World Food Calamity May Be Close At Hand

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Hungry people don't care how or by whom they are ruled. Millions of children are doomed to die painfully of hunger.

Millions of others will grow up physically and mentally retarded from hunger.

Mass poverty of one-third of all human beings is beyond the comprehension of rich countries. Because of these things, a world calamity of vast proportions can be just around the corner. For some areas, it has dawned already.

ADOPTED FOOD LAW
The problem of what to do about huge food surpluses impelled the U.S. congress in 1964 to adopt a measure under which $15,000,000,000 worth of basic food and supplies went abroad in 12 years, much in exchange for local currencies, some of it outright gifts. Since the Marshall Plan in 1948, considerably more than $20,000,000,000 worth of U.S. food has fed the hungry abroad.

The trouble is too many people. It took the world until 1900 to reach a population of 1,500,000,000. It then took only 65 years for it to more than double to 3,400,000,000. By 1975 it will be 4,000,000,000 and will have zoomed past 6,000,000,000 before 2000.

The world now has only 3,300,000,000 acres which can produce food. Underdeveloped areas have 5,000,000,000 arid acres. Without a huge program of reclamation, opening new lands, seeking sources of water, exploiting new sources of protein, there will not be enough land to feed the spiraling population. It is in the poor countries that the population rises most swiftly.

Across the world there is a belt extending roughly between the 30th and 50th latitudes: Most of North America, Europe and the Soviet Union. This is the productive area for food. Elsewhere the story is poor soils, bad climates, primitive agriculture, widespread ignorance and too many people.

The nations of the world spend about $200,000,000,000 a year on war preparation. They cannot seem to agree on how to meet the towering menace of hunger in areas populated by two-thirds of the world's people. Half of these, 1,000,000,000, regularly suffer from hunger, much of it acute.

MANY UNDERNOURISHED
Eight persons in every 10 in the world now are undernourished and one in every three knows acute hunger.

Church groups have taken the lead in the attempt to prick the conscience of the rich nations, to produce a moral driving force behind appeals to governments for a more concerted attack on the problems.

Liberals Plan Oct. Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1966 national meeting and Liberal party conference will be held here on October 10, 11 and 12, the Liberal Federation of Canada announced Saturday.

The federation said the objective of the conference will be to "generate the ideas and propose the policies of Canada's future."

Youth will receive special emphasis at the conference and the federation
