Certain morbid conditions must exist in the stomach and intestines to encourage worms, and they will exist as long as these morbid conditions permit them to. To be rid of them and spare the child suffering, use Miller's Worm Powders. They will correct the digestive irregularities by destroying the worms, conditions favorable to worms will disappear and the child will have no more suffering from that cause.

The Wall Flower BY MARION RUBINCAM

GLORIA Chapter 30

"Now, tell me your name," Mrs. Gates began as they started work.

"Dora—that is, Dora's my nickname. I've a silly name, Aunt Maude doesn't like it." She hesitated, then gave it, "Pandora".

"Pandora!" It was music when the visitor's voice pronounced it. "A sweet name, though not after a very sweet character. But it suits you in a way, because one could nickname you Pan."

A tiny pink stole into the girl's cheeks. Pan! What a lovely name! Pan was a mischievous little god. Pan was a pranksy creature who danced through the pages of story books—

"Yes, Pan, it's rather elfin and so are you!"

"I?" The girl's astonishment was overwhelming. "In—why that would be more wonderful than to be beautiful. Oh, Pan, she said sheepishly. There are two of us, you see, and Gladys is all the nice things."

"But you're the one that's getting married? You're the daughter?" Peter had said he might sell because of the expenses of his daughter's wedding ceremony.

"Oh no—that's Gladys. No, one would want," she broke off. As though this exquisite lady would care about her!

The woman saw in a flash more things than Dora could have revealed in an hour. She was silent a moment, then truthfully changed the talk.

"Speaking of the appropriateness of names, mine is hopeless. It's Gloria. A deluded mother gave it to me when I was a baby, because my eyes were dark and my hair gold—or she thought it might be gold." A white hand went to her dark locks.

Dora, to please her, had given her some small tasks, such as arranging china on the table, and cokes on the plates. She watched her while she worked.

Gloria Gates may or may not have been pretty. It depended upon whether she felt tired or not, whether or not she was pleased, and upon the general state of observation. Gloria had straight black hair—the straightest and blackest that Dora had ever seen. She wore it, usually, pulled straight back from her face, revealing most of her ears—which were small and very white, and all her low white forehead. She always wore earrings of the most bizarre style.

Her profile was too irregular for beauty, her mouth too large. Her hair was a fine milk white, attached by rouge-tongue would have spoiled it; its charm was its whiteness; it had almost the depth and living lustre of a pearl.

Her eyes were very large and very dark, her hands small and white and her nails a little too long and a little too pinkly polished. She kept them this way deliberately, for their pink and white set off her white skin and dark hair and eyes.

Dora wondered how her dress was made. It was pale green georgette, it seemed simple, but was impossible to copy—which meant it was very expensive. With it she wore an orange color toque and black drop earrings. Dora—nor anyone else in Norris City, had never seen such a startling figure.

As soon after supper as they comfortably could, the four guests drove away. Dora silently washed dishes. Jim silently helped her.

"Too bad to have this extra work," he sympathized finally.

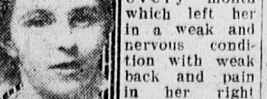

"Oh, but I was so glad to have them," she protested. She would have cooked millions of meals and washed millions of piles of dishes, to have seen and listened to this woman who was so totally different from anything she had seen or read about.

Next day since she could do more or less as she pleased when her aunt was away, she invented errands and drove in town. Taking all her courage into her hands, she went to the luncheon and asked for the furniture book. She drove back with slack lines looking at the photographs of old pieces.

DAUGHTER WAS WEAK AND NERVOUS

Mother Gave Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with Happy Results

Cobourg, Ontario. "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me for my daughter. She had trouble every month which left her in a weak and nervous condition with weak back and pain in her right side. She had these troubles for three years and frequently was unable to attend school. She has become regular and feels much better since she began taking the Vegetable Compound from roots and herbs, regularly." Mrs. JOHN TOMS, Ball St., Cobourg, Ontario.

Every mother who has a daughter suffering from such symptoms should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It is prepared from roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by young and old. It has been used nearly fifty years, and many women owe their good health today to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

of Colonial furniture. She hurried her work, took the book to her room that evening and never shut it until she had devoured the last line at dawn.

Next day Gloria drove out—with Morton.

"Dora handed her the volume. "But I thought you wanted to read it!"

"I have," and as Gloria looked surprised, "I read it all night."

"But, good heavens! You are enthusiastic."

"It told me so many things I wanted to know," Dora confessed, flushing with embarrassment and or Gloria's steady gaze. "Besides, I shouldn't have had time the rest of the week."

She turned away as Peter came; she watched Gloria as she walked back to the old farmhouse. She had a gingham on today—but what a gingham! She could not know it came from Paris. Peter was holding out for too much money. As they drove away, she heard Gloria say to Morton.

"What a quaint and charming little girl! Are all the others as nice?"

She couldn't believe Gloria meant her, but a wave of gratitude welled over her that made her want to kiss the hand of the newcomer, that sent her to her room to hide sudden and inexplicable tears.

In Diamond Dyes, no other kind, then your material will come out right, because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to streak, spot, fade or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

MONTREAL WEEKLY MARKET LETTER

Receipts of live stock on the two markets for the week ending April 27th, 1922, amounted to 848 cattle, 5,391 calves, 545 sheep and lambs and 3933 hogs. There were no export cattle through the yards. Under a short supply the bidding for cattle was brisk at prices 25 cents or more higher on all classes of fair to medium butcher cattle. One or two small lots of real nice butcher cattle weighing from 900 to 1,000 pounds topped the market at $8.75, but few cattle were good enough to bring much over $8.00, which price was also paid for a couple of lots of fat but right Eastern cattle. Just fair butcher steers and heifers brought from $7.00 to $7.75 and some common lots down as low as $6.00. Weighty cows with a fair amount of kill were in demand and brought around $6.50 with a few with a dual up to $8.50. Plain cows and cows of dairy type brought from $5.75 to $5.75, while the common cows brought from $4.00 to $5.00 and canners and cutters $2.00 to $3.50. Bulls brought about the same as cows, a few good ones bringing from $6.00 to $6.75, but the bulk were only plain and brought from $4.00 to $5.00.

The receipts of calves which amounted to 5391 head was around 1800 heavier than last week, but about the same as the corresponding week last year. Due to the heavy receipts and over supplied state of the veal trade, the market for calves was lower and sales were hard to affect. At the opening of the market on Monday a few sales of small picked lots were made from $7.00 to $7.50, but calves of this quality were scarce. The bulk of the good sucking calves brought from $5.50 to $6.00, while the light and plain suckers sold from $4.00 to $5.00. Drinkers or red calves as they are called were offered in large numbers and these sold from $3.00 for the very plain ones, to $5.00 for those of good weights.

Sheep and lambs were offered in increased numbers and sold strong with last week. Good yearling lambs brought from $10.00 to $11.00. Good light sheep up to $8.50 with the plainer kinds down as low as $7.00 and a few calves for $6.00. The bulk of the spring lambs sold from $7.00 to $8.00 each while a couple of real good ones brought $11.00 each.

The hog market opened from 25 to 50 cent lower than last week's close. On Monday a few lots of long run hogs brought $14.00. Short run and rough lots sold for $13.50, but the bulk of sales throughout the week were made at $13.75 for select lots. Fat corn fed hogs weighing around 200 pounds rough Quebec hogs sold from $12.00 to $12.25 by the car lot, selected, those of select weights, brought around $13.00. Sows were from $3.00 to $3.50 less than selects.

A TROPICAL WONDERLAND

ITS ROMANCE AND ITS RACES

By Rev. J. F. Denny, Souris

VII.

Next in time and much greater in importance comes the negro. In studying him it would be well for us to rid our minds of the conventional idea of the black man. He is no fool whose ugliness is to be laughed at, neither is he always and in every case the character of the comic papers whose one ambition is to be a successful chicken thief. He has a little weakness in that way, but I hold, considering everything, he is no worse than many a smart white business man. As he himself puts it "Nigger man, tek chicken he tief, bacera man tief whole sugar estate, he smart boy." Then we need to define our terms. Here in Canada all people of Negro or Negroid extraction are called "colored." In British Guiana the full-blooded negro is always called "a black man," while the man of mixed blood, i.e., neither "black nor white" is the "colored" man. He may vary from a deep chocolate color to that "near-white" complexion which may pass itself off for pure white. "Father," said a young lady of that class on her return from England, whither she had gone to be educated, "how the sun has tanned you, how brown you are!" The brown was deeper than tan, however. The "black" and "colored" people represent about forty per cent. of the population. Their forefathers were slaves. They have died out. During my first years of residence now and again, I met old people whose backs were still furrowed by the lash, and whose ankles still showed the impress of the fetters. Slavery has never lacked defenders except among the enslaved. The memory of "slavery time" has burned itself deep into the souls of the black folk, while the recollection of its pains and penalties are gall and bitterness to slaves' descendants. The slave has always been a pathetic figure, black slave I think the most pathetic of all. Think of what it meant to take the black man from the freedom of his native Africa, and thrust him away from the glory of the sun into the noisome hold of a ship, and after weeks of torturous tossing to put him on a sugar or cotton plantation where under the whip he was forced to pass his days and years in monotonous labor. It is true there were humane planters, but that fact does not seem to deepen the darkness of the picture. The amazing thing to me is that the black man survived at all. After thinking of the evils of the plantation system, and its continual cramping and destruction of the soul, one wonders how he managed it. Remember, if he was treated like a cur in the fields, he was housed worse than a cow and clad as lightly as the Indian. No wonder he was repulsive, no wonder he was immoral. Torn from his native land and brought to live under these conditions what chance had he to be otherwise? It often wonder he is as good as he is.

PRESENTATION AT TRYON

Thursday evening, April 27th was a stormy night but over forty members of the Tryon Study Class assembled at the closing meeting of the season. Just as the tea concluded the lesson and asked the Committee to take charge of the business and social hour, John A. Patterson and Austin R. Tombs stepped forward, calling upon the pastor, who had barely got seated to stand. Whereupon the following address was read:—

Rev. P. A. Fitzpatrick, Tryon, P. E. I.

It is with a feeling of regret that we have met in our Study Class this evening, because we realize that this is not only the last meeting of the session, but it is the last time we will have you as our leader and teacher—at least for some time.

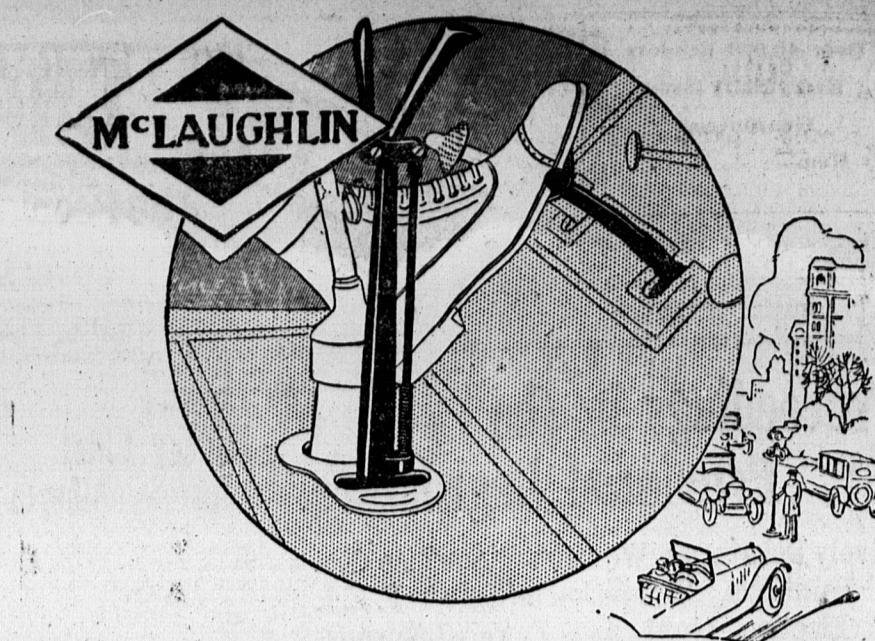

During your four year's Ministry among us, you have ever strived to serve us to the utmost, and each winter you have sacrificed many evenings for our enlightenment. We feel that we have been in an attentive class, seeming to look forward to the social hour rather than the lesson period, and although we can assure you that we have enjoyed the lesson hour, and our store of knowledge has greatly benefited by the study of the various books under your teaching.

Realizing that this will be our last opportunity of expressing to you our gratitude and thanksgiving, and having in mind the fact that we cannot speak louder than words, we ask you to accept this driving robe as a tangible expression of the high esteem in which you are held by us.

We trust that it will not only help to keep you warm during your long drives, but that it will also help to keep warm a small place in your heart for your many friends in Tryon.

Wishing you every success in the new field of labor which you are soon to enter, we are your sincere friends, the members of the Tryon Onward Mission Circle Study Class.
