CHAPTER VI.

'Cold, is it, my darling? Bless your sweet face!' said Mrs. Poyser, who was remarkable for the facility with which she could relapse from her official obsequious tone to one of fondness or of friendly converse. 'Never mind! Mother's done her ironing now. She's going to put the ironing things away.'

'Munny, I tould 'ike to do into de barn to Tommy, to see de whittawd.'
'No, no, no; Totty 'ud get her feet wet,' said Mrs. Poyser, carrying away her iron.
'Run into the dairy, and see Cousin Hetty make the butter.'

'I tould 'ike a bit o' pun-take, rejoined Totty, who seemed to be provided with several layers of requests; at the same time taking the opportunity of her momentary leisure to put her fingers into a bowl of starch, and drag it down so as to empty the contents with tolerable completeness on to the ironing-sheet.

'Did ever anybody see the like?' screamed Mrs. Poyser, ranning towards the table when her eye had fallen on the blue stream. 'The child's allays i' mischief if your back's turned a minute. What shall I do to you, you naughty, naughty gell?'

Totty, however, had descended from her chair with great swiftness, and was already in retreat toward the dairy, with a sort of waddling run, and an amount of fat on the nape of her neck, which made her look like the metamorphosis of a white sucking pig.

The starch having been wiped up by Molly's help, and the ironing apparatus put by, Mrs. Poyser took up her knitting, which always lay ready at hand, and was the work she liked best, because she could carry it on automatically as she walked to and fro. But now she came and sat down opposite Dinah, whom she looked at in a meditative way, as she knitted her gray worsted stocking.

'You look th' image o' your aunt Judith, Dinah, when your sit a-sewing. I could almost fancy it was thirty years back, and I was a little gell at home, looking at Judith as she sat at her work, after she'd done th' house up; only it was a little cottage, father's was, and not a big rambling house as gets dirty i' one corner as fast as you can clean it in another; but for all that, I could fancy you was your aunt Judith, only her hair was a deal darker than yours, and she was stouter and broader i' the shoulders. Judith and me allays hung together, though she had such queer ways, but your mother and her never could agree. Ah! your mother little thought as she'd have a daughter just cut out after the very pattern o' Judith, and leave her an orphan, too, for Judith to take care on, and bring up with a spoon when she was in the grave-yard at Stoniton. I allays said that o' Judith, as she'd bear a pound weight any day, to save any body else carrying an ounce. And she was just the same from the first o' my remembering her; it made no difference in her, as I could see, when she took to the Methodists, only she talked a bit different, and wore a different sort o' cap; but she'd never in her life spent a penny on herself more than keeping herself decent.'

'She was a blessed woman,' said Dinah;
'God had given her a loving, self-forgotten nature, and he perfected it by grace. And she was very fond of you too, Aunt Rachel. I've often heard her talk of you in the same sort of way. When she had that bad illness, and I was only a eleven years old, she used to say, 'You'll have a friend on earth in your Aunt Rachel, if I'm taken from you; for she has a kind heart,' and I'm sure I've found it so.'

'I don't know, child; any body 'ud be cunning to do anything for you, I think; you're like the birds o' th' air, and live nobody knows how. I'd ha' been glad to believe to you like a mother's sister, if you'd come and live i' this country, where there's some shelter and victual for man and beast, and folks don't live on the naked hills, like poultry a scratching on a gravel bank. And then you might get married to some decent man, and there'd be plenty ready to have you, if you'd only leave off that preaching, as is ten times worse than anything your Aunt Judith ever did. And even if you marry Seth Bede, as is a poor wool gathering Methodist, and never like to have a penny beforehand, I know your uncle 'ud help you with a pig, and very like a cow, for he's allays been good-natur'd to my kin, for all they're poor, and made em welcome to th' house; and 'ud do for you, I'll be bound, as much as ever he'd do for Hetty, though she's his own niece. And there's nobody in the house as I could well spare you, for I've got lots o' sheeting, and table-clothing, and toweling, as isn't made up. There's a piece o' sheeting Kitty spun—she was a rare girl to spin, for all she squinted, and the children couldn't abide her; and, you know, the spinning's going on constant, and there's new linen wove twice as fast as th' old wears out. But where's the use o' talking if you wonna be persuaded, and settle down like any other woman in her sense, 'stead o' wearin' yourself out, with walking and preaching, and giving away every penny you get, so as you've nothing saved against sickness; and all the things you've got i' th' world, I verily believe, 'ud go against a bundle no bigger nor a double cheese.
And all because you've got notions i' your head about religion more nor what's the Catechism and the Prayer-book.'

'But not more than what's in the Bible, aunt,' said Dinah.

'Yes, and the Bible, too, for that matter,' Mrs. Poyser rejoined, rather sharply; 'else why shouldn't them as know best what's in the Bible—the parsons and the people as have got nothing else to do but learn it—do the same as you do? But, for the matter o' that, if everybody was to do like you, the world must come to a stand still; for if everybody tried to do without house and home, and with poor eating and drinking, and was allays talking as we must despise the things o' the world, as you say, I should like to know where the pick o' the stock, and the corn, and the best new milk cheeses 'ud have to go? Everybody 'ud be wanting bread made o' tail ends, and every body 'ud be running after everybody else to preach to 'em, i'stead o' bringin' up their families, and laying by against a bad harvest. It stands to sense as that can't be the right religion.'

Boston Markets.

FISH—Messrs. Harwey & Co's circular of the 29th ult. says there has been a very light trade and no material change in prices. Shore mackerel in large lots are still quoted at $3.50 for No. 3; $4 and $8.50 for No. 2; and $18 and $18.50 for No.
1. Separate lots of each range higher.
Nova Scotia No. 3 are steady at $6.50 and $7 per cwt. No P. E. Island mackerel of any importance are offering. Codfish are without improvement in price.

PORK—There is a fair trade at previous prices. Clear is selling at $17.50 and $18.50, and backs at $18.50 and $19 per brl. Mess is quiet at $13.50 and $14 per brl.

LARD—There has been a moderate demand at 7½c per lb.

SMOKED HAMS—Prices have declined, with sales at 11½ and 12½c per lb.

POTATOES—There has been an easier tendency in prices of Potatoes, owing to the liberal supply and the pressure to sell, and very few sales have been made at over 53c, though strictly choice Houlton Rose are held higher. Sales of white stock have been made at 40 and 45c. We quote:—

Rose per bushel 50 to 53 Barbank Seedlings 45 to 48 Peerless 40 to 45
Beauty of Hebron 40 to 45 Prolicus 45 to 50

EGGS.—The market continues quiet for eggs, and only strictly fresh command full prices. Held stock is dull and irregular in price. We quote Nova Scotia and P. E.
Island 26 and 27.

CHEESE.—There is very little change to note in cheese. The demand continues light and sales are confined to small lots Fine September and October are held at 13c per lb, but very few sales for the trade can be made at over 12½c per lb. Most of the good Western is selling at 11 and 11½c, but some popular brands command 12c.
Common grades continue dull. Liverpool quotations 58s.

OATS.—Oats are higher and have been in better demand. Sales of No 1 and extra white at 36 and 48s, including barley; No 2 white at 34½ and 35½; No 3 white at 33½ and 34½; and mixed at 32 and 34½c per bushel.

Trade with China.

"If France puts off making peace with China much longer," says Paris-Canada, "she will find Canada awaiting her on the shores of the celestial empire." And then our contemporary proceeds to point out the arrangements that are being made for the establishment of a line of steamships between British Columbia, China and Japan.
There is every reason to believe, we are told, from the steamer already taken, that when, in the fall of 1885, the great Canadian trans-continental line is complete, the trans-oceanic line will inaugurate a regular service. This twofold inauguration, Paris-Canada thinks, will be the means of transforming Port Moody from an insignificant village to a great city and seaport, the rival of San Francisco on the Pacific coast. In the competition that will arise, indeed, it acquires all the advantages of Port Moody, which is only 4,326 miles distant from Yokohama, whereas San Francisco is 4,860 miles from that city. Then a great part of the commerce which now goes by the Central and Union Pacific to San Francisco will go by the Canadian route. Here, too, the advantage is entirely on the side of the Canadian enterprise. From San Francisco to New York by the most direct American route the distance is 3,331; from Port Moody to New York, on the other hand, by the Canadian Pacific via Brockville, it is only 3,127, a difference of 204 miles in favor of the Canadian.
