Family Is Wiped Out By Explosion And Fire

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP)—A 36 - year - old cement truck driver, his 21-year-old wife and their three baby daughters were killed Tuesday when a fire and exploding destroyed their apartment in this community 20 miles northwest of Toronto.

Trapped in the burning apartment above a floor-wax plant were Fred Burnett, his wife, Zelma, and the three children—Bobbie Anne, 3, Terry Lee, 2, and Shelley Mae, 1.

Neighbors said there was an explosion, fire and then another explosion that ripped out the front of the Burnett's apartment shortly before 4 a.m.

Cause of the fire and explosions were not immediately known.

SNAP PHONE LINES

The explosions hurled cement blocks from the building to the street and broke telephone lines to 200 homes.

When firemen were able to enter the apartment, they found Mr. Burnett, dressed in only a windbreaker and underwear, holding Bobbie Anne in his arms. He was a step or two away from a kitchen door and possible safety.

The plant was owned by Taylor Atlas Products Limited. Hundreds of five-gallon cans of floor wax were found piled inside the factory. Donald Currie, manager of the firm, said the factory contained $74,000 worth of stock.

Asked whether he knew what had started the fire, Mr. Currie said:

"We had nothing inflammable in the shop whatsoever. There were 5,000 pounds of carnauba wax in a rear room, which burns just like grease when it gets going. But it was still unburned after the fire. None of the solvents used in diluting the wax was flammable."

Old Work Bench Top Remains In Art Show

HALIFAX (CP)—A "pop art" painting entitled "Expo '67" may remain in the annual exhibition of the Nova Scotia Society of Artists despite admission by the alleged artist that the work is actually the top of a work bench.

The painting, a colorful collection of thick paint, bottle tops and linen rags, was submitted to the annual exhibition being held here this week by Murdock Cranston, a local sign painter.

Mr. Cranston, who put $1,000 price tag on the "collage," said he entered it "as a gag" and was talked into submitting the piece by a friend who is a member of the artists' society. He said "the painting" is a plywood table top used in his business which he had planned to throw out.

WORK ACCEPTED

However, he was persuaded to have the paint-smeared wood surface framed and glazed at a local art dealer's shop. The work was accepted by exhibition juror Prof. Alfred Pinsky, chairman of the fine arts department at Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Prof. John D. Reppeteaux, society president, said today if Mr. Cranston actually did the work himself, "it is not a fake. It is a collage type of thing and not unusual for this area."

However, Mr. Reppeteaux said the only "phony" aspect of the painting would be if the exhibitor had entered the work under the pretence that it was his own. He said: "If it gives interest in the show and brings people out to see it, that's great.

"It will continue to be hung, even if the artist intended it as a joke." But the president added that if the painting was not actually done by Mr. Cranston, an explanatory note would be hung beside it.

Mr. Cranston said: "I wanted to get Prof. Pinsky's reaction, and I guess I got it." He set the price at $1,000 because "I didn't want to sell it."

The exhibition opened Monday night. Mr. Pinsky made his selections about a month ago and returned to Montreal.

MR. Reppeteaux said there would be no way for a juror to know if an entry were honest or not.

United Church Is Criticized In New Booklet

TORONTO (CP)—Six Canadian journalists and three United Churchmen, including two pastors, have criticized the United Church of Canada in a booklet to be distributed to book stores this week.

The 67-page booklet, Why The Sea is Boiling Hot, is described as a symposium on the church and the world, and was written at the request of the United Church Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

Among the authors is Pierre Berton, whose controversial book, The Comfrotable Pew, written as a Lenten study for the Anglican Church of Canada, has sold more than 100,000 copies.

Other contributors are Michael Barkway of Toronto, editor and publisher of The Financial Times of Canada; Arnold Edinborough of Toronto, editor and publisher of Saturday Night; June Callwood, a Toronto free - lance writer; Joan Hollobon a reporter with the Toronto Globe and Mail; and Eric Nicol, of Vancouver, free lance writer.

The editors are Arthur Brydon of the Globe and Mail, Rev. Warren Bruleigh, assistant to the principal at the United Church lay training centre at Tatamagouche, N.S., and Rev. Gordon K. Stewart of Toronto, an assistant board secretary.

In a foreword to the booklet, Rt. Rev. E.M. Howse, moderator of the church, said the authors had said nothing new, but they have presented a cogent and vivid picture of the church as it appears to the critical but not hostile outsider."

Father Sees Life Spared For Purpose

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A father of three whose heart was pierced by the blade of a hedge shear in a freak accident is so happy to be alive he is thinking of how he can help others.

William C. Sharp Sr., a 46-year - old business executive, said he was still pinching himself over being alive.

His wife, Sylvia, said he felt there must be some reason for being spared and that he wanted to do something for others, perhaps in church work.

Sharp missed death by the narrowest of margins.

"I pulled those hedge clippers out of my chest, and when I saw about six inches of red blood on the blade, I knew I was in real trouble. . . ."

He almost bled to death. A doctor said the blade injured the right ventricle. Open heart surgery and blood transfusions saved him.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

Opening lead—king of clubs.

South needed a considerable amount of luck to score ten tricks in this hand, but he also contributed a considerable amount of skill to bring about the result.

Four hearts was not a good contract on the combined hands, but it was rather difficult during the bidding for either North or South to recognize that they had identical distribution in every suit.

West led the king of clubs and South played low in the hope that this might interfere later with enemy communications. West continued with the queen, taken by the ace.

Prospects of making the contract were certainly not good at this point, even if it turned out that West had the king of spades, but south struggled along — hoping that something favorable might develop.

He drew two rounds of trumps and then played the ace and another diamond. East was forced to win the diamond, and since he had no more clubs and could not afford to return a diamond, he led back a low spade.

Declarer played low from his hand and took the jack with the queen. South now exited from dummy with the ten of clubs, and West, forced to win the trick with the jack, found that he had to concede the rest of the tricks regardless of what he returned.

He could not afford to give declarer a ruff and discard by returning a diamond or a club, so he led back a low spade from his holding of the K-4. He hoped of course that East would have the ten.

But declarer played low from dummy and took the nine with the ten to score a hard- earned but well - deserved game. The contract had looked hopeless when play began, but South persevered in the hope that somehow or other his four or five losers would shrink to three.

The moral of the hand seems plain enough: Never give up!
