The Halifax papers received this week are chiefly filled with the harrowing details of the trial of the mutineers of the Saladin, which terminated in sentence of death being pronounced on four of the culprits.

The extra Session of the Nova Scotia Legislature was opened by Lord Falkland on the 20th inst. the 23d and on the 24th, the House of Assembly were engaged in discussing the question of the legality of the annexation of Cape Breton to Nova Scotia in 1820, and whether they would send home an Agent to report their views, and argue in favour of the claims of Nova Scotia. The debate had not terminated on the evening of the 24th.

SUPREME COURT.—The July Term of the Supreme Court, for King's County, commenced on Tuesday the 16th. The only case on the Crown side were the Queen against the prosecution of the Rev. John Macdonald, against John Mcintosh, Esq., for interruption and disturbance while in the celebration of Divine Worship; and the Queen vs. Edmund Foran, for Larceny. On the former trial, which was before a Special Jury, and after many Witnesses were heard on both sides, the Defendant was acquitted.—On the trial of Foran, he was found "Not guilty" of the Larceny, but was held to Bail until next Term, to stand trial on an Indictment for a misdemeanor, in receiving stolen property, the money being impounded in Court for that purpose.

Three Civil Jury Cases and some Appeals were disposed of, and the Court closed on Saturday evening at 5 o'clock.—Ex.

EXHUMATION.—As some labourers were engaged in excavating part of the rising ground in Exton Street, commonly called Gallow's Hill, on Friday last, for the purpose of levelling the street, they came across the bones of a human skeleton, wholly divested of flesh, and some buttons, shoe buckles, &c. The sudden surprise excited suspicion, and the Coroner was notified of the circumstance without delay—but upon enquiry of the oldest Inhabitants, that Office was soon enabled to unravel the mystery. The body was that of one Thomas Ryland, who in the month of June, 1789, hanged himself in the barn of the late Colonel Desbrisay, at Ellen's Grove, and the Jury on the occasion having returned a verdict of felo de se, he was accordingly interred in the Cross Road, which at the time was to the Westward of the present road to Princetown, in his clothes, as he was. Two or three of the Inhabitants of Charlottetown saw him buried on the spot where the bones were found.—Ib.
