Building Boom Hits Goldfields as Spring Comes

(By Leslie Roberts) (Canadian Press Correspondent) GOLDFIELD, Sask., April 30.—Celebrating what is tantamount to its first birthday anniversary as a named community, Saskatchewan's first gold camp is in the throes of a building boom in anticipation of the human influx expected when the ice goes out from Lake Athabaska a month or more hence.

Around the hillside fronting on Nyman Bay saw and hammer sing while dog-teams and tractors haul loads of fresh cut logs to the scenes of building activity. With towsite plans in preparation in Regina, it is expected the coming summer will see the site of Goldfields completely surveyed, its street lines homologated and civic government duly installed in office.

The townsite proper is not to be confused with the scene of the principal mining operations. As in most new mining camps the town itself has sprung up, mushroom-like, as a struggle of stores, post office, hotel, radio station and living quarters, with little design or order in the construction.

The principal mining operations, on the other hand, have been developed with the eye to organization. At the Athona Mine, under interests in Toronto, a completely developed by the J. J. Byrne inc. layout has been constructed. Shaft houses, power house, blacksmith's shop, carpenter's shop, bunkhouses, machine shop, cookery, mine office, staff house, assay office, mill pumping station and living quarters for married officials heating brings every building to are all electrically lighted. Central living-temperature through hot-water circuits fanning out from the main boiler-room. Running water is piped on an overhead basis and in operation in the change house.

Health services and sanitation are under the supervision of Dr. Dunn, a graduate of Toronto University. Diet is controlled with a view to scientific balance. All the amenities of health and orderly community living have been installed on ground which, a year ago, was virgin bush. Similar conditions obtain at the consolidated Smelters property, the other principal operation of the new camp.

Elsewhere throughout the area smaller operations are being carried on with skeleton crews which will be enlarged to major size when break-up comes. These are all in the surface-trenching and diamond-drilling stages with the exception of Greenlee Mines, where a prospecting shaft is down 50 feet on one of the principal ore zones.

Already many men are beginning to arrive in camp, searching for work, only to discover that none is available, except for experienced miners. Appearance of casual labor on the scene, unused to mining operations because of lack of mining ventures in this and the neighboring province, is likely to cause an unemployment problem in the northwest new camp and company officials state that work-seekers should not venture into the district unless they possess qualifications and experience suitable to mining employment.

MINERS BALK AT LONG HIKE

(By The Canadian Press) GOLDFIELD, Sask., April 30.—This new mining community on the shore of Lake Athabaska experienced a serious unemployment problem this spring—40 men were out of work.

At a general meeting a plan was discussed to march to the nearest railway station, but the plan was considered foolhardy by the sourdoughs and only 15 men volunteered for the walk. It meant a tramp of 271 miles to Fort McMurray, Alta. The oldtimers were worried more at the conditions likely to be encountered en route than the distance.

HAILESS CLUB ORGANIZER DIES

(C. F. By Guardian's Special Wire) TORONTO, April 30.—Karel M. Wegkamp, Ph.D., credited with being one of the organizers of the "hatless Manhattan Club" who surprised New Yorkers some years ago by appearing on the street without hats, died in hospital today. He was 69 years old.

Mr. Wegkamp often recalled his New York experience, saying that there was much opposition at first "but today there are thousands who go hatless."

ANIMAL FREAK DIES

MANCHESTER UNITED LEADS 2ND DIVISION

(C. F. by Guardian's Special Wire) LONDON, April 29.—Making a strong bid for the championship of the Second Division of the English Football League, Manchester United went into a one-point lead over Charlton Athletic by snatching a 2-1 victory at Bury today. The Manchunians now have 55 points, Charlton has 54 and West Ham United 52. In any event Manchester is certain of being one of the two teams to be promoted when the closing games of the season are played on Saturday. A draw will send Charlton up provided West Ham finishes with a victory.

Arsenal drew with Chelsea 1-1 on Monday and lost 2-1 at Bolton today. The one point obtained puts the cup-winners in fifth place in the first division table behind Stoke City.

Although beaten 3-2 by Aberdeen at Ibrox Park in a post-season game, Rangers retain the runner-up position in the Scottish League by virtue of a superior goal average to the Dons. Both teams have 61 points, five less than the champion Celtic team.

English League Div. I: Bolton Wanderers 2, Arsenal 1, English League Div. II: Bradford City 1, Fulham 0, Bury 2, Manchester United 3.

Division III Southern Section: Bristol City 2, Crystal Palace 0, Southend United 1, Swindon Town 0.

Division III Northern Section: Chester 3, Halifax Town 1, Scottish League Div.: Kilmarnock 2, Clyde 0, Rangers 2, Aberdeen 3.

Canadian Nurse Brazil Pioneer

WINNIPEG, April 30.—(CP)—Miss Winnifred Dawson, B. N., has been in Winnipeg almost three months now "loaned" to the Winnipeg office of the Victorian Order of Nurses after their own Miss L. N. Gray had resigned. Miss Dawson, in her regular job, is eastern supervisor of the V. O. N., a position that takes her travelling to the various branches of the order in Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

Miss Dawson is a graduate nurse of the Winnipeg General Hospital. Her first job as a full-fledged nurse was in a new hospital, just opened, at Canora, Sask. She returned to Winnipeg soon after as supervisor of the operating room at the General, and later at the Tuxedo Military Hospital.

Then came the Great War and Miss Dawson enlisted as a Canadian Nursing Sister, attached to the Canadian Army Medical Corps. In three English hospitals she tended returned soldiers, brought wounded and sick from France.

She took up public health work, then something of a novelty, and worked in Toronto, while there a great adventure offered itself. She was "lucky" enough to be accepted as the only Canadian nurse to go with a number of Americans to Brazil for the Rockefeller Foundation on a mission that was to establish nursing in the South American continent.

From New York she sailed for Rio de Janeiro. "The first thing we had to do was study Portuguese—nobody spoke English," observed that quiet, little nurse. Even while new words were being added to their vocabulary daily, the Rockefeller nurses began their work of establishing a training school. "Nursing as we know it was practically unknown in Brazil—they had wonderful hospitals, and clever doctors, who went to Europe for their post graduate work, but no nurses. When a rich patient came to hospital, his family and servants came too, engaging a suite of rooms so they could be close by to look after her. For poor people there was a Sister, about one to 100 beds and naturally all she could do was administer medicine."

In six years "we withdrew"—the Brazilian nurse carrying on their own school of nursing, named for Anna Nery, who did the first nursing. By now they have graduated about 150 nurses—since 1928. "The nurses of that hospital are affiliated with the International Congress of Nurses, so they are keeping up their standard."

Blue and White Borders Popular

USE AGERAZOM AND ALYS-SUM TO TRIM BORDER

Borders of lavender ageratum and white alyssum have become deservedly popular features of the summer garden. This is a combination easily within the skill of the most inexperienced gardener, and requires merely the making of a shallow drill a foot and a half from the edge of the bed and sowing ageratum seed. Then six inches from the edge of the bed sow a parallel row of sweet alyssum.

Thin the plants when the seed germinates to six inches apart and the lavender and white edging is started. All that is necessary after that is to keep it weeded and watered.

There are several dwarf and compact ageratum, and they are one of the most satisfactory of bedding plants because of their freedom of bloom. They furnish a sheet of lavender until the frost, not caring much whether the rain is a torrent, or the sun baking hot. They grow quickly from seed sown outdoors in warm weather; the plants frequently catching up with transplanted stock from the heated indoor seedbox. There are white varieties, but the lavender, soiled colors are best.

The snow white flowers and clear attractive scent of sweet alyssum has made it a continuous favorite. It makes wide mats as the season progresses and gives more and more bloom until freezing weather stops it. Sow it in the ground if it is to grow, in as transplanting is harmful and unnecessary; thin to six inches apart. This will soon give you a solid mat of foliage almost hidden by the bloom.

A few seeds planted in a window box will give a fine edging to droop over the sides of the box. Box ageratum and alyssum will flourish in almost any soil, but they require a full amount of sunshine to do their best.

The miniature Mexican margolds, with ferny foliage studded with tiny yellow flowers is often planted with the ageratum and makes a showy edging. It should be sown in a row in the same manner as the alyssum and thinned to six inches apart. It can be more easily transplanted than either the alyssum or ageratum.
