BRITISH EMPIRE LEAGUE.

The Annual Meeting in the Mansion House, London.

MONTREAL, July 23.—The Star's London cable says: Sir Charles Tupper was well received when he spoke vigorously this afternoon at the annual meeting of the British Empire League in the Mansion House. Lord Strathcona was also present. The Duke of Devonshire presided. Sir Charles congratulated the Australian and British governments on the Australian confederation and contrasted the present prosperity of Canada with the pre-confederation days. He narrated the reply he made to a United States officer in Boston recently. When it was suggested that Canada was not united on the question of sending troops to South Africa he replied: "There are cranks in every country." Referring to the Imperial problem now before British ministers he reiterated the impossibility of a parliamentary federation. Sir Charles warmly applauded the Imperial army organization which had enabled 200,000 men to be transported 7,000 miles away in South Africa.

ADMIRAL SEYMOUR'S REPORT

Work of the Allies Interestingly Described.

SAN FRANCISCO July 23.—There is nothing in the report of Admiral Seymour which was received here today by steamer America-Maru, to prove the sensational story that was circulated the earlier part of this month to the effect that Admiral Seymour, who commanded the Pekin relief expedition, killed his wounded to save them from the Chinese. Commaner S. W. Very, U. S. V., who returned from the Orient on the steamer and others who were at Hong Kong when Admiral Seymour returned from Tien Tsui did not hear the story and the Admiral's report, which is an elaboration of the cablegram published on the 30th of June, makes not the slightest mention of the affair, but on the contrary goes into particulars of the bravery of the allies in guarding the wounded who were placed in flat boats and towed down the river by details of soldiers and marines while the main body of the troops fought the Chinese off with rifle and maxim.

In the fight at Lang Fang, where the Boxers attacked the forces with great vigor, twice the Italian contingent bore the brunt of the fighting on the right flank and lost five men killed and a number wounded. The Chinese retreated leaving a large number of dead on the field.

In the afternoon at detail of British marines who were stationed to guard the R. R. house at Lang Fang, were attacked and reinforcements had to be rushed forward to save them. It was in this engagement that the enemy lost about a hundred killed. An advance was then made to Ren Ting, where the forces halted, as the tracks for miles had been torn up. The Chinese advanced in great numbers and a desperate battle was fought. The column fell back to Yong Song, so that the rest of the trip might be made by stream. Seymour then said:

"Prior to our departure from Tang Fang, I ordered two trains to stop there in order to enable part of our men to proceed later, but these trains were attacked after my departure by the Boxers and the Chinese troops that had come from Pekin, and fighting ensued, in the course of which 400 or 500 were killed on the enemies' side. Six of our men were killed and 48 wounded.

"At Young Song I was joined by the men who came there in three trains. The want of provisions together with the presence of numerous wounded soldiers, compelled us to retreat to Tien Tsui. Communication with Tien Tsui remained entirely suspended for six days and accordingly we were deprived of the means of obtaining supplies.

"We accordingly marched back, though constantly attacked by the enemy, along the river escorting at the same time the wounded soldiers carried in boats."

After detailing the capture of the forts and supplies, Admiral Seymour then added that the ammunition and food would have kept the relief column in condition for several days, but owing to the presence of so many wounded it was decided to return to Tien Tsui. On the 23rd the reinforcements from that city came to the admiral's assistance, and on the 24th the entire force reached the headquarters of the allied armies.

NEW POTATO PEST—What appears to be a new potato pest has put in its appearance in and around Canard, N. S. Henry Clarke lately noticed an insect like a fly, which settled on a row of tansy on his farm and devoured the herb. The insect then alighted on a patch of potatoes nearby and completely stripped them of leaves. When Paris green was applied the pest flew to another part of the potato field. They are causing considerable discussion among farmers, who think the insect may become as a great or a greater nuisance than the destructive and annoying potato bug.—Kentville, N. S., Wedge.
