Welsh Excited By TV Network

CARDIFF, Wales (CP) — When Wales' own television network opens Friday, the Welsh will have fulfilled a dream.

People here are excited about the network, called Teledu Cymru. Welsh Nationalist party supporters see it as a keystone in the fight to safeguard the language, culture and traditions of Wales.

The BBC provides some service in Welsh but viewers now will be able to see Welsh programs in the prime evening viewing hours where before only English shows were available.

The new independent network satisfies one fear in the Pilkington report on broadcasting which said:

"If, we are told with impressive unanimity, the Welsh language and culture continued to be exposed to the challenge of a television program essentially English in character and if they were not nourished through a Welsh program, it was only too likely that they would go under — and that sooner than later."

The BBC plans more Welsh programming too.

"We shall double the amount of Welsh language transmitted to seven hours (a week)," a BBC official said.

Two new BBC transmitters are planned to begin operation in Wales by 1964.

HAS 3 OUTLETS

Meanwhile Teledu Cymru will serve west and north Wales with transmitters in Pembrokeshire, Caernarvonshire and Flintshire.

Some staunch Welsh feel the necessity of making a profit may preclude all-Welsh programming. Even though north and west Wales contain the bulk of the Welsh - speaking population of the country, viewers also speak English and Teledu Cymru faces some competition from English - based transmitters.

But Teledu Cymru's signal will be much stronger than those of the English stations which have to contend with the region's mountains.

Such exponents of Welsh culture as Gwynfor Evans, president of the Welsh Nationalist party, and Sir Thomas Parry-Williams, professor emeritus of Welsh language and literature at the University College of Wales and president of the National Eisteddfod Court, sit on Teledu Cymru's board of directors and they are expected to push for mainly Welsh programming.

It has not been announced exactly how much of the new network's programming will be in Welsh but officials have promised two daily news bulletins, a weekly sports program, a children's program and two half - hour "magazine programs," with more to be added.

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus picked up $50,600 for his victory in the world series of golf over the weekend, but it doesn't count towards his money standing with Professional Golfers' Association.

Nicklaus is listed third with $53,518 won in official tournaments co - sponsored by the PGA.

Palmer, who tied with Gary Player for second money in the weekend match is still ranked first with a record breaking total of $80,198. Gene Littler is second with $63,690 and Bill Casper fourth with $52,813.

Player is ranked fifth with $44,338.

TREMORS SHAKE IRAN

Beads From Deadly Beans Scattered In Ottawa District

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 60 strands of tropical beads made up of deadly jequirity beans are believed to be scattered through out the Ottawa area.

Jequirity beans—If thoroughly chewed and swallowed — can cause death, said Dr. R. A. Ludwig, director of the Plant Research Institute of the Dominion experimental farm. However, he said that putting the tropical beans in the mouth or swallowing them without breaking the seed coat need not be lethal.

Dr. Ludwig said the beans are about half the size of an ordinary pea. Little of the poison albrin in the centre of the pea penetrates the shell.

The 60 necklaces were among 72 strands brought to Ottawa in August by Len Cousineau, a Miami business man and brother-in-law of Robert Drysdale of Ottawa.

Mr. Drysdale said he found two strands of the beads in the jewelry case of his 19-year-old daughter, Diane.

SOME TO QUEBEC

He said that all but a dozen of the strands of beads were given away to relatives and friends. Some were sent to relatives near Quebec City.

Mr. Cousineau, who bought the beads from a sidewalk peddler in Haiti, took a dozen strands with him when he left Ottawa.

Dr. Ludwig said the beans in the strands in the girl's jewelery case match well with jequirity beans. There was no doubt they were jequirity beans although only a sight comparison was possible.

The laboratory lacks the equipment to analyze the beans chemically and other officials of the laboratory said they are not alarmed.

They said that castor beans, widely grown in Canada, are just as deadly.

Opening lead — Jack of diamonds.

One play frequently overlooked is the one known as "dummy reversal." It is actually not a difficult play to execute; the reason it is missed so often is that declarer simply does not see it.

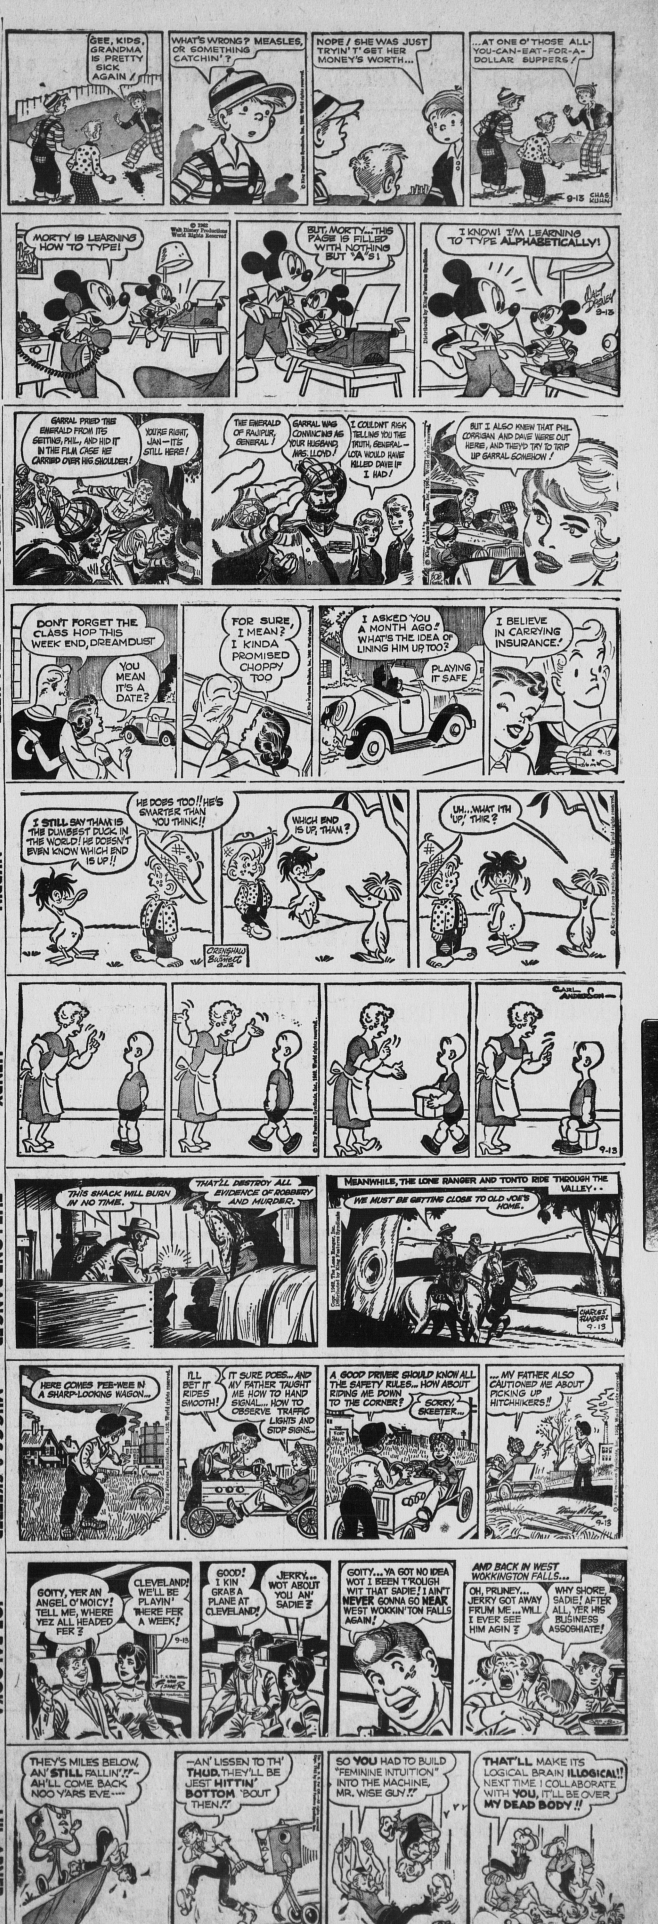
South is in six hearts and West leads a diamond. Declarer takes it with the ace and leads a club. He hopes that West has the ace, in which case he will be able to discard his diamond loser on the king.

However, the king loses to the ace and East returns a diamond. (No other play by East would matter.) Declarer wins the return with the king and now embarks on a dummy reversal. Instead of drawing trumps at this point, which would seem to be natural, he ruffs a club.

He then plays a heart to the nine and trumps another club with the jack. After entering dummy with a heart to the king, he then rufts the last club with his last trump, the ace.

The effect of these plays is that he has ruffed three of dummy's clubs in his hand, and, in the process of going back and forth, he has also extracted all but one of the outstanding trumps.

South now plays a spade to the ace and cashes the ten of hearts, drawing West's eight at the same time as he disposes of the nine of diamonds. Declarer's last three cards are the K-Q- 10 of spades, which he cashes to make the contract.

When the play is examined, it is found that South made twelve tricks, consisting of four spades, six hearts and two diamonds. When the play started, he had only eleven tricks, consisting of four spades, five hearts and two diamonds.


The trick gained came from what is known as dummy reversal. Usually, the declarer obtains extra trump tricks by ruffing his losers in dummy. In this case, South reverses that procedure by ruffing dummy's losers in his own hand. The result is that he gains the all- important twelfth trick.
