HAPPENINGS

Senator Elsie Inman arrived back from St. Johns, Newfoundland, last week. She was accompanied by Mrs. L. H. Poole of Montague. They were the guests of Senator Inman's son, Lieutenant Commander W. N. Inman and Mrs. Inman at Buckmaster Field, St. Johns.

Among those entertaining in their honor were the Lieutenant Governor Sir L. Outerbridge and Lady Outerbridge. Senator Inman was the guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon on October 1st taking as her subject (by request) The History functions of the Canadian Senate. Senator Inman and Mrs. Poole were much impressed by the scenery in Newfoundland and the hospitality of its citizens.

Senator Inman left for Ottawa to attend a dinner. The executive of the B and P Clubs, St. Johns, gave a very delightful buffet supper. They were also guests at the Officers Mess, Buckmaster Field at a reception for Brigadier Morres of Newfoundland Command. Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Inman were hosts at an evening reception in honor of their guests.

Miss Margaret Wood, Canadian National Telegraphs, left on Tuesday morning to visit her sisters in Toronto. She will also spend some time with her brother and his family in Leamington, Ont.

Miss Bertha Hogan, Charlotte-Mary Rogers while Miss

town, is visiting in Central Bedeque. She is the guest of Miss Margaret McCabe.

Mr. Roger Worth, Granville St., Charlottetown, has just returned home after a very pleasant trip to Hamilton, Ontario.

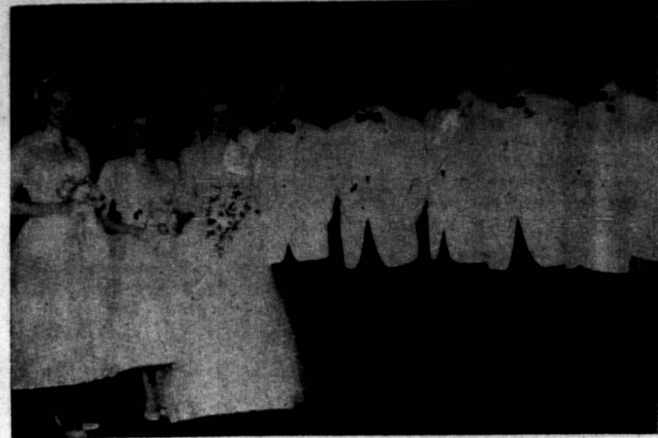

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac C. Walker and daughter Audrey, Kensington, were recent visitors to Troy and Bangor, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Ramsay, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Clark, Kensington, were recent visitors to Bangor, Maine.

Bride Elect Was Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hickey entertained at their home in honor of Miss Mildred Campbell on Friday evening when a community shower was tendered for her by her neighbors and friends. Pink and white decorations were artistically arranged over the bride's chair, when the guests had assembled she was escorted in by her sister and attendant, Mrs. E. Devine while Mr. Paul Gallant played appropriate music on the accordion.

Well filled baskets of linen, glass and money were carried in by Misses Shirley Gallant and

Artistic Settings Feature Trinity Country Fair And Tea

Salvias and Dahlias combined with Autumn leaves prevailed in the decorations which formed a very pretty setting for the Country Fair and the Gay Nineties Tea held yesterday afternoon from 3.00 to 7.00 by the Junior W. A. of Trinity.

The object of many favourable comments from the hundreds who attended the Fair and Tea was the attractive and artistic scene on the stage of the Church Hall designed and arranged by Mrs. (Dr.) Todor Gencheff.

It depicted a girl in the costume of the Nineties feeding her ducks near the old stone well. So realistic was the scene that many could hardly convince themselves that they were looking at a prepared setting. "Aunt Betsy's Pantry" attracted many customers where a generous supply of hams, jellies and candies was in supply. Home cooking was also featured in the pantry.

"The Wee Shop" with dolls, toys and other articles of interest to the younger set was most attractive and drew a large number of customers. Other booths were the "Ye Olde Christmas Gift Shoppe" and "The Jewell Box." A novelty arrangement was the "Parcel Post" where unknown gift selections were secured from the Fair "post office."

At the tea a striking scene was in evidence where the ladies in Gay Nineties costume were during the afternoon. Mrs. George J. Tweedy is president of the Junior Woman's Association. The tea was under the sponsorship of Mrs. Sheldon Carson. The Country Fair was convened by Mrs. Jim Montgomery.

reds. was done by Mrs. (Dr.) Tudor Gencheff. The rooster crows on top the well while a bluebird flies overhead.

Garden Wedding At Dover

A pretty garden wedding was solemnized on Sept. 23th, 1957, at the bride's home in Dover, when Florence Alice MacLure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parmlee MacLure became the bride of Howard Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Murray, Meadow Bank, P. E. I.

Rev. Mr. Wolfrey performed the ceremony before seventy guests.

Mixed flowers trimmed the arch, and the house and table were decorated with glads and sweet peas.

The bride was given in marriage by her father who wore a bluish grey suit with white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Carl MacLeod as matron of honor was attired in navy blue. Mr. Norman MacPhail was groomsmen.

Mrs. Holden MacLure played the wedding music, and sang, "I Love You Truly," while register was signed.

The bride's mother wore a powder blue dress and the groom's mother wore a brown dress.

A delicious supper was served at the bride's home. Threeter wedding cake was in the centre of the table.

Piper Major MacLeod supplied pipe music and Mr. William MacQueen sang some gaelic songs, and a sacred sing-song by Chester Martin and Allen Cameron with Mrs. Harvey MacLean at the piano.

The bride and groom went on their honeymoon to Halifax to the groom's brother's home. They will reside in Meadow Bank.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

A true bias line is found by folding the end of a piece of fabric so that the lengthwise threads are exactly parallel to the crosswise threads. This will make a diagonal fold of the fabric which is the true bias. All lines running parallel to this diagonal line are bias lines.

Lovely Wedding Is Held At The Home Of The Bride

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Prowse, Brackley, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when their only daughter, Myra Gail, became the bride of Errol Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jenkins, Winsloe. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. F. H. Littlejohns.

The bride entered the beautiful decorated living-room on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Earl Clark. She wore a blue V-neck ballerina length gown of printed net over taffeta, with a white nylon hat. She carried a nosegay of white carnations. Her only jewellery was a single strand of pearls and matching ear-rings, the gift of the groom.

Miss Beatrice Jenkins, sister of the groom was bridesmaid. She wore a ballerina length gown of white shirps crystallite with matching hat and carried a nosegay of pink carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. Andrew Humphrey.

Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served by friends of the bride, Miss Thelma Newson, Miss Christine Phillips, Miss Velma Wood and Miss Evelyn Jenkins. The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Tea was poured by the grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. Calvin Wood and Mrs. Harry Gander.

Miss Pauline Jenkins, sister of the groom, was in charge of the guest book. The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a copper wool dress flecked with gold and she wore matching accessories with a corsage of yellow roses. The mother of the groom wore a light wool dress of charcoal grey with pink accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridal couple left by car for a trip to Cape Breton Island. To travel the bride chose a navy and white fleck suit with pink accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home which was given by her friends in the community, also a miscellaneous shower was given by her friend, Mrs. Finley Fraser, Charlottetown. At both of these she was the recipient of many lovely gifts. She also received a lovely gift from her co-workers at The Royal Bank of Canada where she was employed.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Mack, In The Garden Watching The Sweet Corn

This morning brought with it a cool wind. And having felt its breath when out about their early interests — Mack exploring avenues of evidence in the garden to try to determine if a parcel of chickens, a prowling 'coon or the pup was the vandal destroying the golden ears of sweet corn. He to feed the fowls their breakfast — the children listened eagerly to first weather forecasts, wondering, "Shall I need to wear my warm sweater... my jacket to school?" "Wear plenty" James cautioned them. "You'll find that this is going to be a cool chilly day. Cool. Yes with something of the bleakness of the later Autumn days about it, but still not without its beauty and delights. Few days are. Even those which occasion us partings and sadness and disappointments, even "one of those days" which come to us in a series of worrisome happenings on farms has somewhere about, for us, a little healing of spirit, a certain Balm in Gilead to encourage us.

"Everything was out of groove that day," a farmwife recalled of a recent one of hers when we visited her last summer.

"You know how it is — a hawk lights out with a chicken, an animal is dead in the pasture, there is suspected blight in the potatoes... everything at sixes? I was feeling pretty well discouraged. I didn't know where to try to continue my work or" she chuckled "sit down and cry! I did neither. And down in the flower-border, on a bush I had planted only last Spring, I found a first bud of blossom on my Tallisman rose! You'll never know how much the sight of it helped me — revived my hopes. All at once it was quite a nice day. Our troubles would pass."

"There's always a rose" we queried.

"Yes, I believe there's always a rose" she smiled.

To mark the Autumn — to be one with migrating birds and the seasonal "horn of the hunter," with amber stubble and drifting leaf, we today, heard the sound of plowing in the neighborhood. First furrows were being turned in anticipation of another Spring to come. And the hours of our cool day slipped away. And when the twilight drifted in ever so gently over the hillsides, the wind retreated before it off to some far fastness of place.

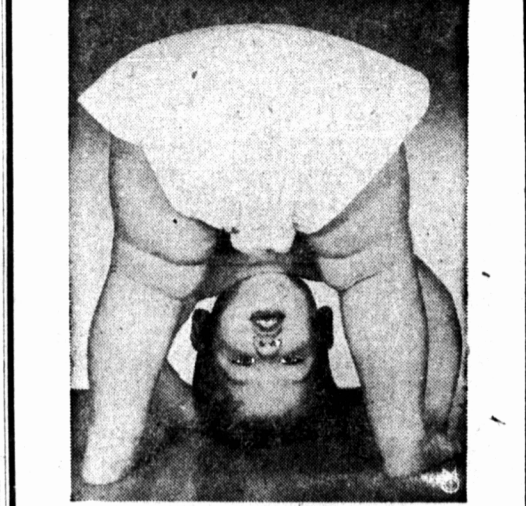

"You should see the moonlight!" Granddaughter smiles now at the door. In last chores of the day they have been "stabling" their bicycles on the back verandah. "It's bright on the fields... and lovely. And down by the bridge, there's a sheen on the stream."

"You come too, Granddaddy!" Mack calls to James in the old armchair.
