Very Becoming
The invariable comment passed upon our Spectacles. The glasses look well, and their peccators look and see not only well but much better than they could without them. It is prudent to look well to your eyes, and correct at once any defect or peculiarity of vision by the use of properly fitted glasses that relieve the sight from being overstrained and impaired.
The eye often needs the rest that glasses afford, and delay in the matter may entail serious consequences. It pays to save money, but it pays far better to save your sight. Besides Glasses, we also have some very handsome Opera Glasses that would make a nice present for Xmas.

OLD SAYINGS.

As poor as a church-mouse,
As thin as a rail,
As fat as a porpoise,
As rough as a gale,
As true as a lion,
As sly as a fox,
As light as a feather,
As dark as a raven,
As strong as an ox,
As fair as a lily,
As empty as an air,
As rich as a Croesus,
As cross as a bear.
As pure as an angel,
As neat as a pin,
As black as your hat,
As ugly as sin,
As dead as a door nail,
As white as a sheet,
As fat as a pancake,
As red as a beet.
As round as an apple,

A COLONIAL APOSTLE.
BY THE REV. D. STERLINGLAND, CHARLOTTE-TOWN, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.
(From Guild Life and Work, Edinburgh and Glasgow.)

A number of congregations in Prince Edward Island embracing several thousands of members and adherents, remained outside of the union into which a number of the Presbyterian Churches claimed in 1875. These congregations are popularly known as "separatists," and claim a direct connection with the Church of Scotland, refusing to form any ecclesiastical alliance which shall sever that connection. Their founder, the Rev. Donald Macdonald, is the Colonial Apostle about whom I wish to give some details, in the hope that they will interest readers in the Old Country.
The Rev. Donald Macdonald was born in a Perthshire village—his one I have not been able to find out—on the first day of January, 1813. He studied at St. Andrew's, where his university career was very brilliant, and was ordained in 1846.
His fondness for evangelistic work made itself manifest early in life. Instead of seeking a settled charge, he spent eight years in visiting remote parts of the Highland, preaching in barns and in schoolhouses, and teaching the doctrine of the confession of faith to craggy groups that gathered during the daylight hours in the lochs. Having heard of the spiritual destitution of some parts of the North American Colonies, he set sail for Cape Breton in 1824. There he labored with much acceptance for two years, and then returned to his native Gaelic language and through acquaintance with the moods in which Celtic religion expresses itself, having great attractions for the settlements in which Highland emigrants had made their homes.
In 1826 Mr. Macdonald heard a Macedonian cry for help from Prince Edward Island. He quickly responded to it, and began what was to be the work of his life.
For forty-one long years he toiled on with an enthusiasm that could not be dampened and a patience that was tireless. The only appropriate adjective for his arduous life is apostolic. The whole Island was his parish. He travelled from end to end of it, often penetrating on foot to localities where the fact of a minister was never known, and hastening in later years from appointment to appointment as fast as the quickest-stepping horses, for which the Island is celebrated, could carry him. Wherever he went crowds flocked to hear him. He had administrative ability as well as preaching power. He organized congregations, set his converts to work, and ordained elders for them as mapped out distinct lines of operation which included direct visitation of the sick and the conducting of prayer meetings. Some idea of the marvelous success which attended his labors may be formed from the facts that he built fifteen churches, baptized four thousand adults and children, and had by the time of his death a body of five thousand followers who, as a competent authority tells us, were "more attached to their great Spiritual leader than ever were Highland Clansmen to their Chief."
Mr. Macdonald's preaching was accompanied by singular manifestations, about the nature of which varying opinions are held. Many look on them as symbols or signs of the working of the Holy Spirit; others credit them to the magnetic influence of the preacher on hearers who were swept by the tides of his emotion. Mr.
Macdonald used, consciously or unconsciously, to follow the old rule of "begin low, rise higher, take fire and end in a storm." Beginning in a conversational tone, he would gradually rise higher and higher until his sonorous voice rang out in full clarion clearness and strength through the largest church or over the tree-shelled dell in which gathered congregations on church could hold. Everyone who heard him remembers yet how the whole man seemed to be in the act of preaching. Eyes, hands, feet and body became alive with an eloquence that was irresistible. All classes yielded to the spell which either he possessed or possessed him. As he grew excited they pressed him company, until the rushed silence was broken by cries of enrapture which ran from pew to pew, until often the preacher's voice was drowned in sobs and wails. Strong men fell prone on the floor as if dead, and others would clasp their hands in ecstasy or wring them in despair. Trustworthy witnesses tell me that they have seen women rock and to and fro in their pews until their benches fell off their heads, until their hair escaped from its net, and until the locks thus set free became tense as whipcord, rushing through the air with the sharp whizz of a coachman's whip.
Though opinion is divided about the nature of these strange manifestations, there is but one opinion about the permanent good done by Mr. Macdonald's ministrations. Many were redeemed to noble activity through his sermons.
Many lived and died in the sanctity of Christianity who called him their spiritual

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and leads to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation.
It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, whose name is printed on every package, and also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

As Well as Ever

After Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cured of a Serious Disease.

"I was suffering from what is known as Bright's disease for five years, and for days at a time I have been unable to straighten myself up. I was in bed for three weeks; during that time I had needles applied and derived no relief.
Seeing Hood's Sarsaparilla advertised in the papers I decided to try a bottle. I found relief before I had finished taking half of a bottle. I got so much help from taking the first bottle that I decided to try another, and since taking the second bottle feel as well as ever in my life." Geo. Herrett, Toronto, Ont.

REGISTERED QUACKS.
SIR—As several of your readers have had a flag at the Medical Act, kindly present a puzzled man to air his views. Certainly things are not always what they seem.
A donkey may assume the skin of the lion, but in spite of his borrowed covering he inevitably remains an ass. I have been making enquiries as to the qualifications necessary ere one can be placed upon that noble list of protected mortals. Being somewhat of a stranger in these parts, I am loath to confess that my knowledge is second-hand; and if it can be proved that my suspicions are groundless, I, of all men, will be most thankful. Owing to my lack of proximity to the Law, of Swindlers, it would not astonish me if certain of our fellow-countrymen elected the cheap and easy way of attending perhaps two sessions, paying a pound to confer the medical title, and presenting a puzzled man to air his views.
Certainly things are not always what they seem.

A donkey may assume the skin of the lion,
am loath to confess that my knowledge is
Swindlers, it would not astonish me if cer-
presenting a puzzled man to air his views.
