Tarantulas for Bedfellows.

CRAWLING OVER HIS FACE AND HANDS AND FINDING A WARM BED IN HIS HAIR.

[San Francisco Chronicle]

Joseph Grandelmyer, a well known mining man of Nevada, has passed through many startling experiences during a residence of 28 years in the far west, but in perhaps the only man who can boast of having had a round baker's dozen of deadly tarantulas for bedfellows and surviving the terrible experience without material injury. It happened a number of years ago, but even now it causes cold shivers to chase up Mr. Grandelmyer's spinal column when his mind reverts to that particular event. However, surrounded by a circle of friends at the Palace Hotel a few evenings since, he was induced to relate the incident.

"In 1864 I came to San Francisco," said the gentleman, "and with the hopefulness of youth determined to make my fortune. I had a little money saved up, but was a raw tenderfoot, and whatever I put my money into failed to pan out. Finally I concluded to strike out for Nevada. It was a new section of country then, that had been explored to a very limited extent, and when I made known my intention many and urgent were the requests for me to refrain from being so foolish as to encounter dangers in such a wild and almost unknown country. Nothing daunted, however, and not allowing myself to be dissuaded from my purpose, one day in the summer of 1864, after inducing three acquaintances to join me, I set out for the land of sage brush. My particular object in going was to better my fortune by any method I could. Two of the party were prospectors, and the fourth, a Dr. Heath, went along to spy out a good location for a hog ranch.

"Well, after crossing the Sierra at Walker's Pass, we found ourselves in Owens Valley, which is now in Inyo County. Dusk was approaching, and when, after riding a distance in the teeth of a cold wind, we found ourselves at a deserted adobe hut by the roadside we halted, unpacked and unsaddled our animals, and prepared to camp for the night. There was feed for the horses in abundance, and while one staked them out the others began preparations for supper and made the beds ready. My friends preferred sleeping under a large oak tree near, but I chose a spot near the old adobe house, where I spread my blankets close to the wall where the wind would not reach me. After a hearty meal we all retired to our respective beds on the ground, and readily dropped off to sleep.

"I presume it was within an hour of day-break when I awoke with a sudden start. A peculiarly dreadful feeling, worse than any nightmare, took possession of me. I felt paralyzed and was afraid to stir. There was something moving over my face. It was not a large object, but as it moved about the wall left seemed to scorch my face. I felt the thing traverse my face from the left eye down over my nose and mouth. Then it crossed to the other side and explored in the region of my ear. Then it was gone.

"I knew it was not a snake gliding over my face, but some animal much smaller, though what it was I was totally unable to conjecture. I was wide awake, of course, but such an uncomfortable horror held me fast that I was unable to move a muscle and gazed helplessly up at the stars. Once I tried to call out to my companions, but not a sound could I muster. I lay there rigid as a log, maybe for one minute, maybe for five, when I again knew that the same thing, or something like it, was on my hand, which rested outside the blanket, and a cold chill ran up my arm and through my whole body. Still I was absolutely powerless to move a limb, and intently scrutinized my eyes, almost expecting to feel them close in death, so dreadful and indescribable was the sensation. Next I knew 'twas climbing up over my throat, then to my chin and about my nose. An irresistible impulse caused me to open my right eye, and I saw by the dim light the fiery eyes of a big tarantula looking into mine, with its hairy body on my face, not two inches away!

"Knowing that death, or at least painful injury, might result if I moved my body, I immediately dropped the eyelid, and had the satisfaction of feeling the sprawling spider crawl over that eye to my forehead and into my hair, where it appeared to nest, and finally settled down, no doubt as snugly and as comfortably as a bug in a rug. You may think you can imagine my feelings, but you cannot. For a full half hour, I should judge, I endured all the suspense and torment that comes to most mortals in a lifetime, and allowed another spider to slowly crawl up my leg, not knowing at what time I would feel those black fangs sink into my flesh.

"But, thank God, that did not happen, or I should probably not now be alive. Ages after that, so it seemed, Dr. Heath arose, and after dressing came to see if I was awake. I whispered to him the particulars of my plight, and in my hair, which had been standing on end for I don't know how long, he discovered and at once killed one of the tarantulas, an immense fellow, fully three inches long. Carefully turning back the blankets and examining me, he found 12 others that had undoubtedly sought my quarters for warmth. These he quickly but quietly despatched in a manner not to alarm the others. When the strain was over I fainted and was delirious with brain fever for many days. So then, you may depend upon it, I have always taken good care in the selection of a camping spot, for of all the bedfellows one can encounter one of the most terrifying is a tarantula."

Use Lavigne Phenix and your flannels, and all colored goods will become just like new. It is a marvel for washing and cleaning anything from collar to garment. We only ask you to try it once, then you will always use it.

Farmers' Meeting at Red Point.

A meeting in the interests of the farming community of this district was held in Red Point schoolhouse on the evening of the 23rd inst. John A. McLellan, Esq., was appointed to fill the chair, and the undersigned secretary.

The principal subject under discussion for the evening was the Stock Farm and the benefits derived therefrom, especially to Queen's County, and if it would still be beneficial and practical to continue said farm, which was ably discussed by T. S. Robertson, A. W. Bruce, Alex. Robertson, M. P. J. A. Stewart, and others, when it was unanimously resolved, as the opinion of this meeting, that the Stock Farm should not be done away with, but that an experimental station in conjunction therewith would be a practical benefit to this Island. And further, that as Queen's County has had the greatest benefit from the Stock Farm in the past, an effort should now be made to send some of the stock to this end of the Island and other outlying districts.

It was also the unanimous desire of this meeting that our representatives use their influence, as far as possible, to have the King's County Exhibition held in Souris the coming autumn.

The meeting was then closed, to meet again on Monday, 29th inst., to further consider agricultural subjects and the prospects for forming an association or farmers' club of some sort for the better advancement of farming and stock-raising in this district.

J. E. ROBERTSON, Secy.

Notes from East Point.

During the past week, as the weather and roads were favorable, most of the farmers around the thriving settlement of East Point have finished hauling their firewood, and are now busily engaged getting out their fence poles.

On Wednesday, the 3rd inst., quite a large crowd assembled on East Lake ice to witness an exciting and long talked of race between the futurity colts Poundmaker and Crowfoot. The former is owned by A. Cresmer, and was driven by E. Conner. The latter is owned by J. J. McDaid and was driven by J. Townsend. For the first heat Crowfoot did admirably, coming in by half a length. In the second and third heats Poundmaker seemed to be getting better, and won in both by about two lengths, thereby gaining the race. Great excitement prevailed during the whole proceeding, and betting was quite lively. Some of our best judges are of the opinion that Poundmaker, by careful training, will become a fine trotter.

After the race was ended all repaired to the residence of a prominent settler, to partake of refreshments provided by the kind ladies of the place. When justice had been done to the delicacies offered, and all feeling in good spirits, it was decided to end the day's sport by a good "break-down." The music was furnished by the veteran violinist, A. McPhee, assisted by local talent. In this manner they enjoyed themselves till the "was am' hours."

Thus ended one of the most enjoyable events in the history of East Point.

I understand it is the intention of the same parties to hold a concert in aid of the temperance cause. The musical part will be presided over by Professor Furlong.

It is the intention of the people of this section to petition the Debenture Government for a bridge across South Lake, which, if granted, will be of great benefit to this part of the Island.

D. McMillan, of this place succeeded in capturing a beautiful black fox, which he sold to R. Ross for the handsome sum of fifty dollars.

Concert at Belfast.

The Sacred Concert and Basket Social which was held at St. John's Church, Belfast, last week was a decided success in every respect. Although the weather was rather unfavorable a good number was present. The best of order prevailed, and each person seemed to be thoroughly happy.

The programme was good, and judging from the manner in which the different pieces were applauded, they must have been appreciated by the audience.

The committee wish to take this opportunity of thanking the ladies of the congregation who assisted them by sending baskets; also ladies of other congregations and denominations who assisted in the same way. They also wish to thank Mr. Horace Howard, Charlottetown, for the beautiful cake which he kindly sent.

In conclusion, it may be stated that the net receipts amounted to the handsome sum of $280.00.
