

Drew Opposed Family Allowances In 1944

ship this and keep it.—Sweeten things up for whom?"

Undemocratic

The Premier had gone on to say that "perhaps the Government might not be too pleased if the voters of Queen's County chose a supporter of Mr. St. Laurent." "I was surprised at those words," Mr. Drew said. "The Premier added that a snub from Queen's County would not likely get us the consideration we want at this time. As I would read those words, they convey the impression that this Government will only do the things that should be done in return for what they consider would be services rendered. I hope that is not so, because if it were, it would be completely contrary to every fundamental principle of democracy.

"The job of the Government is to govern in the best interests of every part of Canada—to do the things that should be done in every constituency according to the soundness of the representations that are made. I hope that the Premier's suggestion that the Government at Ottawa is putting before the voters of Queen's County the proposition that only if the voters submit to their wishes will the things be done that should be done, because that would be carrying the undermining of democracy to a point beyond anything that I have yet seen suggested in this country."

Mr. Drew went on to emphasize that Mr. MacLean's election would mean Queen's County having two men in the Commons "working together, both of whom are perfectly competent to express the needs of Prince Edward Island, and through their combined efforts and team work the work that Chester McLeure has been doing so well for years will be advanced still further."

Defense Contracts

With regard to national defense work, Mr. Drew read from the Hansard report of his own statements in the House, emphasizing that in order that industry might expand in the Maritime Provinces as well as in the West, there should be decentralization of defense contracts.

Mr. McLeure and Mr. MacLean, he added, would have the support of every Conservative member from the Maritimes in demanding that industry be brought here to employ all the skill and manpower available. As an example, he pointed out that there was no reason why industries making airplane parts could not be established here, to service the big R.

Refuting Liberal arguments that another Government supporter would be advantageous in Parliament, Mr. Drew instanced the large majority of backbenchers already there. "If silence is golden, I can assure you that the Liberal members who are not actually members of the Government have discovered the greatest gold mine in the country," he declared. "What is needed is more members who are able to speak and who are free to speak and say what should be done for their constituency."

He scored misstatements tending to mislead old age pensioners that a vote for the Conservative candidate would in any way affect their pension rights. He recalled that as Premier of Ontario he had established old age pensions at the highest level of any Province in Canada, and that for years the Conservative Party has been advocating a contributory system of old age pensions at sixty-five without a means test.

Autocratic Powers

Stressing the danger of the autocratic powers exercised by the Government, Mr. Drew referred to a return tabled in the House of Commons this week, disclosing that without any information to Parliament Rt. Hon. Mr. Howe had employed his own family company, the C. D. Howe Company, to do government jobs which will earn fees in excess of $500,000.

"There was a time," he added, "when no Minister could have done a thing of that kind, and the time must come when no Minister can do it again. That can only come by electing representatives who will restore the authority of Parliament over government, and give us government of the people, by the people."

In his opening remarks Mr. Drew said that as he flew over Summerside earlier in the day, and noted the latest R.C.A.F. type of planes on the field, he recalled another June day seventeen years ago when he had the privilege of formally opening the Summerside airport.

He spoke feelingly of his association with Mr. McLeure in Parliament, and warmly commended his services to the Province.

Most Important Time

Mr. MacLean in his speech emphasized, as the most important issue at stake, the question of whether a clean election campaign can be a successful one or not. "That," he said, "depends on you. Our democratic way of life is in great danger of attacks from without, but I believe it is in even greater danger of decay from within."

Mr. McLeure, who introduced Mr. Drew to the audience, paid warm tribute to his outstanding leadership and commended Mr. MacLean as a brilliant young man, virile and with a great desire to serve his Province in the House of Commons. "I hope," he added, "that you will answer his appeal on Monday next by marking your ballot after his name, as you should do in this case not only in the interests of Mr. MacLean himself, but in the interests of better government."

They had lunch at Stanhope Beach Inn and spent the afternoon playing sports and swimming. A sidelight of the convention was the pre-election campaigns being conducted for the office of president. All three candidates had their supporters who were using their vocal cords and printed matter to influence the voters in the election which will be held today.

The delegates will swing into another business session this morning. Most of the day will likely be spent on business matters. Tonight the delegates are guests of the P.E.I. Harness Racing Association at the race track.

the oil wells were discovered, Mr. White said. This oil might have gone to the Pacific coast except that they were a little, short of refineries, he said.

Benefits To Prairies—These barriers have also caused benefits in the Prairies. At Edmonton, almost on top of the oil fields, wholesale gasoline prices are now the lowest in Canada. At 26 cents a gallon they are a cent and a half below the wholesale price at Halifax.

scale. For the world as a whole, known reserves of petroleum are enough to last us from 20 to 25 years, and more oil is being added every year.

In opening his remarks Mr. White dwelt upon the necessity for the competitive way of doing business in the Canadian way of life. "Capitalism is as essential to our way of life as democracy itself," he stated.

He also pointed out that competitive capitalism is not perfect. However he said it was here to stay because "when we come down to brass tacks, we like its freedom, its high standard of living, we like it because it does what we want."

Mr. White has had wide experience in many phases of the oil industry. He began his career with the company in 1933 as a draftsman and engineer at Sarnia refinery.

Issues Reviewed

she attacked today." He spoke of the "fellow travellers" who have infiltrated Canadian factories, churches and even homes, and said it was the job of all to talk to them and tell them the truth. But, he added, there was no hope for the out and out Communist as he was afflicted with self-inflicted blindness.

In a review of social legislation since 1930 Mr. Rinfret maintained that Liberal Governments under Laurier, Mackenzie King and St. Laurent were responsible for all major departures. He said the new old age pension plan will affect 715,000 people in Canada and cost the country $550,000,000. It is a necessary measure for the welfare of the old people.

"No money was ever better invested than that spent on family allowances," he stated, adding that last year the family allowance disbursements amounted to $310,000,000, aiding two million families and four and one-half million children.

In other Federal expense fields he referred to the general funds used to help the Provinces in health matters. It had been learned that preventive medicine cost the Government only $1 per person while curative medicine cost $21. "We believe it is better to spend the $1 to save $21."

He also referred briefly to unemployment insurance and remarked that during the recent period of idleness the cheques received by their family allowance cheques, enabled the men to keep going and feed their families until they went back to work again. "When the Liberals are in power there is something being done for everyone."

With reference to the site of the proposed Federal Building here, the speaker said it had been delayed at first by difficulties in purchasing the various properties from the owners. But now the plans have been drafted by the Public Works Department and are presently being revised. The main trouble encountered in getting started is shortage of steel. "The building will be started as soon as possible after obtaining the steel permits," he said.

Mr. Rinfret referred to his own department only briefly, saying that he was aware of difficulties encountered here in rural mail deliveries and that he was personally examining the matter with a view to remedying the situation.

Premier Jones

Hon. Mr. Rinfret was introduced by Premier J. Walter Jones, who told of his remarkable record scholastically, legally and politically. "He was born when I was 27 years old," said the Premier, "and in another 27 years when he is as old as I am now he may be the Prime Minister."

The renovation of a hangar at Maple Hills had made possible the servicing of DC 3 aeroplanes, the Premier continued. This would mean a great deal of the servicing work would be done here and would give employment to 50 to 75 men all the time.

The Premier spoke of certain contracts coming to this Province. His reference was caused by Mr. Darby having previously referred to a Progressive Conservative advertisement claiming the arrival of naval vessels for refit here was the result of representations made by Mr. McLeure, the Conservative M.P. Mr. Darby stated that Mr. Jones alone was responsible for the ships coming here.

Regarding other contracts the Premier intimated he expected a jump in population as a result. "We might have to take up a housing program to look after the people who will be here," he added.

Other Speakers

Mr. P. R. McCormac, president of the Provincial Liberal Association, presided at the meeting and welcomed the guest speaker. He also introduced the other speakers, who included Mrs. G. S. Inman, Minister of Public Works and Highways; Hon. Walter Darby, Attorney General; Mr. Cecil Miller, the Liberal candidate in Monday's by-election; Mr. J. Watson MacNaught, M.P., and Hon. A. W. Matheson, Minister of Health and Welfare.

Mr. MacKinnon, in commenting on recent statements of Mr. George Nowlan, Conservative M.P. for Annapolis-Kings, said that if the Liberal Government had not given the people of Canada what they wanted, "they would not be sitting in Ottawa today with the biggest majority any party ever had in Parliament."

Hon. Mr. Darby severely criticized the Opposition party, especially for advertisements in which claims were advanced on behalf of Mr. McLeure.

Mr. MacNaught said that a month ago he had introduced Mr. Miller to several cabinet ministers at Ottawa. "They were impressed with his integrity and his ability to present a logical case on behalf of his constituency," he said.

In supporting Mr. Miller he was actuated to some extent by a desire to have someone from Queen's County to help him and Mr. Thomas Kitchin press of the authorities the claims of this County. Mr. MacNaught added, "I want a representative who will be able to look after the detail of representing this County which no member of the Opposition can adequately do no matter how much of a fighter in propaganda advertisements he may be alleged to be."

Mr. MacNaught said the Opposition had narrowed the election issues down to one — the need of strengthening the Opposition. With this he expressed agreement, but said the strengthening was not so much needed in numbers as in constructive policies.

Seated on the theatre stage with Mr. Rinfret were Premier Jones, Hon. Cyrus Macmillan, John Nicholson, Hon. A. W. Matheson, Cecil Miller, Hon. Eugene Cullen, J. Watson MacNaught, Hon. W. E. Darby, Mayor B. Earle MacDonald, Hon. Douglas MacKinnon, Mrs. Russell Roper, Mrs. G. S. Inman, Mrs. D. J. Riley and P. R. McCormac.
