THE DAILY EXAMINER.

DECEMBER 12, 1878.

A YEAR and a half have rolled away; and the DAILY EXAMINER still lives.

Indeed it may now be truly said that the DAILY EXAMINER is one of the "institutions" of the Province.

An appetite for a daily paper has been formed; and, judging by the increasing sales of the DAILY EXAMINER in the city, along the line of railway, and in the various towns throughout the Province, it is doubtful if the people could live without their daily paper.

Hard though the times and dark the prospect of the coming winter, it is our intention to continue the publication of the DAILY EXAMINER, so that the popular demand may be supplied.

Throughout the winter we intend to supply to the public, by means of the DAILY EXAMINER, a daily telegram containing news of all the notable events which shall transpire throughout the world in this great crisis of its history.

Through the DAILY EXAMINER the people of the Island shall - from day to day - and, independently of the Northern Light or Mutart and Irving - be informed of what is transpiring in Afghanistan, in Russia, in Germany, in the neighboring Republic, and most important of all - in the mother country.

We shall, if possible, send a special correspondent to report for the DAILY EXAMINER the Parliamentary proceedings at Ottawa, with special reference to those which most directly and most deeply interest the people of this Island.

The local news shall be given through the DAILY EXAMINER promptly, truly and as full as possible.

For the large means required to carry out this work we look to the people whose wants the DAILY EXAMINER will supply, and whose varied interests we shall assiduously endeavor to promote.

The original subscribers of the DAILY EXAMINER will, in the course of a few days, be called upon for a renewal of their favors.

The beginning of another term is a good time to subscribe; and persons who have not hitherto taken the DAILY EXAMINER would do well to subscribe now.

In connection with the DAILY EXAMINER the WEEKLY EXAMINER will be issued, at the unprecedentedly low subscription price of ONE DOLLAR a year - payment to be made in advance.

A Scale-y Story

"A major" loved a maiden so,
His warlike heart was soft as "Do."
He oft would kneel by her and say,
"You are, of right, my only 'Re.'"
"Ah! if but kinder you would be,
And sometimes sweetly smile on 'Mi.'"
"You are now life, my guiding star,
I love the near, I love the 'Fa.'"
"My passion I cannot control:
You are the idol of my 'Sol.'"
The maiden said, "Fie! ask papa;
How can you go on thus? Oh 'La!'"
The major rose from bended knee,
And went her father for to "Si."

The father thought no match was finer;
This "major" once had been a "minor."
They married soon, and after that
Dwelt in ten rooms all on "one flat."
So happy ends the little tale,
For they live on the grandest scale.

For the Ladies.

Scotch plaids are very stylish.
Flower trimmings have entirely given way to feathers.

Reversible fur-lined circulars are stylish for winter wear.
Sprays of flowers are embroidered on the backs of black gloves.

Crocheted petticoats of double zephyr are shown for cold weather.
Uncut velvet and plush are used for reception and evening hats.

Bridal veils are made of tulle, square, two, three and four yards wide.
Children's winter hosiery have bands of Scotch plaid around the ankle.

Stylish reception dresses have rows of fringe on the bottom of the front breadth.
Pinked, gathered and box-plaited ruches are revived, and ruches made bias and frayed at the edge.

Bonnets having shirred-brims are a novelty, and will probably be quite popular in dark velvets.

Five or six gathered flounces trim the back breadths of demi-trained dresses, and the overskirts are shirred upon the sides.

Children's dresses are made in dark colors this winter. The sombreness of the colors is relieved by plaids or stripes of red.

Very simple coiffures are in vogue in Paris, smooth, compact bands having superseded braids, crimps, puffs, bangs and frizzes.

Imported bonnets are made in two extreme shapes. One is a close cottage shape, and the other large, with flaring front, indented in the middle, Marie Stuart style.

Black bonnets are not used for general wear in Paris. Colored bonnets are the favorite style, the color being generally chosen to match the choicest dress of the wearer.

A new and pretty fashion is to have the initial letter woven into tablecloths and napkins in red, two complete sets of Jacquard cards being used to effect this perfectly.

New veils of black thread net without dots are in mask shade, with the lower edge pointed in sharp vandykes, and stitched in four or five rows of colored silk to suit the prevailing color of the bonnet.

Dresses draw much more bouffant in the back as the season advances. Many costumes have the front turned back in reverse and a plastron vest introduced, while behind is a broad panier puff, finished with a bow.

Light.

The English patent office is besieged with inventors engaged in perfecting the electric light or its accessories, and among these people are several eminent scientists. Patent rights and royalties are being stoutly defended, and objections have been entered to Edison's machine and other instruments, on the ground that they cover inventions already patented. Remarkable progress is being made towards obtaining a brilliant and easily managed electric light.

The lamp, however, is one thing, and the machine for generating the current is another. A third essential is that of the motive power by which the dynamo-electric machine is to be driven. New devices, with startling changes, are being made public. Gas engines are mainly used to drive the machine, and the demand for them is so great that the orders cannot be filled without considerable delay. Sir William Armstrong, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, the well-known ordnance inventor, has applied water power to driving dynamo-electric machines. The force existing in a volume of water has been utilized by the interposition of a turbine, by means of which the requisite revolutions are given to the electric machine. The current thus generated is carried through a copper wire to Sir William's residence, where it is conducted through a lamp devised on the Siemer's plan, in which the regularity of the light is maintained by clock-work. Arrangements are pending for using the electric light at one of the London railway stations and at the Crystal Palace.

Almost a Scandal.

(From the New York World.)

The Wesleyan Methodist Church in Canada once might have had a sort of Beecher scandal, but it didn't. A venerable clergyman was riding to the district conference in the Eastern Townships, somewhere near Stanstead, his companion in the buggy being a young, zealous, and indiscreet minister, not long stationed in that part of the country. As they jogged long past a little cross-road tavern the old gentleman indicated it with his whip and said, "Many and many a day I've been at that tavern years ago." "Yes," said his companion with indifference. "Yes, and a mighty handsome wife the inkeeper had, too." "Ah," said the young brother, with surprise. "Yes," continued the elder, "she was one of the handsomest women I ever saw, young, pretty, plump, fine color, and such arms. Many and many a kiss have I given her when we were sitting in a big haircloth chair in the little private sitting-room of the bar. Well, well, time flies - and the good old man gazed at his companion, whose eyes were as large as soup plates, then blushing of a deep beet-red, he said, with some confusion: "Bless me, what have I been saying? Of course, brother, you will not breathe a word of this; I cannot imagine how I came to say anything about it, but then the tongue is," etc. The young clergyman gave the required pledge, and repeated it when at the end of their drive the old man besought him earnestly to remember and not breathe a word of the matter. But, during the afternoon, the young clergyman rose and declaring that his conscience would no longer bear the burden he had imposed upon it, and that he must tell the truth no matter how terrible the consequences, informed the astonished brethren that Brother - had that day admitted that he had been guilty of improper and unchristian conduct towards a married woman, may more had recited his sin with an unctious which showed that it had never been sincerely repented of. It is needless to say that everybody first stared at the speaker and then at the accused minister, who for a hundred miles around had won an enviable reputation for uprightness and purity. The accused buried his face in his hands, and the Chairman desired the young brother to repeat his startling accusation with details. The young clergyman did so, and when he announced that the other member of the "guilty pair" was a woman whose name he did not know, but whose husband kept a tavern at - Corners, was electrified to hear the Chairman bawl, "Ha! ha! ha!" and every member of the conference got off in paroxysms of laughter. "Can you - is it possible you can smile at such a revelation?" said the dumbfounded young minister, and as soon as the Chairman had sufficiently mastered his emotion to speak he said, "My dear young brother, before Brother - was converted and entered the ministry he kept that tavern!" Thereafter that young minister was no less and infinitely more discreet.

The Largest Cash Vault in the World.

The new bullion vault for the Sub-Treasury, corner of Nassau and Wall streets, New York, is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. It is situated in the west basement, immediately under the coin room, with which it is connected by an iron stairway and an iron elevator, worked by hydraulic pressure. The vault is surrounded by a granite wall seven feet thick, with an inner wall, roof and floor of iron and steel, between two and three inches thick. It is entered by two stout iron doors, each of which has two combination locks; the outer door being also guarded by a chronometer lock. The unlocking of either of the combination locks opens the doors, two being used to prevent the trouble liable to occur through the derangement of a single lock. The vault is 48 feet long by 28 feet wide and 12 feet high; and is divided into several compartments by iron railings. It cost about $25,000.

Some of our contemporaries have found fault with the editor of the "Canadian Spectator," the Rev. A. J. Bray, for using the singular personal pronoun "I" in his editorial paragraphs instead of the usual "we." The following is Mr. Bray's latest justification. It is a good hit at Mr. Brydges:-

"I was confirmed in my use of the modest first personal pronoun when this humble despatch appeared as a telegram from Halifax, reporting the movements of the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise:-

"TO LIEUT.-COL. STEVENSON:-
"We shall reach Montreal at 11.30 on Friday. The ball will take place that evening, and the party will leave for Ottawa on Monday morning.

"C. J. BRYDGES."
The Princess Louise Female Orange Lodge in Montreal is a benevolent society, whose object is the relief of the Orange poor of the city. The members of the Society have pass-words and signs, so that they may know each other. It is not contemplated that any of the members of this Lodge shall take any part in the 12th of July procession.
