the doer is told concerning a local clergyman. One day last autumn, the minister stopped on his Sunday rounds to pick up a hitch hiker. The garbled English of the stranger conveyed just enough information to make the minister aware that the young man was in a serious predicament. So the clergyman took the young wanderer home for Sunday dinner and persuaded his wife, who speaks French fluently, to clarify the young man's situation. After an excited hour of French conversation, the young stranger revealed that he was a young Swiss immigrant who had come to the island seeking work in harvesting the potato crop. He continued with a voluble account of his country, his family, and every incident that had transpired since he had left his native land. The minister's patience, however, was rewarded and the rest of his personal story gradually unfolded. It seemed that the young foreigner had been across Canada and back again, and had booked passage on a liner that was scheduled to leave in four days time for the old country. His clothes and personal effects were in a station locker somewhere on the mainland and he was unaware that the rental cost of such a convenience was mounting daily to a staggering figure. His boat ticket revealed that he had passage to a port in England but no further. The young man explained that he had not sufficient money to enable him to travel from England to

Mrs. S. J. Armstrong will return by air at the end of this month from Wolfville N. S., where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Burton Bishop.

A miscellaneous shower was held last Wednesday evening in the village for Miss Audrey Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harvey of Crapaud; Miss Harvey will shortly marry Mr. Charles Dunstford, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dunstford of Hampton.

Many conjectures about the proposed route of the Trans-Canada Highway are being made by the villagers these days—the current topic of conversation in every village on the south side of the Island. But something else of equal importance is demanding attention and that is the dire necessity of regional high school. Scores of country children in this region are being deprived of advanced grades simply because the educational facilities are not available within a reasonable distance of their homes and the family purse will not permit the luxury of town schooling.

Miss Esther Oliver spent the Easter holidays with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Gordon, Montrose.

Miss Leona Weale is visiting her cousin, Miss Merna Breakenridge, Summerside.

Mr. Carl Gelson, who is doing carpenter work in Summerside, spent Easter with his family at Kildara Capes.

Mr. Jimmie MacKey, who spent the past months in N. B., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Alfred MacKey, Greenmount.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Rayner and daughter Jessie motored to Northam on Thursday where they visited at the home of their daughter (Jean) Mr. and Mrs. Eldon MacArthur.

Miss Lois Rayner, student at P. W. College, Charlottetown, spent the Easter holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rayner, Greenmount.

Mrs. A. H. Rayner has returned to her home in Greenmount after spending the past month visiting in Charlottetown at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Owen.

Mr. Arthur Hamill, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hamill and daughter Anita motored to Moncton, N.B., and spent Easter with relatives, returning to Greenmount early in the week.

Miss Edna and Thelma Rayner, employees of Calbeck's store, Bedouque, spent the Easter holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rayner, Kildara Central. They were accompanied by their sister (Mary) Mrs. Thorne Affleck, Bedouque.

Miss Jessie Rayner, who spent the past three weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Rayner, Greenmount, has returned to her duties at the P. E. I. Hospital, Charlottetown, where she is a student nurse. Jessie's many friends wish her every success for her training.

Switzerland and as a solution to his financial problem he had come to the island in order to earn sufficient money to cover the last leg of his journey home.

The minister was sympathetic to the young hitch hiker's plight and a wiring of cancellation of the boat passage, made arrangements for a booking of much later date, and managed to have the young man's belongings removed from the station locker. On the Sunday evening, the young man, a Christian Lutheran, attended service, and the following morning he was given employment by one of the members of the congregation. In due course the young adventurer returned to Switzerland and the minister received a warm letter of appreciation. But that was not the end of the story. It seemed that this young Swiss gentleman had a friend at home in Switzerland who was getting married and recommended Canada as an ideal home for a pair of newly-weds. The young Swiss further advised his marital-minded friend that the Canadian clergyman he had encountered in his travels would be a good person to vouch for the welfare of a stranger in Canada. The outcome of it all is that the clergyman, the young man's friend, and the C. P. R.'s immigration department, are endeavoring to iron out a very difficult situation. The reader can figure out the moral for himself of this new version of "The Man Who Came To Dinner."
