Your flock needs culling. Sell at favorable prices. It's nice to have the Chicks paid for. This work, a practice of ours for years, meets with the keen approval of the farmer. Over the years the poultry industry has been a faithful friend of yours, possibly it's greatest asset being the steadiness of financial returns. 1952-poultrymen everywhere gambled on a double supply of pullets. The cockerles were gassed. Mother nature also got a little out of step. In all fairness, why blame the industry? S. R. PENDLETON KENSINGTON
