China's Future.
AN ELOQUENT DESCRIPTION OF CHINA'S POSITION.

Mr. D. C. Boulger in the third volume of his History of China just published says:— "We leave China and her people at a critical moment in their existence. They have survived the storms of a protracted foreign war and an ignominious treaty of peace. They have put down civil rebellion throughout the land, and the triumph of authority was sometimes achieved only when the province had been made utterly desolate, and when the male population had been passed on the edge of the sword.
They have conquered their most remote dependencies. The Chinese soldier stands as vigilantly to guard the rights of his Emperor at Ourgr on the Pamir, on the Amour and the Himalaya, as the Cossack scout on the Persian frontier or the Sikh sowar on the Afghan borders do to defend the limit of their respective sovereignties.
And the Chinese have done still more than execute campaigns and take military precautions. In their train, they have brought great benefits to the population. Agriculture is fast absorbing the spots left barren by war and pestilence. The highways are gradually being repaired for that trade which chafes at the obstacles from natural difficulties that hinder and embarrass its free development.
The population is increasing but apparently not so rapidly as to raise any apprehension of becoming too dense in any particular province. From all parts of the Empire like come the grateful news that the abundant resources of the soil and the marvellous characteristics of the people have availed to develop a state of material prosperity which, after the unprecedented calamities of twenty years, would not have been thought possible. We leave China at a point, therefore, when, although in face of a foreign crisis, she contains in her material condition the best guarantee against serious injury. So long as China remains united within herself, she has little to fear from the most powerful of aggressors. Her hour of peril would only come were she again disunited. When Kwangsun assume the reins of government, as he should assume them in the winter of 1887-8, it is probable that he will acquire the possession of a throne which is the most ancient in the world, and which is firmly established in the hearts and affections of a people who are the most self-contained, the most retentive of their own possessions, and the most intensely national and patriotic of whom history preserveth the record."

The Plague Stricken City.
EIGHT HUNDRED CASES OF CHOLERA IN ONE DAY—THE DEAD LEFT IN THE STREETS.

ROME, Sept. 10.—In various provinces of Italy yesterday there were reported 471 new cases and 161 deaths from cholera, twenty-four of fresh cases and all deaths in province of Genoa were at Spezia. Physicians of Spezia believe that flies spread the cholera. The syndics of Trino and Marghala, in the province of Foggia have been suspended for allowing quarantine regulations to be instituted. The railway service has been resumed in Calabria. At Briginoles several persons died of cholera yesterday, suddenly. At Naples last evening King Humbert gave audience to the municipal authorities. Orders have been issued to the troops to leave the Maddereba barracks and encamp outside. The barracks will be converted into a cholera hospital.
The royal party is visiting the poorer quarters of the city to-day. There was a riot yesterday among sellers of mineral waters, because their traffic was restricted. The epidemic continues to make great ravages. Twenty at Geneva and forty-six at other Italian cities. In Naples the condition is most harassing. King Humbert has made the first donation to the relief fund of $20,000. During the last twenty-four hours, there have been 800 fresh cases of cholera and 300 deaths in this city. The town presents a gloomy aspect.
A procession of women, carrying images of saints, preceded by Acolytes, bearing lighted tapers, march through the principal streets invoking the aid of the Virgin. A large crowd assembled outside the church of San Grenaro in consequence of reports that the Virgin Mary had descended upon the altar and bestowed her blessings upon the people. The doors of the church were closed and the crowd attempted to break them open. Troops arriving, however, the doors were opened, and the multitude rushed in, falling upon their knees in rapt prayer. King Humbert paid a visit late in the day to the Concochia hospital. There is a complete break down here on the part of the authorities in relation to health for cholera victims. Owing to want of medical comforts and stretchers the sick are left abandoned in the streets and no measures are or can be taken to remove the dead.

The Arctic Tragedy.
HOW THE DEATH SENTENCE AGAINST HENRY WAS CARRIED OUT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 6.—Sergt. Fredericks, of the Greely party, corroborates Sergt. Brainerd's denial of the story that the expedition was divided into two parties.
He says that the sentence against Henry was executed by himself and Sergeants Brainerd and Long. They shot Henry in the back, two balls taking effect and producing instant death. One gun was not loaded. They were compelled to take this course because Henry was strong and active, and had he suspected their purpose could easily have killed them. Fredericks says his experience has not satisfied him and he intends to visit the Arctic again as soon as possible.
An English conference is being organized to discuss the distribution of wealth.

Ready for any Honest Work.
A recent writer defines "worry"—a trouble which makes many people sick, and even some to die—to be labor done without faith. He means by this, efforts made without confidence in the success aimed at.
There is a world of truth in the saying, "courage, always courage!" A successful man who overheard a less sanguine person draw out, "I wish I could," turned upon him suddenly with the words, "Say I will, and you can!" That is what the energetic man had proved in his own experience, and what many a languid individual might prove too, if he would only once wake up. "Our doubts," the great poet has it, "are traitors."

The passengers and idlers in a certain street in New York were once upon a time amused by the proceedings of a poor fellow whom the police did not interrupt, though his movements gathered crowds, who stopped to look on and inquire. They went their way, admiring a persistence which almost argued insanity. The man had applied at the door of a store for assistance. "You are strong and able," was the answer, "why don't you go to work?"
"Work! I would gladly, if any one would give me work to do." "Will you do a day's work if I give you a day's wages?"
"Try me," was the answer. "Well, take that brick—put it on the curb at the corner of Nassau Street. Pick it up again and carry it to the corner of the Park. There lay it down. Take it up again and carry it back. Repeat the walk until working hours are over, and I will pay you a day's wages." If the man who gave this apparently senseless direction imagined that the other would refuse the arrangement, he was mistaken. The man took him at his word, plodded along through a long summer day, and received not only his money, but the applause of the crowd, quite as well bestowed as those upon the victor in any walking match.

If he had "worried" over such questions "What is the use?" he could not have done it. His aim was to honestly earn a day's wages, and he accomplished it. It was not, to be sure, a very ambitious purpose, or a very dignified employment of muscle without mind. But it was done without "worry," and he survived that day and provided for himself food for the next.
And it is safe to say that man got around all right in other employment. He was a philosopher in humble attire, capable of teaching many a more pretentious individual, with ample means, one great secret of life. We have only one day at a time to live in, and it is never worth while to shorten the work of that day, while we lengthen the hours in weary speculations as to the utility of any honest pursuit, or in doubts as to results. "M'eting trouble half way" is, in the timid sense, even more foolish than "dropping buckets into empty wells, and growing weary drawing nothing up." The world and its doings are made up of trifles, and many—some sad, some glad, and others foolish. But any honest folly which pays is better than worry, which is usually compensated, when the best comes, or the worst is over, with the reflection,
"What a flat I was!"—Phila Ledger.

The Snow-Shoe Idiot.
The Toronto Globe says—"Our scientific visitors will hardly be able to recognize the Canadian snowshoe idiot in his summer clothes, but he is here all the same. We mean the individual who has himself photographed in fur cap, great coat, and snowshoes, whenever he wants to send a picture to his friends across the Atlantic.
His idiotic practice has had no little effect in giving to the old world false impressions of the Canadian climate and the Canadian people. The effect of his teachings was shown in the fact that a number of the ladies accompanying the British scientists attempted to wear sealskin jackets at Montreal, and that very many of our visitors came supplied with an outfit with which they could have set the climate of Greenland at defiance. Our visitors know better now, and when they come again to Canada in the summer months, will leave the sealskin jacket and the fur cap at home. The snowshoe idiot in the meantime should endeavor to suppress himself."

A lady was reproaching William Warren, the comedian, at a recent reception for going into society so little. "You ought to let us lionize you a little," she said. "I never heard of but one man," replied the veteran, "who was not spoiled by being lionized." "And who was he?" "Daniel."

Brides seem to be very weak this year.
We have read, at least four thousand times, that "the bride entered leaning on" somebody's arm. The bridegroom who flatters himself that this is going to last, however, will find himself sold.
